DR. MORGAN DIX DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Aged Clergyman Had Been Rector of Trinity Parish for Forty-six Years.

A SON OF GEN. JOHN A. DIX

Heart Fails After Three Days' Illness from Asthma—Took Part in His Own Death Service.

The Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, for forty-six years rector of Trinity Parish, died at 9 o'clock last night in the Trinity rectory at 27 West Twenty-fifth Street, after an illness of only three days. Dr. Dix was in his 81st year, lacking only three months of the age attained by his father, Gen. John A. Dix, who, as Secretary of the Treasury in the Cabinet of James Buchanan in 1860, uttered the famous order: "If any one attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot."

Dr. Dix's death followed an attack of asthma, in which his heart simply gave out under the strain. This asthmatic attack was the fourth which he had suffered. He had rallied from three others in the last three or four years.

Because of his advanced age Dr. Dix's family summoned Dr. A. Alexander Smith of 18 West Fifty-first Street, Dr. Dix's regular physician, as soon as this last attack made itself manifest. Dr. Smith ordered Dr. Dix to bed immediately, and for two days exhausted his skill in an effort to save his patient's life.

Yesterday morning, however, it became apparent that Dr. Dix's heart was failing rapidly, and that his death was only a question of hours. He retained consciousness, however, and conversed with his wife, son, and two daughters, who had gathered at his bedside. He seemed to know that he was about to die.

Took Part in Service for the Dying.

As the day progressed Dr. Dix grew weaker, and between 5 and 6 o'clock Dr. Charles H. Wells of Trinity Parish administered the communion, and conducted a service for the dying. This arrangement had been made with Dr. Dix's consent, and at the conclusion of the service he sank back on his pillows, and in a weak voice expressed his thankfulness.

Within a half hour afterward Dr. Dix had sunk almost into unconsciousness, but in the service he joined in the Lord's Prayer, in a clear, strong voice, repeating the words to the end.

From 6 o'clock until his death three hours later, Dr. Dix was barely conscious. For a short time he was able to take some slight nourishment and stimulants, but then his little remaining strength failed. There was no return to consciousness prior to death, and Dr. Dix passed away as though going to sleep.

"It was very quiet and peaceful, and, I am sure, painless," said Dr. Smith afterward.

Until the last, Dr. Dix's family remained in the room with him. His wife was Miss Emily W. Soutter, and their three children are John A. Dix and Miss Margaret G. Dix and Mrs. William H. Wheelock, who was Miss Catharine M. Dix.

Bishop Potter Not Told of Death.

Bishop Henry C. Potter was not informed last night of the death of the Rector of Trinity. The Bishop has been ill himself for the last few days, and it was not considered advisable to tell him.

"The news would keep him awake all night," said Mrs. Potter. "I shall not tell him until to-morrow morning. Mrs. Dix sent us word several days ago that Dr. Dix was ill, but we had no idea that it was so serious. It will be a great shock to the Bishop."

The last week or two before his death had undoubtedly been a strain on Dr. Dix. He preached in Trinity on Easter Sunday and on every day of the succeeding week he was present at services. In his last illness he was unattended by his colleagues in the church because of the fact that nearly every member of the Trinity ministry was out of town on an Easter vacation.

Dr. Dix's family were too overcome by his death to arrange the details of his funeral last night. These arrangements will be made public to-day.

Dr. Dix's Career.

Dr. Dix was born in 1827. For 46 years Dr. Dix had been rector of the old church at Broadway and Wall Street, and in 1902 the fortieth anniversary of his incumbency was celebrated. In his sermons and views he reflected the sturdy stock from which he came, and the traditions of his family made him particularly patriotic. He was recognized as one of the most scholarly and intellectual clergymen who ever preached from an American pulpit.

Although Dr. Dix's life lay along smooth places and his success in the clergy was immediate, these facts did not make him less energetic. Under his administration the affairs of Trinity have flourished, and it is one of the richest and most eminent congregations in the city. But in these worldly advantages Dr. Dix did not find his greatest inspiration. He often said:

"I wish I could live again the days of my youth and those first early years of work. My work lay almost wholly among children and lowly people. For fifteen years I lived in the lower part of the city, and it was dear work, full of love and comfort."

Perhaps Dr. Dix's greatest recreation was in his collection of books. He was a keen student of philosophy. When a boy he fell under the influence of Bishop Horatio Potter, and naturally turned to the Church at an early age. His father, Gen. John A. Dix, was a rising man in the City of New York, and Mrs. Dix, who was a Miss Morgan, was a woman of distinction and high social position.

A Columbia Graduate.

He went to Columbia University, and of the nine rectors of Trinity was the fourth Columbia graduate. He was graduated from Columbia in 1848, and then entered the General Theological Seminary, from which he was graduated in 1852. He served as an assistant in St. Mark's Church in Philadelphia under the Rev. Joseph Wilmer, who later became the Bishop of Louisiana. After a few years in Philadelphia Dr. Dix went abroad, and when he returned to New York became assistant rector to Dr. Berian. Dr. Berian died three years after the younger clergyman entered Trinity, but before his death had practically fixed upon his assistant as his successor.

Dr. Dix became rector of the church in 1862, and plunged into his work resolutely. Gradually he sponsored sisterhoods and extended the sphere of parish work. About the same time that the son's pulpit

STOLE A LIFETIME'S SAVINGS.

Yet Parents, Obdurate at First, Forgave Their Daughter at Last.

Half a dozen policemen and detectives shifted uneasily from one foot to the other and wished themselves anywhere else than in Capt. McCafferty's room at Police Headquarters last night, when Amelia Ochs, daughter of an old German cabinetmaker, who disappeared from her home, 449 East Eightieth Street, last Thursday, was confronted with her aged parents.

At sight of her father and mother the girl uttered a cry and pitched forward on the floor in a faint. When she was revived the girl pleaded with her parents to forgive her and take her back, but old Conrad Ochs, German and phlegmatic, refused.

"Get me my money first," he said. "Then we can talk of forgiveness."

The girl's mother gathered her in her arms. She corroborated her husband in declaring that Amelia had obtained $1,400, the savings of a lifetime, from them by fraud, but she was ready to forgive the girl, and at last she persuaded her husband to do likewise.

It was the money which had made her leave home, Amelia confessed, but she pleaded that she had lost it innocently. She had taken it last October, promising to double it in a few months, and her parents, old and unused to business, believed and trusted her.

The girl worked in a broker's office, and it was in the stock market that she told her parents she intended to win a fortune. Months went by, however, and at last old Conrad demanded his money or at least some interest, which the girl told him had been accruing. Last Thursday the father demanded his money by night. Amelia left the house, assuring him confidently that he should have it on her return.

But the girl did not come back at night, and yesterday detectives found her at 515 East Seventy-eighth Street, where she was boarding with a French family. They had looked up the girl's history for the last few months, and when they arrested her they taxed her with having left her place in the broker's office last November. According to the detectives the girl confessed then that she had given the money to a young man to invest for her, and that he had never returned any of it. She admitted too, the detectives say, that she had played the races and lost.

TROLLEY MEN GET MORE PAY.

Modified Demand After Going Over the Books Themselves.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., April 29.—Supreme Court Justice Morschauser to-day granted an order permitting Receiver Leslie Sutherland of the Yonkers trolley lines to pay employes on that road an increase of wages averaging 15 cents a day.

The Union motormen and conductors demanded originally an increase of 25 cents a day, with extra pay for overtime. At the suggestion of the court, the employes were made a party to the receiver's application for an order in the case. They went over the books and records of the trolley roads and held a number of conferences with the receiver, which resulted in an amicable arrangement satisfactory to both sides.

The increase in pay extends also to the Westchester Electric Railroad and the Tarrytown, White Plains & Mamaroneck Railroad, which are in the hands of Addison Young, receiver. It affects altogether 500 trolley workers.

Judge Morschauser asked how much the increase in wages would amount to yearly, and was told about $8,000. The court suggested to the labor delegation: "Eight less accidents due to carelessness will more than make up that sum. You go on the basis that every time the road pays out a dollar for accidents that it is a dollar out of your pockets. You must prevent accidents and preserve the property of this corporation."

BINGHAM FINDS ANARCHISTS.

Submits List to Immigration Bureau and Five Will Be Deported.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—In the round-up of Anarchists of foreign birth by the authorities of various large cities of the country, working in co-operation with the United States immigration officials, a great many foreigners with criminal records in their own country have been discovered. The cases of these men are being investigated by the immigration officials, and where the facts warrant the action they are being deported from America.

Gen. Bingham, Police Commissioner of New York City, has submitted a list of names of foreigners with criminal records to the Bureau of Immigration, and it is known that these cases now are under investigation. Secretary Straus of the Department of Commerce and Labor and Commissioner General Sargent of the Bureau of Immigration are co-operating with the municipal and State authorities to rid the United States of as many of these "undesirables" as can be reached by law.

Orders were issued to-day for the deportation of five Italians found in New York, all of whom have criminal records. They have been convicted of various crimes, ranging from murder to petit larceny. They are among those on Gen. Bingham's list. Some, at least, of them are declared to be Anarchists, and all have been proved to be bad.

BOMB WRECKS DRUG STORE.

Three Families Live in Building, But No One Is Injured.

CLIFTON, N. J., April 29.—A bomb was exploded at 10:30 o'clock to-night in the drug store of Joseph Altieri, at 89 President Street. It wrecked the drug store and set the place on fire. A metal ceiling prevented the flames from spreading to the three upper stories of the building where three families live, but the members of these were thrown into a panic. They escaped from the building uninjured, however.

The drug store had been closed for an hour when the explosion occurred. Altieri owns another drug store at 389 President Street, and a bomb was found outside the door of this place by a policeman about a month ago. The fuse burned off without exploding the bomb.

Altieri recieved a letter just prior to the first attempt to blow up his store, telling him that harm would come to him unless he obeyed the instructions contained in an earlier letter. Altieri had never recieved another letter and consequently paid no attention to the threat.

BERMEL, UNDER FIRE, RESIGNS HIS POST

Quits Queens Borough Presidency in Haste and Prepares to Sail for Europe To-day.

SUBPOENA MAY STOP HIM

Report That He May Even Be Arrested on a Warrant if He Attempts to Leave.

Borough President Joseph Bermel of Queens resigned his office yesterday and will sail to-day for Europe. His successor will be chosen by the Aldermen from Queens County presided over by the Mayor, and it is regarded as probable that ex-Borough President Joseph Cassidy will be elected. Before Mr. Bermel's steamer passes the Sandy Hook lightship his successor will have taken the oath of office.

The resignation of Mr. Bermel came unexpectedly, as he is under charges and his friends had asserted that he would stay in office and fight it out. The charges were made to the Governor, and Samuel H. Ordway has been appointed to take testimony in the case. The expectation was that the hearings would begin on May 7 in Long Island City. Whether or not the hearings will now be held was a matter of conjecture yesterday among politicians.

Mr. Bermel's resignation took the form of a letter to the City Clerk. It read:

It was dated yesterday and had been sworn to before a commissioner of deeds. As soon as the news of Mr. Bermel's action became known there was a lot of figuring in the City Hall as to who his successor would be. Although Cassidy seems to have the lead, there is some possibility of a fight.

Within a few hours after the resignation had been received by City Clerk Scully the Mayor issued a call for a special meeting of the Queens Aldermen, which is to take place at noon. There are five Aldermen from the borough. They are Thomas M. Quinn, George Euener, Joseph Flanagan, John J. Hogan, and Michael J. Carter. Carter is a Republican, Quinn was elected on the Independence League ticket, and the other three are Democrats.

How the Aldermen Stand.

Hogan and Flanagan are said to be with Cassidy, and will probably vote for him. It is said, too, that Quinn was elected largely through Cassidy's aid, but there seems to be doubt as to whether he will support the former President. In some quarters it was stated yesterday that if Quinn was with Cassidy it would be found that Hogan was not, and that the former President would only have two votes when the first ballot was taken.

The Republican Aldermen may have the deciding vote. There is no information as to whom the anti-Cassidy pair of Aldermen will put up. It is considered likely that Mr. Cassidy will succeed before the meeting in winning over one of the opposition.

Mr. Bermel defeated Mr. Cassidy for the Presidency of the borough in 1905, running on a combination Republican and Municipal Ownership League ticket, though he had previously been classed as a Democrat. When elected he announced his intention of fighting graft in every form.

The next time Mr. Bermel figured prominently in politics was when he carried a primary election and controlled the delegation for Queens to the Democratic State Convention at Buffalo. There, however, Charles F. Murphy of Tammany, with the help of the Hearstites, unseated Bermel's delegation and seated that led by Cassidy.

The Kissena Park Scandal.

The Kissena Park scandal next brought Mr. Bermel into the limelight. He was summoned before the Grand Jury in connection with it, and afterward Nathan Vidaver and Attorney General Jackson tried to obtain his removal.

Mr. Bermel's resignation has brought to light some things which indicate that scandals connected with his administration will require a thorough inquiry before the borough of will be purged of their influence. Involved in the housecleaning will be not only borough, but city officals, it is said, and the matter will probably also reach as far as Albany. Indictments are looked for.

Two things contributed to force Mr. Bermel's resignation. The first was the trend of the investigation by the present Grand Jury in Queens, which was made known to the Borough President. The second was the candid advice of his lawyer, Francis H. Van Vechten, who told him to get out.

Mr. Bermel is booked to sail to-day for Rome on the Slavonia, leaving at noon, if he is not prevented by a subpoena to remain and testify before the Grand Jury. It was hinted last night that he would be arrested on a warrant if he attempted to sail.

Mr. Bermel was not indicted by either of the two Grand Juries which made exhaustive investigations of the Kissena Park scandal.

A Grand Juror and His Job.

A witness before the Grand Jury asked permission on Tuesday to make a statement. Then he said:

"There is a man in this room to whom a job has been promised on May 1 if he remains on the Grand Jury and prevents certain indictments being found. If you wish to know his name I will give it."

Instantly a Grand Juror sprang to his feet and said:

"I am the man you refer to, but there was no such bargain as that. I am on the civil service list." He afterward admitted, it is said, that a place had been promised to him by the administration on May 1.

This was forthwith made known to Mr. Bermel, and a consultation he had with his lawyer, Francis H. Van Vechten, decided the matter of his immediate resignation.

Lawrence W. Gresser, Public Works Commissioner, is acting Borough President.

Reginald Brooks Bumped at Polo.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., April 29.—Reginald Brooks of Westbury while playing in a practice game of polo yesterday afternoon at Meadow Brook received the benefit of one of Harold Phipps's back-hand strokes. The mallet struck him a glancing blow on the forehead. After staying the slight flow of blood at the club he tied up the wound and rode home.

AMELIA BINGHAM VERY ILL.

Actress Stricken Suddenly and Has Undergone an Operation.

Amelia Bingham, the actress, is dangerously ill at her home, 40 East Thirty-first Street, with a complication of intestinal trouble and peritonitis. Her recovery is by no means assured, although the physicians who have been attending her drew some hope last night from a slight rally in the evening.

Mrs. Bingham was stricken very suddenly on Sunday night after returning from a dinner with her husband, Lloyd Bingham, and a party of friends, at the Plaza. Dr. Walter C. Gilday was called and Mrs. Bingham grew worse so rapidly that he called into consultation Dr. W. Gill Wylie and Dr. John A. Bodine.

At first it was thought that the actress was suffering from appendicitis, but the physicians soon decided that her trouble was more serious, and on Tuesday they performed an operation. It was successful in that it gave the actress relief, but last night the question of a more serious and complicated operation was discussed by the physicians.

CARNEGIE'S TRAIN STONED.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., April 29.—Andrew Carnegie's special train was stoned by tramps hanging around the Lehigh Valley Railroad's yards at South Plainfield, near here, last night, and windows in Mr. Carnegie's car were broken. A woman and a little girl are said to have been hurt.

To-day orders were issued to get all the trespassers at the yards, and Detective Jenkins arrested ten boys who had just come in on a freight train. Their ages ranged from 16 to 20. Justice Sedam sent them all to jail for fifteen days each for trespass. It was not charged that these boys had anything to do with the attack on Mr. Carnegie's train.

Mr. Carnegie was returning from South Bethlehem, Penn., where he yesterday attended the dedication of Taylor Hall, a dormitory he recently presented to Lehigh University. In his party were a number of prominent New Yorkers.

CARNEGIE AN ESPERANTIST?

His Educational Representative at Pittsburg Addresses Their Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., April 29.—There was an enthusiastic meeting of exponents of the Esperanto language here this evening, at which the principal guest and most important speaker was Prof. A. A. Hamerschlag, personal educational representative of Andrew Carnegie and Director in the Carnegie Technical Schools.

His presence was taken as an indication that Mr. Carnegie had interested himself in the new language. Director Hamerschlag said he hoped great things for it. Prof. John A. Brashear, the noted scientist, closely identified with Mr. Carnegie, acted as Chairman of the meeting.

PRINCE OF CHEFS LEAVES US,

Giving a Souvenir Recipe and a Compliment—We Like a Square Meal.

G. A. Escoffier, the "Prince of Chefs," who has been in New York a week, sails to-day for Europe on the Deutschland. But, like another author, he will come again. He hopes to be back in time for Thanksgiving.

M. Escoffier leaves behind, as part payment for the good times America has made him have, this "creation" of his:

Timbale a la Silz: Philadelphia squab, with noodles, scrap fish, shrimp butter and cream, served in a timbale crust, half and half.

That's what he said—half and half. It is taken for granted that all cooks will know what the half and half refers to.

The Prince of Chefs was the guest of honor last night at a dinner given at the Café Martin by six of his French friends. Through Gaston G. Netter, his friend, the Emperor spoke this proclamation to America, and particularly the press of New York:

"Monsieur wishes to thank America and the press of New York—not for publicity—far be it from one who has associated with Kings, Queens, and Emperors to seek for publicity, though there be those who do the same. No, it is he who thanks America and the press for their courtesy shown to him while he is here. If he can possibly arrange it, he will be back in November, for he thinks it is a great country.

"M. Escoffier says that this is the greatest country in the world for the appreciation of the good, square meal."

RECEIVER FOR TRUE AMERICAN

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 29.—Upon the application of Charles H. Gallagher, a member of the Democratic State Committee, for the appointment of a receiver for The Trenton True American, the oldest Democratic newspaper in New Jersey, Vice Chancellor Walker to-day appointed Edward L. Katzenbach, brother of Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., the recent Democratic Gubernatorial candidate, as receiver for the concern.

The paper will continue to be issued under the direction of the receiver. Originally capitalized at $100,000, this amount was increased on Oct. 7, 1907, to $125,000. Mr. Gallagher claims that the company's property is so heavily mortgaged that its principal asset is its good will, which is placed at about $30,000. For some time Mr. Gallagher alleges the business has been conducted at a loss.

Among the largest creditors of the concern are Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., and Mrs. Joseph L. Naar, widow of the owner and editor of the paper.

TO MAKE STEEL CAR WHEELS.

Said That New Process for Making Them Cheaply Has Been Discovered.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 29. — It was announced in Pittsburg to-day that the United States Steel Corporation has decided, at the request of numerous railroads, to begin the manufacture of all steel car wheels. Acting under orders from New York, the Carnegie Steel Company has been at work for some months on a new wheel, and a plant will be built in the Pittsburg district for their manufacture.

For many years there has been made in Pittsburg a steel wheel, but only for locomotives, and at high cost, and now the idea is to have all car wheels made of steel. Their great cost in the past has almost prohibited their general use, but it is asserted that the Carnegies have evolved a process by which a steel wheel can be built cheaply.

ANONYMOUS WRITER PESTERS MAGAZINES

AUTHORITIES SEEKING HIM

Warm Time Ahead for the Ready Writer if He Is Discovered—What Is His Grievance?

Somewhere in town there is an anonymous letter writer who for many months has been annoying magazine publishers and their advertisers. The publishers of the magazines are hot on his trail and say they will make it decidedly warm for him if they can discover his identity.

His anonymous letters to the biggest advertisers in the magazines started about six months ago. They have kept up with more or less regularity ever since until the publishers came to the conclusion that it would be well to call the attention of the local Post Office authorities to the case and ask their aid in detecting the author.

So far four of the leading publishers have been the letter writer's objects of attack. Mr. Mitchell of Life, Mr. Scott of The Century, Mr. Hazen of The Woman's Home Companion, and Mr. Ridgway of Everybody's.

Several months ago an advertiser in Life was surprised to find in his morning's mail an unsigned letter informing him that J. A. Mitchell, its publisher, had been saying unkind things about him. The letter, which was printed out in full with rubber type, read:

"Do you know that J. A. Mitchell, the editor of Life, says that if you used insect powder in your rooms you wouldn't have 'em crawling around on your coat?"

This was followed by other letters and finally an advertiser in The Woman's Home Companion received a letter which read: "Do you know that George H. Hazen, the publisher of The Woman's Home Companion, says you are a stuffy, 'raised-by-hand' kind of a nincompoop, and the conceit on your face would give a kodak the stomach ache."

Still another was received by an advertiser in the Century Magazine, reading:

"Do you know that Frank Scott, the publisher of the Century, says he would hate to look as mean as you do? That you look as though you'd sell your own grandmother for 50 cents?"

Another of the letters was received by an advertiser in Everybody's Magazine, which said:

"Do you know that E. J. Ridgway, the publisher of Everybody's Magazine, says that it's surprising to see a nincompoop like you successful? 'A fool for luck,' says he."

These are only samples of the large number of letters received by advertisers in the magazines mentioned.

"His letters are nearly always uniform in appearance," said Ray Brown of Everybody's. "They consist of five or six lines printed apparently from rubber type in purple ink. The writer shows a wide acquaintance with the advertising field, and apparently has easy access to lists of advertisers that are up to date."

Mr. Brown said he could not understand his motive in sending the letters, but was of the opinion that the man was either insane or that he had some grievance against the publishers, possibly on account of rejected manuscripts.

"The method of this writer is not unique, though his field appears to be a new one," said Mr. Brown. "He has mailed his letters in all sections of the city. First they would bear the postmark of a station in the Bronx, then they would have the postmark of the Wall Street section. Then Harlem would come in for a batch. Then he would rest a few weeks and again start his rubber type to working."

MISS MALONEY TO BE FREE.

Referee's Report Against Osborne Marriage—May Wed Clarkson.

The report of Daniel F. Cohalan, who was appointed referee to take testimony in the proceedings brought to annul the marriage of Miss Helen Maloney, daughter of Martin Maloney of the Standard Oil Company, to Arthur H. Osborne, a young broker, was submitted yesterday to Supreme Court Justice McCall for confirmation. Decision was reserved.

While the contents of the report are kept secret, it was learned on good authority that Mr. Cohalan finds in favor of Miss Maloney, and there is no reason to doubt but that Justice McCall will soon confirm this finding. It is expected that when this is done, Miss Maloney will at once marry Samuel Clarkson, the young Englishman with whom she went to Europe last September.

It was after their departure that Osborne came forward with the declaration that he had married Miss Maloney at Mamaroneck some two years before. It was then that proceedings were begun to annul the marriage.

SAYS JUSTICE TOOK BRIBES.

Prisoner Confesses Plot in Brooklyn Sewer Suits to Rob the City.

District Attorney Clarke of Brooklyn announced yesterday that since Lawyer William O. Miles and his clerk, Frank A. Wells, had been sent to Blackwell's Island to serve sentences for defrauding the city, he had received a confession from one of the prisoners which makes it certain that one of the Municipal Justices of Brooklyn would be indicted for accepting bribes. The confession also implicates a clerk in the Controller's office.

HEFLIN PAYS FOR SHOOTING.

Representative to Reimburse the White Man He Wounded.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Thomas McCreary, the New York turfman, who was recently shot by Representative J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama, will leave the hospital next Friday. A conference was held to-day between Mr. Heflin, Mr. McCreary, and the latter's attorney, and Mr. Heflin offered to recompense McCreary for all expenses and losses incident to his disability. The agreement was satisfactory.

The shooting of McCreary grew out of an encounter between Representative Heflin and Thomas Lundy, a negro on a street car.

TAFT FOR HIGHER WAGES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Secretary Taft visited the Senate and House to-day and made valiant effort to prevent the reduction of the Panama Canal wage scale. Chairman Tawney of the House Committee on Appropriations was not to be converted.

"We have to put the brakes on somewhere," he told the Secretary. "We've been granting double pay on the Isthmus. That is too much. It is our opinion that 25 per cent. more than is paid at home is a good enough bonus."

GETTING THAW READY.

FISHKILL LANDING, April 29.—Harry K. Thaw to-day had Lawyer Graham, Alienists Dr. Charles Pilgrim of the Hudson River State Hospital, Poughkeepsie, Dr. Charles Lane of Poughkeepsie, and Dr. Britton D. Evans as visitors at the Matteawan State Hospital. They are preparing him for appearance in court. Lawyer Graham said to-night that he expected the testimony at Poughkeepsie to continue for three or four days. Thaw is sanguine.

19-YEAR-OLD BANKRUPT.

Young Commission Merchant Owes the Trade $8,000 to $9,000.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday against Abe Solderer, who is said to be only 19 years old, but who has run a commission business in butter and eggs at 326 Greenwich Street for a year. Three creditors, whose claims aggregate a little more than $4,000, are named, and they allege that Solderer has transferred property, merchandise, and cash to other creditors.

Solderer has not been at his place of business recently. He is said to owe the commission trade $8,000 to $9,000. Judge Holt appointed Thomas D. Hewitt receiver.

50 YEARS WITH N. Y. LIFE.

T. H. Banta Celebrates His Half Century of Service—44 Years Cashier.

Theodore M. Banta, the veteran cashier of the New York Life Insurance Company, celebrated yesterday the completion of fifty years' service in that institution. His office was decked with flowers, and he was kept busy receiving congratulations.

Mr. Banta has held office through the administrations of five Presidents of the New York Life and through two great upheavals in the company's affairs. One of these resulted in the advent of John A. McCall as President and the other in McCall's undoing. He has seen its business grow from $10,000,000 a year to nearly $500,000,000, attained just before the recent insurance investigation.

Mr. Banta has been cashier since 1884, a term of forty-four years.

WANTS BEADLESTON TO PAY.

Brewer Was Bondsman for a Young Man Against Whom a Girl Got Verdict.

TRENTON, N. J., April 29.—Alfred N. Beadleston, a New York brewer, has been served with a writ summoning him to appear in the Supreme Court in Trenton to-morrow and show cause why he should not be compelled to pay to Miss Ida Wessner of Hoboken $5,000, the amount of a verdict obtained by her against Herbert A. Seavey of Boston, whose bondsman Beadleston was.

The judgment against Seavey was secured last Fall, and Seavey is said to have disappeared.

Seavey was arrested in Asbury Park in September, 1906, on complaint of Miss Wessner, who was a manicurist. She sued for $20,000 damages, and a trip on Seavey's yacht Ivanhoe figured in her complaint.

DIED AT LODGE MEETING.

News of the Death of Another Member Received a Few Moments Later.

There was an initiation at Joppa Lodge, No. 201, of the Masonic Order in the rooms at 200 Joralemon Street last night of which G. M. Duvall, a linotyper and member of "Big 6," who lived at 1,670 Forty-first Street, Brooklyn, was the Secretary. Suddenly he asked Master of Ceremonies Andrew Mills to postpone the initiation for a few minutes, explaining that he felt ill and wanted to step into the street for air.

As he turned toward the door he suddenly pitched forward onto the floor on his face. Dr. Edward Brennand of 135 Clinton Street, who was present as a member, hurried to his side and found that the man had died of heart disease. Duvall leaves a widow and seven daughters.

A few moments later news reached the lodge rooms of the death of James Hamilton of 5 South Elliott Place, who had also been a member of the lodge. Hamilton was 68 years old and had been an old friend of Duvall, who was 67. The two deaths deeply affected the members of the lodge.

BAN ON MEAT PACKING PLANT.

Government Inspectors Withdrawn from a Paterson (N. J.) Firm.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The packing firm of Henry Muehs Company of Paterson, N. J., was visited to-day with the displeasure of the Government, when the Department of Agriculture ordered the withdrawal of its Meat Inspectors from the concern for repeated violations of the pure food law.

This action is the first of its kind under the new laws governing the control of packing houses. The violations, according to Dr. A. D. Melvin, Chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, consisted mainly in the adulteration of lard prepared by the Muehs Company, and the utilization of the lard tanks as receptacles for refuse.

The withdrawal of the Government Inspectors will prevent the concern from entering its products in foreign or inter-State trade. No transportation company will accept any goods from the firm for inter-State or foreign shipment which do not bear the Government "Inspected and Passed" label.

HITS AT ROGUES' GALLERY.

Magistrate Angry Over Useless Action in Case of Prisoner from Porto Rico.

Magistrate O'Reilly in the Adams Street Court, Brooklyn, yesterday attacked the method of the police in photographing prisoners for the Rogues' Gallery before they had a chance in court to prove their innocence. The criticism was brought out at the hearing of Paul D. Hawkins, from Porto Rico, accused of embezzlement.

CHAS. COSTER LOST $1,000,000 IN STOCKS

RELATIVES HEAVY LOSERS

Coster Said to Have Lost $200,000 of His Mother-in-Law's Money—Was $1,200,000 Ahead Until Recently.

Following the suicide at his home on Tuesday evening of Charles Coster, junior member of the Stock Exchange house of Coster, Knapp & Co., the suspension of that firm was announced on the Stock Exchange at the opening of business yesterday.

Speculation by Charles Coster on the short side of the market, which ended in the loss of almost $1,000,000 of his own and his firm's money and of money intrusted to the firm, was offered yesterday as the reason for the suspension, and as the motive which prompted Mr. Coster's suicide. Only a short time ago his account showed $1,200,000 profit.

Mr. Coster's brother, W. B. Coster, who has been living in Paris for the last year, was nearing this port at the very time his brother shot himself. He was notified of the suicide by wireless on board the Oceanic, and on landing yesterday went at once to the firm's office. W. B. Coster was formerly a member of the firm, but withdrew from it last April. J. M. Knapp, surviving partner of the firm, made an assignment as an individual and as a member of the firm to Louis Werner. The decision to take this step was announced in this statement, issued from the firm's office in the Manhattan Life Building, at 66 Broadway:

Owing to the death of Mr. Coster and the consequent condition of the firm's affairs, it has been deemed advisable to make a general assignment for the benefit of all the creditors. This step was taken at the suggestion of most of the creditors, and Mr. Werner of the law firm of Simpson Werner & Cardoza of 32 Broadway, the assignee, has already started in to straighten out accounts, so as to be in a position to make a correct statement to all parties interested at the earliest day possible.

This was supplemented by an informal statement by Mr. Knapp, which said:

The cause of the suspension is undoubtedly overspeculation by Charles Coster. The losses for the most part will fall upon Mr. Coster and his brother, and myself to a small extent. The firm had only about a dozen customers and was doing a very limited business.

Coster's Relatives Heavy Losers.

Later Mr. Werner, the assignee, said that the principal creditors of the firm are relatives of Mr. Coster, who had large sums on deposit with the firm, including Mrs. Sarah A. Anthon, mother-in-law of Mr. Coster, who was said yesterday to have lost through the speculations of her son-in-law and the subsequent suspension of his firm no less than $200,000. Mrs. Anthon, who was very much affected by her son-in-law's death, said last night that she knew of no loses outside of those incurred in the firm.

Charles Coster's own fortune, which at one time was conservatively placed at $1,000,000, was made for the most part on the bear side of the market. Apparently carried away by his success last year, Mr. Coster continued to go short of the market after the tide of prices turned, and all his own money, it is believed, as well as most of the capital of his firm and sums deposited with the firm, are believed to have been swept away by the upturn in the market.

Coster's dealings on the short side of the market may have amounted, it was said by those familiar with the firm's affairs, to as much as 200,000 shares, but his uncovered commitments when the firm suspended yesterday were said by the assignee to have amounted to little if any more than 20,000 shares, mostly in Steel common and Reading.

During his recent speculation, Coster was short of many stocks besides Steel and Reading. Only a few days ago he consulted a friend regarding some of his market operations and was advised that he was getting over his head. Coster's reply was:

"I have lived by the sword and I shall die by the sword."

He had recently gained the reputation of being a plunger on the short side of the market, but he seemed not to have seen the change in the trend of things and kept right on selling in the face of a rising market. His heaviest losses must have come recently, since the market has had a very rapid rise in the last few weeks.

Firm's Liabilities $1,000,000.

How much the assets of the firm will amount to was not determined yesterday. The assignee said that he could not approximate them even roughly, for he had not had time to go far enough into affairs to more than form an estimate of its liabilities, which he placed at about $1,000,000. Heavy buying of United States Steel by Content & Co. and of Reading by Hutton & Co. and other brokers was attributed on the floor to the account of Coster, Knapp & Co. Investigation showed, however, that this stock was not bought in under the rule, and, so far as could be definitely established, the assignee's estimate of 20,000 shares as the uncovered commitments of the firm was close to the facts.

In whose names Charles Coster carried on his disastrous speculations did not become known yesterday. It was pointed out that Mr. Coster had practically complete charge of the office, while Mr. Knapp was the Exchange member. He was, therefore, in a position to carry on speculations for his own account in the name of supposed customers, and the theory was advanced that it was in this way that the actual condition of affairs remained unknown to Mr. Coster's partner.

W. B. Coster said yesterday that he would make no statement, as he did not know how matters stood. Some question arose yesterday whether W. B. Coster was still a member of the firm or not. Notice was sent to the Stock Exchange yesterday that Mr. Coster had withdrawn from the firm on April 11, 1907. Seemingly this was the first knowledge that the Exchange had officially of his withdrawal from the firm. His name has been included all along in the official list of the Exchange. It appears, however, that the withdrawal of W. B. Coster was duly advertised last Spring, and notice sent to all the customers and correspondents of the firm in the usual manner. Exchange members said that it was commonly known on the floor that W. B. Coster was no longer a member of the firm.

It was said to be through some oversight that the Exchange had not been officially notified of his withdrawal. The question assumed some importance in view of the possibility that Mr. Coster might be regarded as partly liable for the debts of the firm. On this point the assignee said that the question was not a practical one inasmuch as legal notice of Mr. Coster's withdrawal from the firm had been given even though the Exchange may not have been officially notified.

Charles Coster started his career as a broker in 1886. Two years later he formed the firm of Coster, Martin & Co., which opened a branch office in Chicago and became very active in the grain speculation of the late eighties and early nineties. The firm was very successful for several years, but in 1892 it attempted to run a corner in corn against the powerful opposition of a syndicate headed by the Armours, who were then taking a position on the bear side of the market. The outcome of the contest between the Armour syndicate and Coster, Martin & Co. and its following was the failure of the firm. It assigned on June 12, 1892, with liabilities reported to have amounted to $4,000,000.

A year and a half after the failure of his grain commission house Charles Coster formed the Stock Exchange house of Coster, Knapp & Co., his partners being his brother, W. B. Coster, and John M. Knapp, who from 1890 to 1893 was a partner in the firm of Edey & Knapp.

The withdrawal of W. B. Coster from his brother's firm last April is said to have been due to diverse views held by the two brothers regarding the handling of the firm's business. W. B. Coster is said to have been prompted in this step by his apprehension regarding the results of the speculative disposition shown by Charles Coster, although up to that time and even later Charles was fortunate in most of his ventures. It was his great success in his speculations which paved the way for the losses which led up to his death and to the suspension yesterday of his firm. Only a short time before the first of his recent losses in speculation occurred Charles Coster told a friend that he had made more money than he had ever expected to possess.

Mrs. Sarah A. Anthon, widow of William B. Anthon, is with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Coster, at 17 East Fifty-fifth Street, until the funeral, which is to take place on Saturday at Woodlawn. When asked by a TIMES reporter yesterday whether her son-in-law had had any funds belonging to her or any member of the family in his hands for investment, she said:

"I do not know of any money that he had at all except that which was deposited with the firm. He was not a trustee for me or my daughter. Charles had not been well all Winter, but I cannot understand what made him take his own life."

Friends of the dead man were positive yesterday that he made all preparations to end his life on Tuesday. At 3 o'clock that afternoon Mr. Coster called up his brother-in-law, Henry Steers, at the house 10 East Thirty-eighth Street, and seemed very much annoyed when told that Mr. Steers was not in.

"Tell him to call me up at the house immediately he comes in, as I wish to speak to him on matters of the greatest importance," he said. Then he rang off.

T. A. McINTYRE RETURNS.

Head of Failed Stock Exchange Firm in a Sanitarium—Hearing To-day.

T. A. McIntyre, head of the failed Stock Exchange house of T. A. McIntyre & Co., arrived here yesterday from his farm in Onslow County, N. C., to face his accusers and help clear up the tangled affairs of his firm.

He was accompanied by a nurse and was in very feeble health. Mr. McIntyre went immediately to a private sanitarium. Maurice Leon, his counsel, said last night:

"I saw Mr. McIntyre to-day shortly after his arrival from the South. Although worn out, he undertook the journey back in order to be where he might help in clearing up the affairs of his firm. The fatigue of the trip, however, has aggravated his condition, but he hopes that within a week he will be able to take up his task. No good purpose would be achieved by making his present location public, and Mr. McIntyre certainly should have quiet at this time. Of course, his address will be given by me to whoever has the right to obtain it."

Subpoenas were served yesterday on all of the members of T. A. McIntyre & Co. who are in the city to appear before Commissioner Gilchrist at 2 o'clock this afternoon for examination by the counsel for the receivers and the attorney of creditors who claimed securities which have not so far been found among the firm's assets. Half a dozen of the creditors have placed their claims in the hands of lawyers, who will participate in the examination.

The receivers discovered one more asset of T. A. McIntyre yesterday in an automobile. He is said to have owned a second car, which disappeared on Thursday night after the assignment was decided upon. Securities to the value of $10,000 were taken from the firm's Stock Exchange vaults yesterday by the receivers which had come in from the transfer offices after the failure.

Attorney Ernst, for the receiver, expects to have a full statement of the claims ready for use at the examination to-day.

Special to The New York Times.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., April 29.—T. A. McIntyre, the New York broker, who arrived at his farm in Onslow County a few days ago, suffering from a complete nervous breakdown, left last night for New York. Mr. McIntyre was accompanied by a nurse.

All Mr. McIntyre would say last night was that he was going back to New York "to adjust business matters," and afterward would return to his farm in Onslow County and live. He appeared to be very feeble. His farm is one of the largest and finest in North Carolina.

JOHNSON'S FIGURES SHOW BRYAN DEFEAT

JOHNSON IS IN MICHIGAN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Frederick B. Lynch, head of the Johnson campaign headquarters in Chicago and Treasurer of the Minnesota Democratic Committee, is in Washington. He spent to-day in sounding members of both houses of Congress as to the attitude toward the Minnesota Governor's candidacy for the Presidency, and in learning of the progress of the Johnson boom.

At the end of the day's consultations Mr. Lynch seemed optimistic. He declared that William J. Bryan had practically no chance of carrying two-thirds of the Denver Convention on the first ballot. After the first ballot he predicted a break over to Gov. Johnson.

"Virtually all of the New England States, New York, Pennsylvania, and all of the Eastern and Southern Coast and Gulf States, except Alabama, Texas, and Mississippi, will send uninstructed delegates to Denver," said Mr. Lynch. "After careful investigation we are able to add the delegates from Michigan, Ohio, and probably most of the mountain and Western Coast States to the list.

"Mr. Bryan, I believe, will reach Denver with less than half the delegates instructed for him. There will be from 400 to 500 votes against Bryan on the first ballot."

Mr. Lynch said the Minnesota candidate would develop a great deal of strength from States lined up for Bryan before the Governor announced his candidacy. North Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Illinois, he said, would naturally go to Johnson if they had the chance.

Mr. Lynch said that he did not think the situation in Virginia favorable to the Nebraskan, while in Pennsylvania only sixteen of the delegation would be for Bryan, and the delegation would be bound against him at the convention.

GOV. JOHNSON AT DETROIT.

New York Has No Connection with His Candidacy, He Declares.

DETROIT, Mich., April 29.—Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota brought his boom for the Democratic Presidential nomination to Michigan to-day. He follows W. J. Bryan, who recently made a tour of the State in an endeavor to stop the revolt against the Bryan machine here. Johnson was entertained by many prominent citizens.

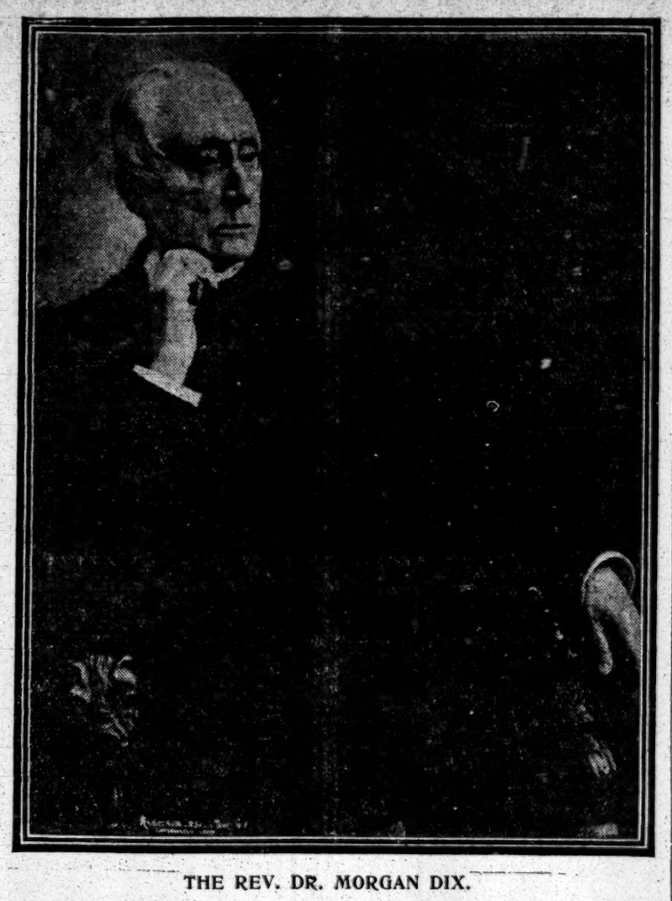
In an interview Gov. Johnson said:

"New York has no connection with my candidacy. My support will have to come from another direction than Wall Street. I may say that I have had no relations politically or otherwise with the other side of the Hudson. I have had absolutely nothing to do with Tammany or Murphy. Mr. Bryan and I are good friends. I am not in a fight for the purpose of defeating Mr. Bryan.

"The tariff is the big issue in the coming campaign. The others are subordinate to that. I believe in the legitimate combination of capital, and I do not believe in the destruction of the corporation system. I do not believe in Government ownership of railroads. I believe in Government regulation, but not ownership."

In an address at a luncheon given to him by the Wholesalers' Association, he said:

"The problem of the future is the government of America by Americans. In the working out of this problem I believe we must obliterate the imaginary line between the United States of America and the Candian States of America. I can see no reason for the division. I believe that the flag bearing the stars and stripes must finally float from Bering Sea to the Gulf of Mexico. If the products of the business men of Detroit went free and unhampered into Canada perhaps the flag would follow them into that country."



THE REV. DR. MORGAN DIX.

ability was being recognized his father was serving in the War of the Rebellion. The closing years of Gen. Dix's life were filled with honor, and after serving as Minister to France he was elected Governor of New York in 1872.

Author and Litterateur.

Dr. Dix did much literary work. He wrote with facility, and his commentaries and sermons have been published. He wrote "Memoirs of John A. Dix" and a "History of Trinity Parish." His talents in a literary way have been recognized by the universities of the English-speaking countries, and he held degrees from Oxford, Princeton, Harvard, Columbia, and the University of the South. His library in his home contains many interesting volumes, including mediaeval manuscripts and many hand illuminated missals and religious books. There are also a collection of Americana and some rare first editions.

Dr. Dix found great happiness in his library, and when he accompanied his family to their country home at Cedarhurst, L. I., many of his favorite volumes would be shipped thither for his use during the Summer.

As a clergyman Dr. Dix was unusually serene in the pulpit. His methods were never sensational, and he spoke always in his natural voice. His voice's fine carrying quality made it possible for him to be heard in the far nooks of old Trinity, and even as he grew older his delivery was clear and unstrained. Dr. Dix had a priestly look, his countenance being ascetic and his face clean shaven.

Dr. Dix's sermons were of fine literary quality, and devoid of affectation. For years he was a close friend of J. Pierpont Morgan, and the two men had many things in common, especially their love of rare books.

PENNSYLVANIA OUT FOR KNOX.

The Platform Calls for a Review of Tariff Legislation.

HARRISBURG, Penn., April 29.—The Republican State Convention, which met here to-day, reaffirmed the action taken by the State Convention last year, when United States Senator Philander C. Knox was placed before the Republicans of the country as Pennsylvania's choice for the Presidential nomination. The resolutions adopted strongly indorse the Senator for the nomination and also praise President Roosevelt's Administration.

The platform calls for a review by the next Congress of tariff legislation to the end that modifications may be made to meet political conditions.

NO VERMONT INSTRUCTIONS.

Delegates at Large to Chicago Include Senator Dillingham and Gov. Proctor.

BURLINGTON, Vt., April 29.—Four uninstructed and unpledged delegates at large to the Republican National Convention at Chicago were elected at the State Convention here to-day. The platform adopted favors a more elastic currency and a revision of "some tariff schedules" with "the principle of protection always kept prominently in mind."

TIDE FOR HUGHES FOR SECOND TERM

Belief That He Will Run if His Reform Measures Fail at Extra Session.

OPPOSED BY THE MACHINE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 29.—There are indications that the people, or a majority of them, desire that Gov. Hughes again place himself in position for the Gubernatorial nomination, after the Chicago Convention.

When the Senate failed to pass the anti-race track gambling bills close friends of the Governor said that he would stand for a renomination, and, coming back to Albany, would persistently keep at it until the Legislature passed his reform measures. Since that time public sentiment has been crystallizing, and to-day people and newspapers are demanding of the Governor that he take a renomination.

But the Governor will not say whether he will accept a renomination. It is believed, however, that should the extra session fail to pass his reform measures, viz.: Placing telephone and telegraph companies under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission, direct voting at the primaries, adoption of the Massachusetts ballot, and the anti-race track gambling bills, that he will be forced by the circumstances and the verdict of the people to ask for a renomination.

From every section of the State comes word of a strong sentiment in favor of the return of the Governor for the next two years. At the same time there is a determination among the machine Republicans to eliminate Hughes.

There are some Republicans who say that if Gov. Hughes is renominated that he will surely be defeated at the election, and that therefore if he is rejected by the State Convention the defeat of the candidate selected would be no worse than to lose with him.

There was talk of naming M. Lynn Bruce for Governor this year, with James W. Wadsworth for Lieutenant Governor. There was also another combination being worked up in the central and western part of the State for Wadsworth for Governor and Senator Horace White for Lieutenant Governor.

But the growing tide for Hughes seems to engulf these tentative tickets. Then the Federal machine got to work and sent Cortelyou through the centre of the State last week. In his speeches Mr. Cortelyou did not praise Hughes much. Then followed the talk of Cortelyou for Governor of New York.

Everything now is waiting for the results of the extraordinary session of the Legislature which is coming too close to the date of the Republican National Convention to please the machine Republicans.

SHAM BATTLE FOR SENATOR.

But Hughes May Stir Things Up in Niagara-Orleans District.

Only the heralded invasion by Gov. Hughes will prevent the Senatorial contest in the Niagara-Orleans district from deteriorating into a sham battle. This is made clear by statements from both the Republican and Democratic camps.

At present, with the special election to fill the seat of Senator Stanislaus P. Franchot, who died recently, only two weeks off, both Republican and Democratic forces are resting on their oars, and there is little probability of any activity until Gov. Hughes begins his speech-making tour of the district next week.

Deputy State Treasurer George W. Batten, who is the Democratic leader of Niagara County, and the controlling factor in the Senatorial District on the Democratic side, was in the city yesterday, and said he had no intention of returning to Lockport to start the campaign until next Monday.

The Democrats, according to Mr. Batten, have not planned to have any meetings, and have given no thought to issues. Yet Mr. Batten said he expected a Democratic victory.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 29.—Gov. Hughes announced to-day that he expects to make several speeches in the Forty-seventh (Niagara-Orleans) Senatorial District in support of his recommendation to abolish gambling at race tracks. The Governor has called a special election in that district for May 12, when a successor to the late Senator Franchot is to be elected.

The Governor plans to speak on May 8 and 9 at several cities and villages in the Forty-seventh Senatorial District, including Niagara Falls, Lockport, North Tonawanda, Medina, Albion, and Holly.

CONNECTICUT FAILS TO INDORSE BRYAN

DELEGATES UNINSTRUCTED

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 29.—Three different resolutions calling for indorsement of William Jennings Bryan as candidate for President were thrown out by the committee at the Connecticut Democratic Convention to-day.

Even a weak resolution reaffirming allegiance to the principles of Government enunciated and expounded by the great Democratic statesmen, Thomas Jefferson and William Jennings Bryan, was held up by a Gold Democrat till the name "Andrew Jackson and Grover Cleveland" were added to those of Jefferson and Bryan. Then the resolution was unanimously adopted.

Anti-Bryan men ran the convention. Ex-Gov. Thomas M. Waller was Permanent Chairman and Mayor William E. Thoms of Waterbury was Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions. Waller has regularly bolted Bryan, and to-day he said that he sat in the Chicago Convention hall and cheered Bryan's "cross of gold" speech not because he believed in what Bryan said, but because he liked the way he said it.

Of the fourteen delegates to go to Denver unfettered by instructions only six have declared a preference for Bryan. Alexander Troup is to lead the fight for Bryan as his close personal friend at Denver, and John J. Walsh, the other delegate at large, has been both a Bryan supporter and opponent at different times.

From this Troup's district, Louis Fox of Branford, who is hostile to Bryan, was chosen as delegate.

Mayor Cummings of Stamford told the convention that Democracy had suffered its day of exile and was about to return to power.

The delegation to Denver will be as follows:

At Large—John J. Walsh of South Norwalk and Alexander Troup of New Haven; by districts—Henry C. Ney of Farmington, Louis A. Fisk of Branford, Frank P. Fenton of Windham, and Meibert B. Cary of Ridgefield; by counties—Henry J. McManus of Hartford, Thomas Noone of Vernon, William Kennedy of Naugatuck, Rollin N. Tyler of Haddam, Tyron Robertson of Montville, Oscar Ross of Thompson, T. M. Cullinane of Bridgeport, James L. Farley of Torrington.

WHERE BRYAN STANDS NOW.

534 Delegates Out of 1,002 Now Favor Him; 468 Against Him.

Events of the last ten days have made it evident to students of the political situation that William Jennings Bryan may not, after all, be the Democratic nominee for the Presidency. Almost every move that has been made by the Democrats since Mr. Bryan last visited New York has been against him. The defeat of a Bryan resolution in the Connecticut State Convention yesterday was the most crushing blow of all, for Connecticut was the one State in the New England group where Bryan was believed to be strong.

Besides Connecticut Bryan has virtually lost South Carolina and Georgia, in both of which States he was thought to have a fair chance. They will send uninstructed delegations, according to the best obtainable information. In addition he has lost what chance he had of picking up a few votes in New Jersey, where the unit rule and anti-Bryan instructions have been adopted. This is how the States stand at present:

INSTRUCTED FOR OR FAVORING BRYAN.
Alabama	22	Nebraska	16
Arkansas	18	Nevada	6
Colorado	10	North Dakota	5
Florida	10	Ohio	46
Indiana	30	Oklahoma	14
Illinois	54	South Dakota	8
Iowa	26	Tennessee	24
Idaho	6	Texas	36
Kansas	20	Utah	6
Kentucky	26	West Virginia	14
Michigan	28	Wisconsin	24
Mississippi	20	Wyoming	6
Missouri	36	Territories	12
Montana	6
Total			534

UNINSTRUCTED OR ANTI-BRYAN.
California	20	New York	78
Connecticut	14	North Carolina	24
Delaware	6	Oregon	8
Georgia	26	Pennsylvania	68
Louisiana	18	Rhode Island	8
Maine	12	South Carolina	18
Maryland	16	Vermont	8
Massachusetts	32	Virginia	24
Minnesota	22	Washington	10
New Hampshire	8	Territories, &c.	24
New Jersey	24
Total			468

In the Democratic Convention it takes two-thirds of the total vote of 1,002, that is 668, to nominate. It is therefore evident that even should Mr. Bryan show surprising strength in some of the States now classed as anti-Bryan, he will have to make an actual gain of 134 votes to be nominated on the first ballot. The total vote in all the States that can in any way be classed as doubtful at present would not be 134.

"Bob" Davis for Bryan, Willy Nilly.

Robert Davis, the Democratic leader of Hudson County, who was defeated in the State Convention by James Smith, Jr., yesterday announced that he would vote for Bryan regardless of the unit rule. That rule was not regularly adopted, he said, and he did not propose to be bound by it. He said there were at least eight Bryan men in the New Jersey delegation. "If I had agreed to desert Bryan I could have been delegate at large," said Mr. Davis, "but I am no traitor; I am for Bryan."

HEARST MEN GET READY.

Independence Party to Hold State Convention Here on Saturday.

The Independence Party will hold its State Convention at Carnegie Hall on Saturday evening for the election of four delegates at large to the National Convention at Chicago. The Independence Party is the Hearst organization.

Mr. Hearst, as Chairman of the State Committee, will probably call the convention to order when it assembles at 8 o'clock on Saturday evening. Prior to the convention proper, the State Committee will meet to make final arrangements and hear evidence on any contests that may arise. The Congressional District conventions to elect delegates and alternates to the National Convention are also scheduled in New York County for Saturday afternoon.

The Independence Party National Convention will assemble in Chicago late in July, after the Democratic National Convention has been held.

CONFERENCE OF DELEGATES.

Row May Follow If There Is an Attempt to Bind All to Hughes.

On the eve of the conference of delegates to the Republican National Convention, which is scheduled to meet at the Hotel Astor at 10 o'clock this morning, its exact purpose is still unknown to the public.

Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, head of the National Hughes League and one of the delegates at large by whom the call for the conference was issued, yesterday declined to enlighten inquirers on the subject beyond referring them to the call itself, which he then made public. This document reads:

New York, April 14, 1908.

Dear Sir: The Republican Convention on Saturday last directed the delegates then chosen to "present the name of Gov. Hughes to the National Republican Convention at Chicago as New York's candidate, and to use all honorable means to bring about his nomination for President of the United States."

Under these directions the responsibility for his nomination at Chicago largely rests upon the delegation from New York. Accordingly we invite you to a conference at the Manhattan Hotel, this city, on Thursday, April 30, at 10 o'clock in the morning. Will you kindly let Gen. Woodford know, at your earliest convenience, if you can attend? Please come prepared to stay over the next day—that is, long enough to map out a well-defined plan of campaign, for which we are already at work trying to provide ways and means.

Our colleague, Mr. Butler, is now in Europe, and will not return until June 1, proximo. This explains the absence of his name from this invitation.

Very truly yours,
STEWART L. WOODFORD,
SETH LOW,
FREDERICK R. HAZARD,
Delegates at Large.

According to announcement made last night, about fifty of the seventy-eight delegates from this State will be in attendance when the conference is called to order this morning.

The proposition of convening the delegation prior to the arrival of the delegates in the convention city is a novel one. Many of the Republican leaders who are not exactly friendly to the candidacy of Gov. Hughes and who as district delegates will be entitled to attend it said yesterday that if any effort were made to adopt the unit rule or to try to bind the district delegates to the resolutions adopted at the State Convention, which they regard as binding only on the delegates at large, there would be trouble.

The assertion was made last night by a person closely identified with the calling of the conference that no such attempt would be made, and that there would be nothing but "friendly talk" over the situation that is likely to confront the delegates when they reach Chicago, and how to meet it.

It was announced last night that permanent headquarters for the Republican delegation would be opened at the Hotel Astor to-morrow. Gov. Hughes, when he is in this city, makes that hotel his home.

ROSWELL WANTS ROOSEVELT.

Citizens of Home of President's Mother Petition Republican Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 29.—Two hundred citizens of Roswell, Ga., the home of President Roosevelt's mother, have signed a petition asking the Republican National Convention to name the President for another term. The signers are nearly all Democrats and Populists, as there are only a few white Republicans in Roswell.

It was drawn up and circulated by R. G. Brodwell, ex-Mayor of Roswell. The first name signed is that of G. W. Wing, the present Mayor.

FIST FIGHT IN CONVENTION.

Roosevelt and Foraker Forces Clash in Mississippi—Pistol Is Drawn.

JACKSON, Miss., April 29.—The Republican State Convention, held to-day, proved rather tumultuous, a lively fisticuff preceding the opening of the session, when a number of those who favored the selection of Senator Foraker for the Presidential nomination attempted to force their way into the convention, which was controlled by the supporters of President Roosevelt and the policies of the present National Administration.

Quiet was restored when a special officer, stationed at the door of the convention hall, drew his pistol and threatened to shoot any one who attempted further to force an entrance.

The outcome was the holding of two conventions, one faction indorsing the National Administration and selecting delegates known to be favorable to the policies of President Roosevelt. Delegates selected from the State at large are L. B. Mosely, Jackson; J. B. Yellowly, Madison; Charles Banks Mounds and W. E. Mollison of Vicksburg.

The other wing elected a full list of delegates, adopted resolutions denouncing the present National Administration, and instructed their delegates to vote for Senator Foraker for the Presidential nomination.

Maine Republicans Uninstructed.

WATERVILLE, Me., April 29.—Uninstructed delegates and alternates to the Republican Convention at Chicago were chosen by the Third District Republican Convention here to-day. The delegates are Forest Goodwin of Skowhegan and Byron Boyd of Augusta. F. B. Guernsey of Foxcroft and Dr. F. A. Chandler of Addson were chosen delegates by the Fourth District Republican Convention. They are also uninstructed.

FANATIC'S CHILD SACRIFICED.

Irene Smith Was Offered by Her Father to be Killed by Uncle.

EASTON, Penn., April 29.—Coroner Fetherlof at Nazareth, near here, this afternoon began an inquest into the death of Irene May Smith, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith of Alliance, who was offered as a sacrifice by her parents and uncle, members of the fanatic religious sect whose actions have startled the community. The Smiths and Bachman, who is an uncle of the child and who killed her during his frenzy, are in the county jail.

Bachman insists that the child was possessed of the devil and that he killed her by command from heaven. He maintains that he did no wrong and that God will protect him. He cries out from his cell that he is to be crucified and pleads with the jailer to hurry the execution that he may appear before the throne of God who sent him to earth to perform a great mission for the salvation of mankind.

Mrs. Smith is rational and realizes the gravity of the situation. She declares the religion she and her husband adopted is a myth and that they were not acting by direction of God. She never had faith in the teachings of the sect, but joined them in order to keep peace in the family.

The Coroner's jury late to-day rendered a verdict charging Robert Bachman with the murder of Irene May Smith. The surgeons who made the post-mortem examination found that death was due to strangulation. Bachman will be formally charged with the murder in the morning.

Darrell Jury Disagrees.

The trial of a suit brought by George F. Darrell, Trustee in bankruptcy in behalf of the creditors of J. Steinburg, formerly a wholesale clothing jobber at 212 Canal Street, to recover $18,450 from Louis Ullman, auctioneer, of 26 East Houston Street, which has occupied the attention of Judge Hough, sitting in the United States District Court for fourteen days, came to naught by the disagreement of the jury late last night. Trustee Darrell, during the course of the suit, charged that Steinburg and Ullman in October, 1906, conspired to defraud the former's creditors.

Annual Mass for Night Workers.

The night workers will celebrate their seventh annual mass next Sunday at St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Church in Duane Street, near City Hall Place, at 2:30 A. M. Hans Kronold, the 'cellist, will give a recital, and Mrs. A. Devin, contralto of the Catholic Summer School; Peter J. Abbott, a tenor, and D. A. Sheehan, soloist of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Jersey City, N. J., will sing. The choir of sixty voices will interpret the hymn to the Pope.

and a Free Library of Pianola Rolls

DR. MELVIL DEWEY, at the time he was New York State Librarian, made a startling prophecy in one of his public addresses.

He predicted that the day was not far distant when all libraries which aim to be completely equipped, would have large collections of Pianola rolls to be loaned as freely and unhesitatingly as books.

"Why should not the public borrow songs of Schubert as well as songs of Tennyson?" asked Dr. Dewey.

The Evanston, Ill., Public Library has put Dr. Dewey's idea into practical operation. A Weber Pianola Piano and a collection of 500 carefully selected music-rolls are now at the service of Evanston residents. Those who own Pianolas can take the rolls home, while others can play them in the library's music-room.

It is an impressive thought that lies back of this innovation, and this is the thought:

The Pianola has taken Music out of the class of the so-called ACCOMPLISHMENTS — has made it the universal possession of the MANY, rather than an exclusive art to be enjoyed by the privileged few.

It is a noteworthy fact that it is always the Pianola that is selected by those who buy with a full knowledge of the comparative merits of the different Piano-players. The Pianola is the first instrument of the kind to be purchased for a public library, just as it was the first instrument to be installed in a college. To-day there are over 100 leading educational institutions that are using the Aeolian Company's instruments in their musical courses.

Musically and mechanically, the Pianola is universally recognized as standing at the head of its class, a fact amply proven by its great sale, exceeding that of all other Piano-players combined.

SATURDAY.

The celebration of the centennial of the founding of the Diocese of New York, which has been in progress all this week at St. Patrick's Cathedral, reached a point last night when the laity paid tribute to his Eminence Cardinal Logue, Archbishop of Armagh, Primate of All Ireland, and the one hundred and fourteenth successor of St. Patrick.

Carnegie Hall, where the meeting was held, was crowded to the doors, and the throng that was eager to cheer the venerable Cardinal and to kneel for his blessing outside as he passed in and out was so great that all traffic in Fifty-seventh Street between Sixth and Seventh Avenues was cut off by the police surrounding the building. Considerable difficulty was experienced in keeping clear a way for the Cardinal to and from his carriage.

Inside the building an ovation was given to the guest of honor. He was cheered by the assembled multitude until he started his brief speech and forced silence. Archbishop Farley shared in the ovation.

On the stage with the Cardinal were the Archbishops and other prelates of the church in America, the Papal Delegate, Diomede Falconio; priests from every part of the country, the Catholic Saengerbund, who were to furnish the singing for the evening; Morgan J. O'Brien, John J. Delany, W. Bourke Cockan, and many distinguished laymen, Judges, and men of the professions.

Mr. O'Brien Chairman.

Ex-Justice O'Brien was Chairman of the meeting. In his address he said:

"We must all be impressed with the conditions surrounding our meeting, the congratulations from President Roosevelt to Archbishop Farley, and from officials, citizens, and divines not of our faith, and the presence of many of our fellow-citizens who entertain religious convictions different from our own. What a change a hundred years has made.

"It is not so many years ago when the realization of such happy conditions would have been thought impracticable and visionary, for we know that at the beginning of the nineteenth century our religion and its teachers were persecuted, and the public sentiment against it was expressed in hostile laws and unjust discrimination.

"The century just passed will go down in history as one in which the greatest toleration in religion has been exhibited, and from the bottom of our hearts we can thank God that the days of bigotry, religious rancor, and bitterness have passed, and the reign of 'Peace and goodwill among men' has begun."

When Mr. O'Brien mentioned the name of President Roosevelt in the course of his speech the big audience cheered vociferously.

Archbishop Farley was introduced, and made an introductory speech for the Cardinal. He referred to the See from which the Primate came as the one that had received the faith before York or Canterbury, and that had held it undiminished through the 1,400 years since St. Patrick. He said that the faith of Ireland had been built up and maintained, not in times of prosperity but in times of adversity, and he uttered a word of advice and warning to the Catholics of New York to hold to their creed in times of prosperity, when there might be danger of the waning of the faith.

Greeting to the Cardinal.

"In the name of the 900 priests of the diocese, the suffragans of the province of New York, and the 1,200,000 Catholics here I want to thank the Cardinal for his visit and his participation in the celebration of our centennial," he said. "In the language that was rich in literature before Chaucer and Shakespeare wrote I want to bid him a hundred thousand welcomes."

After an address by John J. Delany, in which tribute was paid to the religious faithfulness of the Catholics of America, the Cardinal was introduced.

"I did not expect to make a speech," he said with a twinkle in his eyes as he looked over the audience. "But I have been pitchforked into it just as have been many of my countrymen before me. Still I would be lacking in gratitude if I did not say a word of thanks for the reception you have tendered me.

"It has been a reception that started before I put foot on the soil of the land, and which, I may say, I do not wish to see continued much longer, because a man can be killed in many ways, and being killed with kindness is one of the ways.

"I have always had the greatest admiration for your country. When our people in Ireland were bitterly oppressed they found here not only a home but an opportunity and a career for them. In my old age it has come about that I could visit you and behold the magnificent faith, zeal, and religious strength of the Catholics of New York.

"I have beheld the greatest evidence of it in the attendance on the celebration of your centennial and in this very gathering here. I feel that I have been more than repaid for the little trouble I experienced in crossing the ocean.

Where Faith Is Firm.

"We get cold in the old countries. The faith grows dim. It may be necessary to send over to this country representatives who will find here renewal of their spirit and faith as I have found it. When our faith becomes cold or tepid in the old countries of Europe I think it will prove a wise thing to have us come over here and have it renewed.

"This country is great in its institutions and its prosperity. It has made a place for itself among the nations of the earth. And yet prosperity may prove a corrupting element. If there is danger of that I believe that the principles of the Catholic Church will militate against it. These principles will prove an antidote.

"The safeguards of the home and the family placed by the Church will be a help to the Republic in the matter of divorce. Among a considerable number of the people of America it will be found that the sanctity and integrity of the family will be protected by their religious principles.

"Those of Ireland who have come here have found a country than which there is no other so free. It is a country where a man may step forward and say that if he is down in the world he has only himself to blame for it.

"And if you are patriots you will be good citizens and good Catholics, too. I trust that the American Republic will find no truer and more loyal sons than the Catholics of America. I will take back to Ireland with me very strong testimony to the cradle of the Irish race, testimony that the strength of the faith of the Catholics in this country is the strength of the faith of St. Patrick himself."

Mr. Fuller's Address.

The Cardinal was followed by Paul Fuller of the law firm of Coudert Brothers, who said in part:

"The day is far distant when an American statesman could demand that the religious toleration which lay at the base of our free Government should not be extended to those who believed in the headship of the Vicar of Christ, although those believers had imperiled life and fortune in the long struggle which made that Government possible.

"The day is far distant when the ministrations of devoted nuns could inspire in any community such dread that the torch of the incendiary should be resorted to as the only defense against so portentous an evil. The day is past when repentant restitution, brought about by the beneficent influence of the confessional, could be made the basis for an attack upon the secrecy that protects the sacrament of justice and forgiveness and reformation.

"The dark hours of prejudice and hate which made such things possible were replaced by the bright morning when appreciation followed misjudgment, and a Catholic Archbishop was called to the delicate and all-important mission of rectifying misguided foreign opinion concerning our beloved country in the day of her greatest trial."

Dr. James J. Walsh, a favorite lay orator with the Catholics, and one of the Faculty of Fordham University followed Mr. Fuller and said, in part:

"We have heard much in English-speaking countries of supposed opposition between the Church and education, but in the true history of education there is no factor more prominent than the Roman Catholic Church. This has been true now for over fifteen centuries, ever since the time when she came to her own as the mistress of the civilized world in the fourth century.

"In every new phase of education since she has been a leader, and always among the most brilliant workers in each educational renewal her faithful sons have been the most prominent.

"When the genuine history of education here in America will be written a generation or more from now one of the most interesting chapters in it will be that of Catholic education. It will tell how the poorest of the churches, yet the one having the most members who needed most education, dared to ignore the liberal provision for education made by the State and assumed the burden of educating her own children, because she would have them Christians first and scholars after, and because she would not have their minds educated without having their wills trained, nor their intellects cultivated without training of character."

Message from the Mayor.

Mayor McClellan's official recognition of the centennial was in the form of a letter to Archbishop Farley, the reading of which caused much applause. The letter was as follows:

"To his Grace, the Most Reverend the Archbishop of New York.

"Your Grace:

"In offering to you and to the Archdiocese of New York my most sincere congratulations on its centennial anniversary I wish also to record the city's appreciation of that which the Roman Catholic Church has done for New York.

"She has lent her kindest hand to city, State, and Nation in caring for an immigration that has provided to us an industrious, law-abiding, God-fearing citizenry. She has made her children here patriotic as well as pious. She has baptized, nursed, fed, and taught them, sent her priests and her nuns with them into our battles, and with it all, the better Americans they were the more she loved them, and the more they loved her the better Americans they became.

"It has been thus, not only during the hundred years you celebrate, but from the moment Carroll signed the Declaration until to-day, when every Roman Catholic Church in the diocese is bright with the country's flag.

"It is a great force for right that you marshal; a great power for good that you display in this centenary. You may be more proud of the force and the power in the knowledge that America needs them as you need them, ever to stand as a breakwall against anarchy and its black offspring.

"As your church has stood for law and order—and that relation now means more to the City of New York than it has ever meant—may she still stand for them ready, steady, unflinching, uncompromising, in all of our Republic's centuries to come. Respectfully,

"GEORGE B. McCLELLAN,
"Mayor."

Mr. Cockran's Speech.

W. Bourke Cockran, speaking of the effect of the Catholic Church's faith and principles on the American form of Government, said:

"The rising tide of Socialism, the product of godless schools, a loosened marriage tie, threaten the integrity of the republican Government and the existence of organized society. But if these elements of danger remain clouding the horizon of the republic, this magnificent gathering, the religious ceremonies which have preceded it, the imposing demonstration which will follow it on Saturday, combine to show how these clouds will be dispelled.

"The faith from which rational republicanism was born is the source by which it must be preserved. The growth of Catholicism, which this centenary makes certain, will avert the danger that threatens the Republic, cure the evil that afflicts it, extend the benefits that bless it.

"The danger that threatens this Nation is Socialism; the evil that afflicts it is divorce, which by loosening the marriage tie is undermining the foundations of the Christian state. Chief among the benefits that bless us is education, through which the life of the Republic must be saved.

Church Versus Socialism.

"As Catholicism grows all danger of Socialism must be defeated—that social leprosy, divorce, will be expelled from our system, the scope of education will be extended until it becomes in very fact the exhaustless fountain of meritorious citizenship. The antagonism between Christianity and Socialism is inherent and therefore irreconcilable.

"Socialism, however it may be disguised by its own votaries, is an attempt to revive that servitude in labor and despotism in government against which Catholicism has always contended, and after eighteen centuries of strenuous conflict has finally overthrown.

"The Socialist, like the old Roman imperialist, believes that if industry be left to the free exercise of each individual, one element of the community will dominate the other, and abuse its dominance for plunder and oppression. The capitalist, he insists, will exploit and oppress the laborer under a system of free production, while the old Roman believed that if the laborer were left free to dispose of his own labor he would abuse his freedom by declining to work.

"The first step toward checking Socialism is to repair the breaches made by free-thinking philosophy in the foundation of republicanism, and by strengthening the influences which operate to make order the handmaid of labor and prosperity its fruit.

"The position of the Church toward divorce was violently questioned by so-called liberals a few years ago. To-day her attitude is respected and praised by every one.

The Peril of Society.

"To-day every one concedes divorce is threatening the very foundations of society. Statesmanship is largely occupied in trying to avert the perils involved, but it is still seeking for some place short of complete adhesion to the Catholic doctrine, where public conscience may be satisfied. But there is none."

Mr. Cockran, in discussing the educational branch of the Church's work, declared the system of public schools to be an agnostic system. He said:

"It is said that the existing system is non-sectarian, and that we who would overthrow it aim at sectarian education. I deny it. Were the actual system truly non-sectarian we would be its chief supporters. It is not non-sectarian. It is agnostic. I defy any one seeking to establish an agnostic system of education to change in one particular the system maintained by the State now. We are the non-sectarian. We ask for ourselves nothing that we would not extend to all others.

"Agnostics should have the same right as others if the existing system were not sufficiently godless to satisfy them. We are willing that the agnostic shall share the school fund, but we are not willing to give him the exclusive right to the whole of it."

6,500 CHILDREN AT MASS.

Delegations from Parochial Schools Fill the Cathedral.

The Catholic parochial school children of New York had the cathedral to themselves yesterday, when they participated in the celebration of a solemn Pontifical mass. Cardinal Logue, Archbishop Farley, and all of the distinguished prelates of the Church in the city for the centennial attended the mass in their priestly vestments.

Bishop Thomas M. A. Burke of Albany was the celebrant of the mass, with Mgr. J. S. M. Lynch assistant priest, the Rev. Thomas A. Thornton deacon, and the Rev. Joseph F. Smith sub-deacon. The Very Rev. J. R. Meagher preached the sermon.

Ten per cent. of the total of 65,000 parochial pupils were selected from the various schools to participate in the celebration. The 6,500 boys and girls were taken to the cathedral in all sorts of vehicles, carriages, special street cars on the Madison Avenue line, big "Seeing New York" automobiles, Fifth Avenue coaches, and scores came in creaking old Broadway stages, each drawn by ten horses. One of these vehicles was hit by an automobile at Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue, but none of the children was hurt.

The boys from St. Michael's School were dressed in black suits with deep white collars, and they wore Papal and American flags in their lapel buttonholes. The girls of Our Lady of Lourdes School were all dressed in white and wore deep sashes of yellow, the white and gold making the Papal colors.

No adults were seated in the cathedral, the entire space being reserved for the children. Father J. J. Keane of the Church of the Holy Name directed the singing of children from the pulpit. The children had been well rehearsed and sang in good time, their 6,500 voices filling the cathedral with treble melody. So impressed was Cardinal Logue that he asked Archbishop Farley to thank the children for him and tell them how much he appreciated their share in the celebration of the centennial.

The text of the sermon by Father Meagher was "Suffer Little Children to Come Unto Me." He paid high tribute to Archbishop Farley for the work he had done in building up the Church's school system in his Archdiocese. He pointed out that in his six years as Archbishop the number of schools had been increased by one-fourth and the pupils from 40,000 to 65,000.

Cardinal Logue's deacons of honor were Mgr. McGean and Mgr. Kearney. Mgr. McCready was the priest of honor at the mass, and Archbishop Farley's deacons of honor were Mgr. Lavelle and Mgr. Mooney. Chancellor Hayes was the major master of ceremonies, directing the conduct of the mass, and Father Byrne assisted him.

All of the 81 schools of the diocese were represented. Twenty-three teaching orders of the Church sent representatives with bands of children. The old Cathedral sent about 220 children, the Church of the Sacred Heart 270, the Church of the Immaculate Conception nearly 200, St. Joseph's, St. Gabriel's, the Holy Cross, and the other parishes delegation of from 50 to 200.

Long as the mass was, only three girls were overtaxed. They fainted and were taken to the open air to be revived quickly. One of them, however, was ill enough to require a call for a physician. She was sent away in an ambulance.

WOMAN COLLAPSES IN STREET.

Widow from Nutley, N. J., Exhausted at Catholic Celebration.

A woman, said by the police to be Mrs. Alice Williams, a widow, of Nutley, N. J., collapsed at the corner of Forty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue last evening. She had been attending the Catholic diocesan centennial celebration and was exhausted from standing.

She was picked up unconscious by Patrolman John Quigley of the Traffic Squad and carried to the rooms of the Fifth Avenue Art Gallery, where an auction was in progress. The patrolman left the unconscious woman there in charge of several other women who were attending the auction while he called an ambulance. Dr. Case of the Flower Hospital took Mrs. Williams to that institution. He said she was suffering from complete nervous exhaustion.

FRANK GOULD GETS BACK.

Again in His Hotel Apartments Without Seeing His Wife.

Frank Jay Gould arrived yesterday morning from his two weeks' stay in Hot Springs, Va. He went directly to his office at 195 Broadway, and late in the afternoon returned to the Plaza, where he has a suite of rooms. Mr. Gould did not visit his wife, who is living at 834 Fifth Avenue, last night. He dined alone with Mr. Harned, his secretary.

Mr. Gould did not arrive in New York by the regular Hot Springs train. When he left Hot Springs Tuesday night he found that a reporter from a New York newspaper had been assigned to accompany him, and have an interview regarding Mr. Gould's marital difficulties. Mr. Gould went to his stateroom, and remained there until early yesterday morning.

WON'T LOWER COAST FARES.

McCrea Says Pennsylvania Made But 4 Per Cent. on This Business.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—President McCrea of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to-day told a delegation representing the business interests of Atlantic City and other New Jersey seashore resorts that the railroad fares would not be reduced. He declared that last year the Reading Railway, which has also raised the rates, lost $200,000 on its seashore traffic, and that the Pennsylvania made only 4 per cent. on this business, although it paid a 7 per cent. dividend.

LEFT HUSBAND DYING IN HOME IN IRELAND

Mrs. Clary, Arrested on the Campania, Will Be Sent Back on Saturday.

HIS DEATHBED STATEMENT

Said He Became Ill After Wife Gave Him a Drink—Died Soon After She Sailed.

Acting on advices received by the British Consulate here from the Inspector General of the Irish Police, Central Office detectives yesterday detained Mrs. Margaret Clary and held temporarily Mrs. Catherine Bowen, both of Clare-Morris, County Mayo, Ireland, who arrived on the Campania. Mrs. Clary is wanted in Ireland in connection with the death of her husband, who, it is alleged, died of an overdose of medicine.

It appears that on April 23 Mrs. Clary, a handsome young woman, left the home of her husband, a farmer, who had been ill for some time. She had nursed him. She went to Queenstown, and there took passage on the Campania in the steerage on April 24. Soon after she left her husband died.

The Irish police wired a full description of her to the British Consulate here, which was turned over to Inspector McCafferty, who assigned Detectives Leeson, Moody, and Aikman to go down to the revenue cutter yesterday morning to meet the vessel.

The detectives could find no one on board named Margaret Clary, but approached a handsome, buxom young Irishwoman, about 25 years old, who answered the description sent from Ireland, and told her they were quite sure she was Mrs. Clary.

"I am not," she declared. "My name is McCormick, and this is my sister Catherine."

Later, however, she admitted that she was Mrs. Clary, and that her companion was Mrs. Catherine Bowen. When told that her husband had died of an overdose of medicine after she had left and that she was wanted in Ireland by the police to tell about it, she broke down.

She said she knew nothing about her husband's death; that he had been slightly ill when she left home, but that she had had no idea that he was in danger of dying. Mrs. Clary said she had started for America to find employment, and expected that in time her husband would follow her.

It developed that Mrs. Bowen knew nothing about the death of Mr. Clary, and hadn't been mentioned, moreover, in the messages from Ireland. It was decided, therefore, to set her free, but Mrs. Clary was detained at Ellis Island, and on Saturday will be sent back to Ireland on the Carmania.

DUBLIN, April 29.—An inquest was begun to-day at Clare-Morris, County Mayo, over the body of the young farmer, Thomas Clary, whose widow was to-day arrested in New York. According to the testimony given by a brother of Clary the couple, who were married two months ago, were unhappy.

About April 23, it was said, Clary complained of pains, and his wife went out ostensibly to get him some brandy, but did not return. Clary died four days later.

In his dying statement he declared he became ill after his wife had handed him a drink.

COLLEGE BOYS OF '68.

A City College Class Feel Young at Dinner with Their Old Teachers.

The City College class of '68 got together last night for a dinner at the Hotel Astor—the first in twenty years.

Chairman R. R. Bowker called to mind the personnel of the twenty-nine who got their diplomas in 1868 down at the building at Lexington Avenue and Twenty-third Street. Out of that number came eleven lawyers, four doctors, one clergyman, two editors, one chemist, three teachers, and eight who entered into different branches of business.

Among those who went into business was Stephen Kelly, President of the Fifth National Bank. He is almost blind now, but he had himself led to the dinner last night.

Since the commencement of 1868 eleven of the twenty-nine graduates have died. Of the eighteen now living twelve were at the dinner last night. All of these were of course in their sixties. But the "boys" had with them two instructors who had been in the college several years when the members of the class of '68 were raw freshmen, and thus the natural enthusiasm of college youth was repressed to seemly quiet dignity in the presence of age.

The instructors were Adolph Werner, who taught and still teaches English, and A. G. Compton, who had to do with sine and co-sine and other matters of "Math." in the sixties and now also.

John R. Sim, '68, who wrote the song for his class, was present. He, too, is a teacher in the college. The old song was again sung last night.

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR NOSE

If the nasal douche were to be found on every washstand with the cake of soap—and the human nose were to be cleansed—aseptically cleansed—every day, Catarrh, mouth-breathing and many of the preventable, contagious, death-dealing diseases that blot our civilization would cease to be.

SCHENCK'S ANTISEPTIC NASAL WASH AND GARGLE

is good for the nose, the throat and the mouth. It is a powerful antiseptic, yet so harmless that it may be taken internally for stomach disorders. It cleanses thoroughly. It heals and strengthens sore and tender surfaces. It drives away Catarrh. It is bland, non-irritating.

It leaves the nasal passages, the throat and the cavity of the mouth in cool, clear, clean and sanitary condition, fortified against contagion; used regularly it makes one contagion proof.

It is economical to use and it comes in plain bottles, 25c, 50c and $1.00 sizes, and in SCHENCK'S BOTTLE (pat.) Traveller's size, 50c.

SCHENCK'S SUBSTANTIAL NASAL DOUCHE

By all odds the best yet in nasal douches. Its design is scientifically correct. It is strongly made. It will not break readily. Price 25c each.

AMERICAN TRIUMPH IN FRENCH SALON

WARM PRAISE BY CRITICS

Place of Honor Given to H. O. Tanner —Works by Richard Miller and R. MacCameron Greatly Admired.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 29.—The critics are unanimous in attesting the preponderant part taken by Americans in this year's salon of the Société des Artistes Français, which was officially opened to-day by President Fallières. The place of honor is accorded to a large canvas by H. O. Tanner, the mulatto of Philadelphia, entitled "The Wise and Foolish Virgins." This picture is believed by many to be Mr. Tanner's masterpiece. Nearby, in the same room, is a striking portrait by Henry Hubbell, who also is attracting much attention.

Richard Miller, the young St. Louis painter, has, perhaps, scored the greatest success in the salon. Thiebault-Sisson, one of the foremost of the art critics of France, writing for the Temps, says:

"It is no longer necessary for Mr. Miller to exert himself to attract attention. Whether we wish it or not, he is a master. His mastery is not only due to the strength of his drawing, but to the taste of his composition and to his unfailing versatility, technique, and distinction of color. All these qualities are splendidly present in his portrait of two children, which is exhibited in this salon."

Frank Boggs presents a series of splendid water colors. F. A. Bridgman exhibits a typical Arabian café full of Oriental sunlight and color. Richard Hartshorne has another success in his "Chess Players." This scene is placed in the corner of a typical Paris café with life-sized figures.

Lionel Walden, who long has been prominent as a painter of marines, exhibits two splendid pictures from the coast of Britanny. One of these represents sunlit breakers on a rocky coast; the other shows a quiet beach with two nude women sporting in the shallow water. Parke Dougherty of Philadelphia also shows two striking seascapes from the Britanny coast.

There was a crowd all of to-day around a large canvas painted by another American, R. MacCameron, for the Anti-Alcoholic League. This picture, which is entitled "Three Friends," might have been called "Absinthe Drinkers." Two men and a woman are seated in a low café. On a table before them are three glasses of the pale green liquid, the ravages of which already are seen in their faces. The picture is severely brutal and tremendously impressive; the drawing is strong and incisive; its color effect is in black and green.

Two of the best landscapes in the salon are exhibited by W. T. Silva, formerly of Chattanooga. One shows pine trees and sand dunes, the other a quiet French canal. Aston Knight attracts attention with his excellent view of Niagara. His father, Ridgway Knight, has two typical country scenes.

Many critics say the day when French artists found an unlimited market for their works in the United States is ended. This salon, at any rate, shows that America is capable of producing its own art. The time is not far distant when American amateurs will appreciate this fact and pay attention to American talent instead of looking to Paris.

Among the French painters the best thing in the salon undoubtedly is the great patriotic painting by Edouard Detaille, entitled "Chant du Depart." This is a splendidly stirring panorama of a ragged regiment marching joyously along to the music of a martial song, the regiment headed by the allegorical figure "Republique," seated on a winged horse. The picture is a splendid vision of the warlike soul of the old French nation.

Another masterpiece is the "Apotheosis of Beethoven," by Jean Paul Laurens. A vast orchestra is seated about the statue of the composer, while the spirit of his compositions is represented by a cloud of winged figures disappearing overhead into sunlight.

The work of the three great masters, Jules Lefebvre, Robert-Fleurry, and Harpignies, will naturally come in for a great share of attention. Harpignies's two landscapes, although in his traditional style, show the effects of his old age, but very little of Lefebvre's best work surpasses an exquisite head of "Lea" about fifteen inches square, which he shows. Robert-Fleurry exhibits a charming and convincing figure of a musing woman with her arms resting on a book in her lap.

Joseph Bail has surpassed himself in the effect of lamplight upon figures and still life in a comparatively small canvas—"The Evening Meal"—a scene in the servants' hall of an old Auvergne chateau. A. Penot shows two remarkably fine nude figures. Albert Larteau, hitherto little known, jumps into fame with a wonderful composition representing a group of soldiers in a dingy railway compartment lighted by a dim oil lamp. Paul Sieffert contributes a powerful group of tired Italian immigrants camping out on a railroad platform.

Other Americans represented are:

Martha Baker, Chicago; Benjamin J. Bowen, Boston; Alice Chittenden, San Francisco; Mrs. A. Vose Congdon and Thomas A. Congdon, New York; John da Costa, New York; Miss C. C. Critcher, Virginia; Mrs. Mattie Dube, Julia Dwight, Hadley, Mass.; Charles Warren Eaton, Albany; Edward B. Fielde, F. F. Furman, El Paso; O. B. Gaensslen, Chicago; Albert Gigham, Gordon Batchelor, Frankfort, Ky.; Mary Green Blumenschein, P. F. Gross, Allentown, Penn.; Marie Guedon, New Orleans; Howard M. Hartshorne, New York; Robert Hemings, Boston; H. S. Hubbell, Miss E. A. Hunt, H. C. Hyde, Chicago; W. H. Hyde, New York; Genevieve Ingersoll, Lucille Joullin, Marie S. Ker, Chicago; Miss A. E. Klumpke, San Francisco; Miss C. J. Kretzinger, Chicago; S. S. Landelle, John S. Lewis, E. D. MacDowell, William Mackillop, Philadelphia; Miss M. J. Macliane Johnson, Miss A. Matthews, Chicago; Leo Meiziner, New York; Oscar Miller, Louise Morrison, Boston; A. O'Kelly, New York; Miss A. Oppenheim, New York; F. P. Paulus, Detroit; Alf Pazolt, Boston; George W. Pecknell, Springfield; C. E. Polowetski, New York; E. W. Reddfield, Centre Bridge, Penn.; Chauncey Ryder, Danbury; S. Kent Saunders, W. P. Silva, Savannah, Ga.; Freeman W. Simmonds, Fredonia; Miss E. Stuart, Virginia; James Sullivan, Boston; F. D. Sutton, New York; George H. Taggart, New York; Gabriel Thompson, Boston; John E. Thompson, Buffalo; F. H. Tompkins, New York; Robert Vonnoh, Hartford; Lionel Walden, Norwich; W. F. Warden and Susan Watkins, California.

Among the noteworthy pieces of statuary is an Indian chief in bronze by S. A. Frye and an Indian girl by Salvatore F. Bilotti, both sculptors being Americans.

ST. PAUL BADLY DAMAGED.

New Stem Will Have to be Cast for the American Liner.

LONDON, April 29.—The official survey of the American Line steamer St. Paul reveals that she sustained much greater damage in the collision with the cruiser Gladiator than was at first thought.

Her keel stem was completely carried away below the twenty-six-foot mark, and her plates were injured for a distance of twenty feet. It will be necessary to cast a new stem, and the ship probably will not be able to sail May 23, according to her schedule.

The American Line has subscribed $2,500 to the relief fund for the families of the men of the cruiser Gladiator who lost their lives in the collision.

SOUTHAMPTON, April 29.—The steamer Kronprinzessin Cecilie, carrying the mails from the American liner St. Paul, left here this afternoon at 5 o'clock for New York. Among her passengers are Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff and Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stillman.

FILIPINOS FOR ECONOMY.

Assembly Makes Cuts in Budget Which Government May Oppose.

MANILA, April 29.—The Assembly Committee on Appropriations proposes a series of sweeping reductions in general expenses and salaries, reducing the budget roughly from 28,000,000 pesos to 20,000,000.

Plans have been made to cut the salaries of commissioners with portfolios to 20,000 pesos a year and commissioners without portfolios to 10,000 pesos. Reductions in the pay of Justices of the Supreme Court, Members of the Assembly, the Speaker, and other officers, are also proposed. It is also planned to reduce the constabulary force to 900.

It is expected that the Philippine Commission will oppose these sweeping reductions on the ground that they will impair the efficiency of the Government, and it is anticipated that this will provoke the first serious differences between the appointive and the elective branches of the Government.

POPE HAS SLIGHT COLD.

Able to Give Audiences, However—Interested in Celebration Here.

ROME, April 29.—Exaggerated reports are being circulated concerning the illness of the Pope, who is merely suffering from a slight cold. This has not even interrupted the giving of audiences. The Pope has recently received several thousand persons, many of them Americans.

The Pope has read with the greatest satisfaction dispatches concerning the celebration of the centennial of the New York Diocese, and the splendid reception given to Cardinal Logue, Primate of Ireland.

JUSTICE LEVENTRITT QUITS.

Associates on the Bench Present a Loving Cup to Him at Dinner.

Supreme Court Justice David Leventritt leaves the bench to-day to become head of the new law firm of Leventritt, Cook & Nathan. He was the guest at a farewell dinner last night at the Manhattan Club given by the Justices of the Appellate Division and the Supreme Court. All attended with the exception of Presiding Justice Patterson, who is still suffering fom eye trouble. Justice Ingraham was toastmaster.

A handsome loving cup by Tiffany was presented to Mr. Leventritt. On it were engraved the names of all his brother Justices. Speeches were made by many of the Justices, to which Justice Leventritt replied.

CHURCH JUST FOR CHILDREN.

Sewing Classes for Girls and Special Attention to Sports.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Children of Chicago will have a church entirely their own, to be known as the First Children's Church. To-morrow night 150 boys and girls will dedicate it.

William Filline will be the Superintendent of this juvenile church. He is a printer.

"I've been thinking of this for years," said Mr. Filline. "You see, the children don't like to go to a regular church, where there are nothing but grown-up people.

"There will be clubs for the boys and clubs for the girls, with especial attention to baseball and other outdoor games in the Summer, and checkers and authors and dominoes and similar games inside in bad weather.

"We shall teach the girls to sew, and perhaps how to cook, and other departments of domestic science.

EX-SENATOR CAMDEN'S WILL.

Bulk of Estate of About $30,000,000 Given to His Two Children.

Special to The New York Times.

WHEELING, West Va., April 29.—The will of ex-Senator J. N. Camden was admitted to probate to-day at Parkersburg. The bulk of his fortune, estimated at $30,000,000, goes to his two children, Johnson N. Camden, Jr., and Mrs. Anna T. Spillman.

The widow is to receive during her natural life an income of $30,000 a year in lieu of dower.

Out of Mrs. Spillman's share $4,000 a year is to be paid her husband, Gen. B. D. Spillman. Mrs. Spillman also must pay to her children $1,500 a year each until they arrive at the age of 21, and thereafter $2,500. At the age of 25, or at the date of marriage, each is to receive $25,000.

No Autos on Nantucket.

BOSTON, April 29.—The bill permitting the Selectmen of Nantucket to exclude automobiles from the streets of the island town between June 15 and Sept. 15 was signed to-day by Acting Gov. Draper.

Mount Etna in Eruption.

MESSINA, April 29.—Mount Etna is now in active eruption. At night the contrast between the flames from its cone and the snowcapped mountains is most picturesque.

Drought in Cuba Broken.

HAVANA, April 29.—The long drought which seriously affected the crops has been broken. The rains are now becoming general throughout the island.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

RABAT, Morocco, April 29.—Mulai Mafid, the so-called Sultan of the South, is reported here to have suffered a disaster and to have fled to Tadla, a town 128 miles southwest of Fez, and taken refuge with the Sidi Bendaoud tribe.

NAPLES, April 29.—Prince Helie de Sagan and Madame Anna Gould have postponed their departure for Rome until to-morrow morning.

VENICE, April 29.—Premier Giolitti and Prince Von Buelow, the Imperial Chancellor of Germany, had a cordial interview here to-day. The two statesmen are in complete accord on all questions of international policy.

THE HAGUE, April 29.—The committee having in hand the building of the Peace Palace with funds contributed by Andrew Carnegie for deliberations of The Hague Tribunal, &c., was awarded the contract for the construction of the foundation and basements. The contract price was $50,000.

LISBON, April 29.—The Portuguese Cortes reassembled to-day the eighty-second anniversary of the establishment of a Constitutional Government in Portugal. The royal mourning for the late King Carlos and his son was suspended for the occasion.

FALMOUTH, April 29.—The British steamer Atlantic, from Mobile and Norfolk for Rotterdam, put in here to-day and landed the crew of the British schooner Isalit, ninety-eight tons, at Falmouth, which had been run down and sunk by the steamer at sea.

Crippled Children's School to Open.

The new building of the Crippled Children's East Side Free School at 155 Henry Street will be dedicated at 8 o'clock this evening. The building, which was erected through the benevolence of the late Emanuel Lehman, will be formally accepted by Mrs. Henry Goldman, President of the society. Other addresses will be made by President Finley of the City College, Supt. Maxwell, Supreme Court Justice Leventritt, and the Rev. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes.

AMBASSADOR REID'S DAUGHTER ENGAGED

EARL OF DUDLEY'S BROTHER

Equerry in Waiting to King, Racing Man, Sportsman, and Six Feet High—Wedding This Summer.

LONDON, April 29.—The engagement of Miss Jean Reid, daughter of Whitelaw Reid, the American Ambassador, to the Hon. John Hubert Ward, brother of the Earl of Dudley, was announced to-day by Mr. and Mrs. Reid.

This announcement does not cause astonishment in London society, where the attachment of the young people has been well known for some time to a large number of their friends.

Mr. Ward is a favorite with King Edward, to whom he is an equerry in waiting, and attends the King and Queen at all state and social functions. He is popular at Court and in the exclusive social set and is well known as a racing man and an enthusiastic sportsman. He is six feet in height and has a well-knit figure.

He has no chance of succeeding to the title, insomuch as the Earl of Dudley has a large family. He received a legacy of $500,000 when he became of age, and has had other legacies since.

For a long time past Mr. Ward has attended all the social functions at Dorchester House, the Reids's residence, and he has dined and lunched there almost every day since Miss Reid's recent return from America. He met Miss Reid at the railroad station on her return from a trip to Paris this month.

The wedding will take place some time this Summer, but the exact date has not yet been fixed. It doubtless will be on the brilliant scale for which the American Embassy under the régime of Mr. Reid has become noted.

Miss Jean Templeton Reid is the only daughter of Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid. On the maternal side she is a granddaughter of D. O. Mills and a first cousin of Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps, Miss Beatrice Mills, and Ogden Mills, Jr. She has one brother, Ogden Mills Reid. She passed a great part of her early life at Ophir Hall, the country seat of her father, at White Plains, making occasional visits in California. She is an accomplished horsewoman, and is skilled in outdoor sports. She is an excellent musician, and speaks a number of languages fluently, including German and Italian.

She has steel blue eyes, brown hair, and vivid coloring, and is rather tall, like her father, with a slight, willowy figure. Being somewhat nearsighted she wears eyeglasses.

Until her début in 1904, Miss Reid was kept in seclusion, and one of her principal charms after her coming out was her girlish simplicity and enjoyment of social diversions.

Since the appointment of Whitelaw Reid to the Court of St. James's Miss Jean Reid has been a notable figure in the world of London society. On several occasions she has been reported engaged to various English noblemen, including Lord Brooke, the heir of the Earl of Warwick, and Lord Acheson, but these reports have been promptly denied by Mr. Reid.

Each year since going to London Miss Reid has visited the United States, and, owing to the feeble condition of her grandfather, D. O. Mills, she has passed the greater part of the last year in this country with her mother. Frequently during Mrs. Reid's absence from London Miss Reid has been the hostess at Dorchester House, the Ambassador's town residence in London, and at Wrest Park, his country seat.

Miss Reid is a great favorite of Princess "Pat," the beautiful daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and also of Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll. Several times Miss Reid has been a bridesmaid at fashionable weddings. One of the last where she officiated in that capacity was that of Lord Alastair Innes Ker, the brother of the Duke of Roxburghe, who married Miss Breese, the daughter of the late William Breese of this city.

Miss Reid was one of the first members of the Ladies' Four-in-Hand Driving Club of this city, of which Mrs. Thomas Hastings is President, and Mrs. Arthur Iselin Vice President. She has made her appearance in several of the club's parades, and in the one held year before last she had her father with her as her guest on the box seat.

The Hon. John Hubert Ward, who is a brother of the Earl of Dudley, is one of an exceedingly handsome family. An elder brother, the late Hon. Reginald Ward, was best man at the wedding of the Duke of Roxburghe and Miss Ogden Goelet at St. Thomas's Church in this city. Mr. Ward was born in 1870, and was educated at Eton. He served in South Africa in 1900 with the Imperial Yeomanry as press censor at headquarters and Deputy Assistant Adjutant General, with the local rank of Captain. He was mentioned in dispatches, and received a medal. He was appointed Assistant Private Secretary to the War Office in 1901, and he has been an equerry in waiting to King Edward since 1902.

He is Chevalier of the Legion of Honor and a Commander of the Spanish Order of Isabella la Catolica. He is a member of the Royal Victorian Order, fourth class, and belongs to the Turf and Marlborough Clubs.

The Earl of Dudley, the elder brother of Mr. Ward, was Lord Lieutenant of Ireland in 1902-1906. He made a most romantic marriage, his bride being Miss Rachel Gurney, a beautiful young girl without fortune. He has a large family, including two sons.

Only recently, Ambassador Reid expressed a wish that his daughter would marry an American, and the news of her engagement to an Englishman rather astonishes friends of the family in this city.

Bingham Accused of Contempt.

Abraham Levy, counsel for Joseph Wasserman, formerly of the District Attorney's staff, who was recently reduced from the rank of Sergeant, yesterday served an order on Police Commissioner Bingham directing him to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court. The order is returnable on May 1, and was issued by Justice Dowling, in the Supreme Court. It followed the ignoring by Commissioner Bingham of a writ of certiorari from Justice Hendrick, requiring him to review in court the circumstances of Wasserman's reduction.

MAYOR FAVORS SUBWAY BILL.

Expected to Sign the Robinson Amendment to the Elsberg Law.

Mayor McClellan held several hearings on legislative bills yesterday. One concerned the Robinson bill amending the Elsberg law and extending the time of new subway leases to fifty years. The Mayor pointed out that the bill did not, as some asserted, prevent the construction of subways by the city, and this was taken by those present as an indication that he intended signing the measure.

Another bill on which there was a hearing was the bill to extend Eastern Parkway, in Brooklyn, by cutting through Mount Carmel and Cypress Hills Cemeteries. Several Jewish residents of the borough appeared against the bill on the grounds of sentiment. Several persons in favor of the measure contended that, as one expressed it, "sentiment should not be allowed to stand in the way of progress."

TWO BOYS RUN DOWN BY A CAR

Crowd Threatens to Attack Motorman, but Policeman Halts It.

Raymond Savage, the six-year-old son of William D. Savage, a broker, of 155 Midwood Street, Brooklyn, and Albert Green, 4 years old, were crossing Flatbush Avenue near their own street yesterday morning and had just stepped from behind a large truck, when a trolley car bound for New York ran them down. Both were taken to Kings County Hospital with fractured skulls and other injuries. For a moment there was talk on the part of passers-by of attacking the motorman, John Craighton, but Policeman Orr quieted the crowd.

No one knew who the two children were when they were taken to the hospital, and they were unconscious. Later they were able to tell their names and their parents were notified.

The motorman was taken to Flatbush Avenue Court, where he was held in $1,000 bail for further examination. The condition of the two children was somewhat improved last night.

NEW OFFICERS OF THE D. R.

Mrs. Adeline F. Fitz of Boston Chosen President General.

The delegates to the convention of the General Society, Daughters of the Revolution, in session at the Waldorf, began to have a worried look at 6 o'clock last night. They had only elected the officers of the society, the managers were still to be voted for, and they were afraid of losing the playtime they are to have in New York. This begins this afternoon with an automobile trip through upper New York and a theatre party this evening.

Mrs. Adeline F. Fitz of Massachusetts was elected President General and Mrs. Louise S. Abeel of New York First Vice President General.

Massachusetts has the largest chapter in the society—900 women—representing a third of the entire membership. It has never in the seventeen years of the General Society's existence put an officer into the President's chair, and the election of Mrs. Fitz was received with satisfaction. The new President General is a Boston woman, popular in the society. She has been Regent and Vice Regent of her State society and First Vice President General of the General Society. She is a musician and composer.

The officers elected were:

Second Vice President General—Mrs. Elvira E. Moffitt, North Carolina; Third Vice President General—Mrs. Mary S. Ward, New Jersey; Fourth Vice President General—Miss Frances J. Jordan, West Virginia; Recording Secretary General—Mrs. Caroline P. Heath, Massachusetts; Corresponding Secretary General—Miss Josephine Wandell, New York; Treasurer General—Mrs. Ellen M. Austen, Long Island; Registrar General—Mrs. Mary C. Martin Casey; Historian General—Mrs. Nellie M. Pray, Massachusetts; Librarian General—Mrs. Caroline C. Montgomery, Colorado.

The managers will be elected this morning and the remaining business of the convention transacted.

DENIAL BY JUDGE MALONE.

He Says the Records Will Prove He Never Got Any of Burke Case Fees.

Judge James T. Malone of General Sessions said yesterday, with reference to the allegation made on Tuesday in a suit heard before Supreme Court Justice Burr, in Brooklyn, to the effect that while he was acting as Assistant Corporation Counsel he had made a contract with Thomas P. Burke, a lawyer, now dead, to receive a part of the fees obtained by Burke in a case against the city:

"I first heard of this matter last July; I then denied any knowledge of such an agreement, and I can now only repeat my denial.

"That was a very involved affair, and I carried on the case with all my power and ability, bringing it up even to the Court of Appeals. The best answer to these insinuations would be an inspection of the records of the case—that would be my surest vindication."

ENJOINS OYSTER BAY BOARD.

Court Orders Highway Officials to Let L. J. Tiffany's Wall Alone.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 29.—Louis J. Tiffany has won a victory over the Oyster Bay town highway officials by obtaining an injunction from Supreme Court Justice Townsend Scudder of Nassau County restraining the Highway Commissioners from destroying or in any way interfering with the walls built by Mr. Tiffany on the lands under water abutting his property at Oyster Bay. To make the injunction permanent argument will be heard before Justice Jaycox at Patchogue Saturday, May 9.

Mr. Tiffany claims that the walls are necessary to the protection of his uplands from the action of the waters of Cold Spring Harbor. The Commissioners of Highways claim they were public property and obstructed the public highway, and pulled them down. But Mr. Tiffany started men on the work of reconstruction early in April.

BRONX TO MONTAUK; ONE CHANGE OF CARS

OFFICIAL OPENING TRIP

And the Public Can Go Through to Long Island Railroad Station To-night After Midnight.

The extension of the present Brooklyn Subway from Borough Hall to Atlantic Avenue will be opened for traffic to-night after midnight, and while the addition to the line is comparatively short, it is regarded as of the utmost importance owing to the fact that it will furnish a direct means of connection between the Long Island Railroad Station, at Flatbush and Atlantic Avenues, and Manhattan. The opening is to be marked by a celebration.

The first train to make the trip to Atlantic Avenue will leave the Bowling Green Station at one hour and two minutes past midnight. The first train westward will leave the Atlantic Avenue Station twelve minutes later. Thereafter Borough Hall Station will cease to be the terminal, and the service to Atlantic Avenue will be regular, and, according to the officials of the company, as frequent as the service to Borough Hall has been.

All Lenox Avenue express trains will run through to Atlantic Avenue, stopping at Borough Hall, Hoyt Street, Nevins Street, and the terminal, between midnight and 1:10 A. M., and between 6:35 A. M. and midnight. In addition, between 7:58 A. M. and 9:14 A. M. and between 4:56 P. M. and 6:37 P. M., all Dyckman Street expresses, of the Broadway Division, will run through the river tunnel to Atlantic Avenue.

During the interval between 1:10 A. M. and 6:35 A. M. all the Lenox Avenue local trains will run through to the new terminal, the Broadway local trains making their terminus at South Ferry as heretofore. All trains for Brooklyn will display the markers that Brooklyn trains have heretofore displayed, viz., a green and a red light.

The company yesterday made public a schedule which indicates that Brooklyn trains, in the rush hour, will run on a headway of two minutes and fifteen seconds. This is the schedule:

Between		Minutes.
12:00 Mdt. and	1:10 A. M. every	8
1:10 A. M. and	1:34 A. M. every	10
1:34 A. M. and	5:04 A. M. every	15
5:04 A. M. and	6:04 A. M. every	10
6:04 A. M. and	6:35 A. M. every	8
6:35 A. M. and	7:15 A. M. every	5
7:15 A. M. and	7:27 A. M. every	4
7:27 A. M. and	7:58 A. M. every	3
7:58 A. M. and	8:48 A. M. every	2 15 seconds
8:48 A. M. and	9:14 A. M. every	2 46 seconds
9:14 A. M. and	10:12 A. M. every	4
10:12 A. M. and	11:12 A. M. every	5
11:12 A. M. and	3:54 P. M. every	6
3:54 P. M. and	4:34 P. M. every	5
4:34 P. M. and	4:56 P. M. every	4
4:56 P. M. and	5:10 P. M. every	2 46 seconds
5:10 P. M. and	6:22 P. M. every	2 15 seconds
6:22 P. M. and	6:37 P. M. every	2 46 seconds
6:37 P. M. and	6:54 P. M. every	5
6:54 P. M. and	8:30 P. M. every	6
8:30 P. M. and	12:00 Mdt. every	8

A party of city officials and members of the Public Service Commission will make the trip to the new terminal of the road at 3:30 this afternoon, going through the tunnel from the City Hall station. From the Atlantic Avenue station they will go to the Baptist Temple near the Long Island station, where a mass meeting is to be held.

Those who have been invited to speak are Mayor McClellan, Public Service Commissioner Willcox, Seth Low, ex-Mayor Boody of Brooklyn, Borough President Coler, and St. Clair McKelway. Mr. Willcox will preside.

With the opening of the extension it will be possible for a person to board a Subway train in the Bronx and by changing to a Long Island Railroad train at the Flatbush-Atlantic Avenue station, go to any desired point on Long Island—even as far as Montauk Point.

Safe Blowers Get $7,000 from Bank.

CROOKSTON, Minn., April 29.—The Scandia State Bank was robbed of about $7,000 early to-day by safe blowers, who terrorized the town by a fusillade of bullets. They escaped.

INSURANCE CASES WEAK, SAYS JEROME

Testifies He Has Little Hope of Convicting Perkins and Others on Forgery Indictments.

INACCURACIES IN RECORD

Called to the witness stand at the inquiry into the conduct of his office before Commissioner Richard L. Hand, District Attorney Jerome declared yesterday that he hadn't very much hope for the indictments pending against George W. Perkins, Charles S. Fairchild, and Robert A. Granniss, and for some of those against John R. Hegeman, charging forgery in the third degree. This was in connection with an explanation as to why he had not moved these and other insurance cases for trial.

If the Perkins, Fairchild, Granniss, and Hegeman indictments all fail, there will be little left from Mr. Jerome's insurance quest except the conviction of George Burnham of the Mutual Reserve Life, which was reversed by the Appellate Division, and that of ex-Vice President Gillette of the Mutual Life, now up on appeal.

The Jerome investigation, which is upon charges brought by the King committee of Metropolitan Street Railway stockholders, is now concerned with his conduct in insurance matters, covered by the fourth and sixth specifications of the committee. Franklin Pierce, who is conducting the investigation for the committee, began yesterday with the Perkins campaign contribution, and it was in connection with this that the admission of the District Attorney concerning the cases of Mr. Perkins, Mr. Fairchild, Mr. Hegeman, and Mr. Granniss was made. The specific acts charged in their indictments for forgery in the third degree are the making of false entries in the books.

Jerome Waits for Court Decision.

These indictments have been brought up for review through a decision of Justice Dowling of the Supreme Court, to the effect that personal knowledge of the specific entries alleged to be false must be proved on the part of an officer of a corporation before he can be charged with forgery in the third degree. Broadly, the effect of the decision, if upheld, will be to shut out the production of the books of a corporation as evidence against an officer, unless it be shown that he knew personally of, or personally made, every entry to be introduced. Mr. Jerome explained yesterday that he wanted to have this question settled by the Appellate Division, where it is now going, before he tried any more of the insurance men on these charges.

Mr. Pierce read into the record yesterday nearly all of the testimony that was taken. He began with the Perkins campaign contribution case, and read the hypothetical question submitted to Judge O'Sullivan and the latter's reply, in which he held that the Grand Jury ought to investigate and decide on the facts whether there was criminal intent, and Mr. Jerome offered to relieve him, and undertook the reading for a time. As the District Attorney read, they came across a colloquy between himself and Judge O'Sullivan which was not in the copy of the minutes that Mr. Pierce had before him, and Mr. Jerome stopped reading. Mr. Pierce told him to go ahead, and Mr. Jerome declined to do so from his copy of the evidence.

"Then will you please take the stand?" said Mr. Pierce, and the District Attorney took the stand and was obliged to read from his own copy of the O'Sullivan proceeding.

The point which Mr. Pierce is trying to make is that the testimony of all the witnesses before the Armstrong Committee was that the $50,000 given to the Republican National Campaign Fund in 1904 was advanced upon executive action and not by the authority of the trustees of the corporation or its appropriate committee.

Record Inaccurate, Jerome Says.

Mr. Pierce ran up against a snag that may bother him considerably when he undertakes to put in the evidence taken before the Armstrong Committee as showing the version of the matter told to that body of investigators. Mr. Jerome objected to the admission of the copies of the stenographic reports, so far as they might be held to be binding on him, because his own comparison of these minutes showed, he said, page after page of the grossest inaccuracies. Commissioner Hand said that he would allow this testimony to be read in, as showing the general subject matter considered by the Armstrong Committee, but would not allow it to be binding upon any one. This left Mr. Pierce with the problem of finding somewhere a version of the testimony taken before the Armstrong Committee which can be considered as admissible evidence.

The other matter taken up yesterday was the $40,000 payment to Nylic, an organization of New York Life agents, conducted by Mr. Perkins. This was paid out of the profits of a loan of $080,000 of New York Life money to the Mexican Central Railroad through the banking firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co. of Boston. The testimony taken before the Armstrong Committee and the subsequent reports submitted to the Trustees of the New York Life by their own committee, which investigated this transaction, both agreed that the facts were briefly these:

Robert Windsor of the Boston banking firm offered to Mr. Perkins, as a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., a participation of $1,000,000 in a loan to the Mexican Central Railroad, secured by an issue of bonds. Mr. Perkins rejected the loan for Morgan & Co., but accepted it on behalf of the New York Life, and it was made. A check of the New York Life was drawn by Treasurer Randolph and sent to the Boston bankers, and subsequently the bonds securing the loan, which was made at 98, were received by the New York Life. Some weeks afterward a check was sent to the New York Life for the payment of the loan with interest and the bonds were returned.

Soon after that another check for $40,000 was received by Treasurer Randolph of the New York Life, payable to that company, representing the profits on the loan. This check was cashed and its proceeds turned over to Mr. Perkins, who said he deposited them to the credit of Nylic in his personal account. He explains that he had a mental reservation at the time of making the deal that it was actually for Nylic as the beneficiary, instead of the New York Life. This was the only mention of Nylic in the entire transaction. No indictment was found in this matter, Mr. Jerome holding that the loan was ultra vires on the part of the New York Life, and that therefore the corporation was not entitled to the profits so long as it got back its money with interest.

The King Committee, which has set this matter up in its charges, is of the belief that it constitutes larceny. The investigation will go on this morning.

Duty Lowered on a Rodin Statue.

Judge Waite handed down a decision yesterday sustaining the claim of Stone & Downer Co., of Boston for lower duty on a marble group made by A. Rodin, a sculptor of Paris. The piece was assessed for duty as a manufacture of marble, but the board allows it to enter at 15 per cent. as "statuary" under the reciprocity theaty with France.

BALLOT BOX GUARDS TESTIFY.

Forty Policemen Say None of the Boxes Was Tampered With.

Forty more policemen, who helped guard the ballot boxes holding the votes of the Mayoralty election in 1905, were examined in the Hearst-McClellan recount case yesterday, and when the court adjourned the Bronx police were being rapidly examined. Counsel for the Attorney General hope to start with the Kings police to-day. Only one witness was examined yesterday who was not connected with the Police Department—State Senator William J. Grattan, who was the Chairman of the Legislative Committee on Privileges and Elections that investigated the various contests growing out of the election of 1905.

Senator Grattan said the committee was in session in this city from Jan. 13 to May 3, 1906; that the ballot boxes, during that time, were never left unprotected, policemen and some person representing the committee always being on guard. Senator Grattan said he was of the opinion that the seal on one of the boxes was broken. Otherwise the boxes were all intact, and the seals in place.

The testimony of the police was similar in all its main features. They said that the boxes were carefully guarded while in their control, and all were certain that not one ballot box had been tampered with.

After court adjourned Clarence J. Shearn explained to a TIMES reporter the procedure that will be followed by the court in this case.

"We are now identifying the ballots that will be offered in evidence," said Mr. Shearn, "our object at this time being to show that the ballots have been properly kept and safeguarded, so that the court may know that they are the same ballots that were voted in the election of 1905. When this is done the ballots will be offered in evidence and Justice Lambert will accept or reject them.

"If Justice Lambert accepts the ballots they will then be counted, Justice Lambert deciding all questions concerning disputed ballots. Should the recount show that Mr. Hearst was elected, the attorneys for Mr. McClellan can then, if they so desire, go to work and try to prove that the ballots have not been properly kept. Then the jury will take the question and decide whether or not the ballots have been tampered with."

MISTRIAL IN BREWER DIVORCE.

Case Thrown Out Because of a Statement Issued by the Husband.

In keeping with previous developments in the divorce suit brought by Mrs. Edith A. Noble Brewer against her husband, William S. Brewer, which has been occupying the attention of Supreme Court Justice Platzek and a jury for the last few days, the case was brought to a sudden close yesterday, when Justice Platzek, immediately on taking his seat, withdrew a juror and declared a mistrial. The case will come up for trial again on May 20.

This step was decided on by the court in consequence of a statement issued on Monday by Brewer, giving his side of the story before it had been heard in court. After a talk with Harry Eckhard, counsel for Brewer, and Murray Hulbert, Mrs. Brewer's attorney, Justice Platzek ordered a copy of the minutes of the case prepared, with a view to taking some further action.

Brewer on the stand admitted responsibility for the statement which caused the mistrial. It is possible that the court may hold Brewer guilty of contempt of court for issuing the statement while the trial was in progress.

WEIL SUIT NEAR END.

H. H. Vreeland Says Traction Men Approved Political Payments.

The end of the Weil suit in the Municipal Court against the Directors of the New York City Railway came in sight yesterday when Attorney Eugene Kremer, for the plaintiffs, ended his examination of H. V. Vreeland.

The examination of Mr. Vreeland ended with some questions whether or not the men in control of the Metropolitan Securities Company approved his expenditures for political and similar purposes. Mr. Vreeland said they did.

Mr. Kremer has discovered one point about the testimony of Thomas F. Ryan which may lead to his recall to the stand. One of the reports declared by the plaintiffs to be false is that of the New York City Railway for June 30, 1905, which was adopted at a meeting of the Directors on Oct. 5, 1905. Mr. Ryan, who denied knowledge of the report, did not attend that meeting. It has appeared by the minutes, however, that Mr. Ryan did attend a meeting of the Directors of the Metropolitan Securities Company held on Nov. 2, 1905, at which the report was approved. Mr. Ryan said when he was under examination by his counsel, De Lancey Nicoll, that he did not attend this meeting and knew nothing of its proceedings.

EX-MAYOR LOW A WITNESS.

He Is Called Before the Commissioners in Fire Department Inquiry.

Ex-Mayor Seth Low was a witness yesterday before the Commissioners of Accounts in the Fire Department inquiry to testify regarding the permits granted to the Manhattan Fire Alarm Company during his administration. He said he had sustained the contention of the then Fire Commissioner Thomas Sturgis that a continuance of the relations existing between the company and the city was undesirable.

Mr. Low said he had suggested that the city buy the company's plant and wrote to the Fire Commissioner not to take any action pending action by the Legislature. Later, he said, the Legislature took the matter up and fixed a valuation, but nothing was done toward the purchase of the plant.

ICE IN STEAMSHIP LANE,

And Mackerel Off the Lightship—Sights from Incoming Tanker.

The British tank steamer Lackawanna, in yesterday from Shields, reported having passed through a great ice floe on Wednesday about 200 miles east-southeast of Cape Race. Capt. Grey said that there were about thirty bergs traveling southward. Some of them were monsters, towering 200 feet above the water.

The Lackawanna passed the Scotland lightship yesterday morning, passing through a great school of mackerel. The ocean for a width of about four miles was covered by the fish.

DR. SILVERMAN DECLINES.

Doesn't Care to Speak at Cosmopolitan Black and White Dinner.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman of Temple Emanu-El said yesterday that contrary to the statement of Andre Tridon, Treasurer of the Cosmopolitan Club, he had not accepted an invitation to speak before the next social gathering of whites and blacks. Dr. Silverman said that in response to the invitation of the organization he had sent a polite note declining. He neither would speak at the next meeting nor had he any intention of attending any meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club.

WILLIAMS FORCES FREE PAPER FIGHT

NEEDS 30 FOR MAJORITY

But Republicans Refuse to Sign—Further Testimony Showing How the Combination Raised Prices.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—John Sharp Williams brought the question of free wood pulp up again in the House to-day and carried the war into the enemy's country. Mr. Williams came armed with a petition to the Speaker, now signed by all Democratic members in Washington, and in a speech, interrupted by prolonged applause on both sides and almost constant laughter, urged the Republicans to sign the petition.

When Mr. Williams entered the Chamber he was followed by a tiny page staggering under the weight of a table on which rested a pen and an inkwell. The page deposited his burden immediately behind Mr. Williams's desk.

Mr. Williams explained that he had already 162 names to his petition asking the Speaker to allow the House to come to a vote on some bill looking to free wood pulp, that four absent Democrats would bring the list up to 166, and that there were at least thirty Republicans who had introduced bills looking to the same end. Twenty-nine insurgent Republicans would put the balance of power of the House in the hands of the men who wish to repeal the duty on wood pulp.

"These thirty Republicans," said Mr. Williams, "have introduced bills with the avowed purpose of getting wood pulp and print paper on the free list; and I am sure they introduced these bills in good faith and are eager to do everything in their power to accomplish the results set forth in their preambles. Their opportunity is now before them. Let them sign this petition."

Republicans Wouldn't Sign.

Not a Republican moved. The little page again got under the table, upon which the petition had been laid, and planted it directly under the Speaker's desk, turned the sheets of the petition to the place for the next signature, dipped the pen in the ink, and walked away, smiling proudly.

No other name was added to this list during the day. This is the petition:

Hon. J. G. Cannon:

Mr. Speaker: We, the undersigned Representatives in Congress, request, each for himself and each for all the others, that you recognize one of us, or, if you prefer, some other Representative, to move the discharge of the Committee on Ways and Means from further consideration of, and to suspend the rules and to pass the Stevens bill, or any other bill having the effect to put wood pulp and print paper on the free list.

"I am hopeful," said Mr. Williams, "that thirty of you will sign the petition, but if you do not like it because my name and Mr. De Armond's and Champ Clark's names are on it, then we are perfectly willing for you to get up another petition and we will add our names to that.

"If thirty of you sign, the Speaker cannot refuse, for at the beginning of the session the Speaker replied to a question from Mr. De Armond that the majority of the House could always get what it wanted, and that the majority of the House would always be heeded by the Speaker."

Mr. Williams closed with an appeal, half serious, half humorous, in the manner of a revivalist, to any thirty Republicans to step up and sign the petition waiting for them on the table before the desk.

Hearing on Paper Trust.

Continuing his evidence to show the existence and power of a paper trust or pooling combine in this country and Canada, John Norris of THE NEW YORK TIMES testified to-day before the select committee investigating the paper industry. As showing sub-divisions of this pool, Mr. Norris submitted data to prove that H. G. Craig & Co. owned seven "independent" mills.

Mr. Norris then put in evidence a number of original letters to establish the existence of a trust in general control of the industry of this country. One of these letters was from V. S. McClatchy, publisher of The Sacramento Evening Bee, which showed that his price had not only been put up without explanation by the Willamette Company, but his orders had been filled arbitrarily from time to time from mills other than the one he had contracted with. Each shift, he said, had meant an increased price for him.

"The efforts of the Willamette people," said Mr. McClachy's letter, "seemed to have been to discipline me because I had tried to get my paper from the East. I did get it there, but owing to the widespread combination I got it at a price 10 cents a hundred pounds higher than before."

Working out his testimony along this line, Mr. Norris next showed a list of the office and a copy of the by-laws of the New Sulphite Pulp Association. The by-laws provided for the tabulation of monthly confidential reports on tonnage, prices, and customers, which were circulated among the members of the association.

Designed to Evade Law.

"These new by-laws," said Mr. Norris, "were devised, as we expect to prove, for the purpose of evading the law, by putting the association within the Federal statutes. We expect also to show that the association did affect materially the cost of materials going into the manufacture of wood pulp.

"Our contention is," said he, "that to the extent that the Sulphite Pulp Association fixed the price for the market it did affect the cost of material entering into news print paper."

Mr. Norris formulated a number of questions which he wished the committee to propond at once to the International Paper Company and others, and also submitted the names of a dozen persons identified with the paper business whom he desired subpoenaed.

The committee was particularly impressed with the annual statement of the International Paper Company for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1907, showing an increased cost of production of 60 cents a ton as against the raise in price of paper of $12 a ton. Chairman Mann announced that he would go to the bottom of it to ascertain the cause of so large an increase in the price of paper.

Mr. Norris said that the increased output of the improved machinery reduced the labor cost of production. He said he could "completely upset the claim made by Mr. Cowles, President of the American Paper and Pulp Association as to the labor cost having increased 50 per cent."

MITCHELL FOR APIA CONSUL.

President Names Actor and Rough Rider for Samoan Post.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The President sent to the Senate to-day the following Consular nominations:

Mason Mitchell of New York at Apia, Samoa; Franklin Hale of Vermont at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island.

Mason Mitchell was an actor for many years, and appeared in the support of McCullough, Booth, Barrett, and Mme. Modjeska. He served in the Spanish-American war as a member of the Rough Riders, and was wounded at the battle of Santiago. He accompanied Roosevelt in his Gubernatorial campaign, making speeches. In 1902 he was appointed Consul to Zanzibar, and later Consul at Chungking, China.

$1,000,000 FOR EX-SLAVES.

May Be Reimbursed for Money Lost in the Freedmen's Bank.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Former slaves or their heirs are to be benefited to the extent of $1,000,000 if a bill favorably reported to-day by the House Committee on Banking and Currency becomes a law. It has been in Congress for many years and has passed the Senate.

Many former slaves lost money deposited in the Freedmen's Bank, which was established in this city for the benefit of negroes soon after the close of the civil war. The bank failed after a brief existence.

FOR ROOSEVELT PROGRAMME.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Organized rebellion against the Senate oligarchy, in which the insurgent Republicans are taking as their allies the Democratic minority, is being arranged. It is determined that the White House demands shall be met, at least in part, by Congress. This is the attitude of the younger Republicans. The Democrats see in the situation an oportunity to accomplish their own ends by swinging their support to the insurgents in return for assistance on certain legislation they are anxious to force through before the close of the session.

The utmost secrecy is being maintained in the preliminary organization. The younger Republicans do not want to be placed in the position of dickering with the Democrats, while the Democrats are not anxious on the eve of a Presidential campaign to be convicted of treading with the political enemy, even if they can advance their own interests by doing so.

The Republican insurrection is strong enough, with Democratic help, to put through a substantial part of the White House programme.

One of the Republican Senators, regarded as a leader in the floor battles, admitted that within a week or ten days there would be a "spontaneous explosion," unless something was done to meet the requirements of the White House. He would say nothing more, aside from advising THE TIMES correspondent to watch developments.

Added force was given to the report of a coalition between the Democrats and the Administration Republicans by the visit of a large number of both to the White House to-day. They were called up by the President to be congratulated on the result of their fight for the four-battleship programme.

The joint call on the Chief Executive is believed to have been in the nature of a review of the reform forces. The President is regarded as Commander in Chief of the guerrillas and willing to accept any recruits for the campaign against an unwilling Congress.

JEFF DAVIS REBUKED.

Senator Forced to Modify Violence of His Indian Land Resolution.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Senator Jeff Davis to-day was properly hazed by the Senate, forced to revise his resolution, which was characterized as insulting, and in the end won his point. Senator Foraker and the Vice President led in the hazing, while other Senators of both parties assisted.

The resolution, calling on the Secretary of the Interior for information with regard to the supposed failure to allot Indian lands in Oklahoma, was eventually adopted. He charged that ex-Secretary Hitchcock had prevented 10,000 Indians from being enrolled.

Senator Davis wanted to know, with vigorous thumps of his desk and in a voice that alarmed the galleries, why the Senate did not pass his resolution. He cited as an instance the case of a family of nine children, eight of whom had received the legal allotment, while the ninth was compelled to accept forty acres, because he was a negro.

"Here's a chance for the Senator from Ohio to make good," Davis said. "If he's so fond of the 'niggers' let him show it in a practical way by voting for this resolution to protect a nigger Indian."

Foraker arose calmly and said mildly:

"When the Senator addresses me, I wish he would speak louder."

Senator Clapp objected to the resolution because of its remarkable language. Davis modified it, and then it was passed.

KING VICTOR SAVES LUBIN.

American Agricultural Agent at Rome Had Been Dismissed.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—An order for the reinstatement of David Lubin of California as the American representative on the permanent Committee of Agriculture was cabled to Ambassador Griscom at Rome yesterday by Secretary Root. Mr. Lubin was removed from the place several weeks ago for reasons not made public, but it was reported that friction had developed between him and the Department of Agriculture.

The action of the Italian Government in instructing Ambassador Mayor des Planches to inform Secretary Root that Mr. Lubin's work in organizing the institute made him entirely acceptable to that Government and efforts of members of the California delegation in Congress brought about Mr. Lubin's reinstatement. The institute is permanently seated in Rome in a building erected for it by the King of Italy.

CURRENCY BILL APPROVED.

New Vreeland Measure Sanctioned by House Leaders and Introduced.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Representative Vreeland of New York to-day introduced his new Currency bill. It will be considered by the Banking and Currency Committee to-morrow. This action was taken after conferences of Republican leaders.

SAILORS OF FLEET WRECK RESTAURANT

Compelled to Pay $6 for a Meal for Two—Sailors Enjoy an Athletic Field Day.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., April 29.—The only serious trouble or disturbance caused by the sailors of the Atlantic battleship fleet since the fleet left Hampton Roads occurred here last night when a small restaurant was wrecked because its proprietor had overcharged two of the men for a meal.

It was a culmination of numerous small difficulties which have occurred during the week the fleet has been here between sailors and local tradesmen. The bad feeling has been due principally to a system of overcharge in payments of meals and other purchases with which the sailors have been confronted.

Last night John Senich, keeper of a small restaurant, attempted to charge two of the men $6 for a meal, which they deemed exorbitant. They demurred to the payment, but were compelled to make a settlement of the bill because they had not inquired the price before ordering.

Later they reported the incident to shore liberty parties, and finally large crowds congregated in front of the place and commenced to throw stones and other missiles. Windows and glass fixtures were smashed while the proprietor and employes fled. The shore patrol rushed to the scene and soon dispersed the crowd.

The sailors have been dissatisfied with the lack of entertainment here. More than 3,000 of them have come ashore each day, but many, after spending a few hours in the town, have either aken the train to Los Angeles or returned to their ships. Alleged overcharging of various kinds has been numerous and much illfeeling has resulted.

The last day of the fleet's stay here was marked by a field day of sailors from the fleet, held at Athletic Park under the auspices of the Civic League. There were scores of events on the programme.

To-night the "Dance of Flowers" was given in the canvas covered Plaza del Mar on the ocean front. Over forty Santa Barbara young women took part in the performance, the costumes representing different flowers.

Rear Admiral Thomas has transmitted to Lieut. Cone, commanding the torpedo flotilla now at San Diego, orders to stop at San Pedro Harbor on the voyage northward and remain as long as possible. The flotilla, however, must leave in time to reach Santa Cruz on the morning of May 4. Orders have been issued for the battleship fleet to leave here at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—None of the battleships of the Atlantic fleet will stop at any point in the Fiji Islands, although one of the auxiliaries equipped with wireless telegraph apparatus will make its headquarters for some days in the harbor of Suva.

It will reach there ahead of the fleet's arrival in the vicinity of the islands and by means of the wireless will be enabled to keep the battleships in close touch with the navy department through the use of the cable touching the Fiji Islands.

It is calculated at the navy department that by this means communication may be maintained with the fleet for from six to eight days on the voyage from Honolula to Auckland, a distance of 3,850 miles.

EX-POLICEMAN SENTENCED.

John Lope Gets Five-Year Term for Plundering a House.

John Lope, formerly a policeman, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Foster in General Sessions to five years in the State Prison for robbing the home of William Klein, 107 East Ninety-sixth Street, on the night of April 15.

Lope was dismissed from the force in 1907, after forty-five complaints had been made against him.

PROF. NOON GOES TO MANILA.

Washington Theologian to be Commissioned to Teach There by the Pope.

The Rev. William D. Noon, formerly professor of philosophy in the Catholic University at Washington, sailed for Rome yesterday on the Lucania. He has been appointed to the Catholic University at Manila and he will receive his commission from the Pope. His mission, he said, is to Americanize the Manila University.

A Fitting Subject

Wm. Vogel & Son's suits differ from all other ready-for-wear suits in many ways—but principally in the perfect fit of each individual garment. And they don't fit in spots, but all over—whether a man is of normal proportions or of unusually large or small physique.

By way of illustration note the perfect set of the collar and shoulder of our $18 Suits. This series takes form in numerous conservative and radical models, in the prevailing bright colored brown, olive, gray, green, tan and blue fabrics.

is to learn as to the relative standing and reliability of the leading manufacturers of medicinal agents, as the most eminent physicians are the most careful as to the uniform quality and perfect purity of remedies prescribed by them, and it is well known to physicians and the Well-Informed generally that the California Fig Syrup Co., by reason of its correct methods and perfect equipment and the ethical character of its product has attained to the high standing in scientific and commercial circles which is accorded to successful and reliable houses only, and, therefore, that the name of the Company has become a guarantee of the excellence of its remedy.

TRUTH AND QUALITY

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing, therefore we wish to call the attention of all who would enjoy good health, with its blessings, to the fact that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and the use of medicines dispensed with generally to great advantage, but as in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time, the California Fig Syrup Co. feels that it is alike important to present truthfully the subject and to supply the one perfect laxative remedy which has won the appoval of physicians and the world-wide acceptance of the Well-Informed because of the excellence of the combination, known to all, and the original method of manufacture, which is known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. and the same heretofore known by the name—Syrup of Figs—which has given satisfaction to millions. The genuine is for sale by all leading druggists throughout the United States in original packages of one size only, the regular price of which is fifty cents per bottle.

Every bottle is sold under the general guarantee of the Company, filed with the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., that the remedy is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906.

CONFIDENCE AND THE COURTS.

The decisions of the Supreme Court in the Minnesota and North Carolina cases illustrate how impossible is a dual control of National commerce. * * * Actual experience has shown that the effort at State control is sure to be nullified in one way or another, sooner or later. The Nation alone can act with effectiveness and wisdom. * * * At present the failure of Congress to utilize and exercise the great powers conferred upon it as regards inter-State commerce leaves this commerce to be regulated, not by the State nor yet by the Congress, but by the occasional and necessarily inadequate and one-sided action of the Federal judiciary. However upright and able a court is, it cannot act constructively; it can only act negatively or destructively as an agency of Government; and this means that the courts will and must always be unable to deal effectively with a problem like the present, which requires constructive action.—President ROOSEVELT'S message of April 27.

We may grant that the action of the courts is necessarily inadequate and one-sided, that they can act only destructively, and that they are incapable of dealing with those problems which Mr. ROOSEVELT attacks so valiantly and with such enthusiasm and lightness of heart. Yet, after all, the courts are not an unmixed evil.

If the Supreme Court had not in the Minnesota and North Carolina cases set up the bulwark of the Constitution against State attacks upon railroad property, the $40,000,000 of bonds offered by the Pennsylvania Railroad the other day would have found not a single bidder abroad, and it is doubtful if they would have found many bidders here.

MR. CHOATE ON MR. TAFT.

Mr. JOSEPH H. CHOATE has given some very good reasons why he desires the nomination and election of Mr. TAFT as President of the United States. He has done so in response to an invitation to accept the Vice Presidency of the Taft Organization in the State of New York, which he accepts with great zeal and a peculiar zest. It is needless at the present time to undertake to estimate the influence of Mr. CHOATE'S support. So far as the nomination goes, we should say that nearly all of those who would value Mr. CHOATE'S advice do not require it. Some of them will doubtless show their admiration for Mr. HUGHES to start with, but as soon as his case is determined they would probably turn to Mr. TAFT as, in the words of Mr. CHOATE, "far better qualified than any other man that could be nominated."

The interesting part of Mr. CHOATE'S letter is his plain and emphatic definition of the qualifications of Mr. TAFT thus referred to. These include "prolonged and varied experience in public life," with thorough mastery of the Constitution of the United States. And there is from Mr. CHOATE an eloquent and impressive definition of what is meant by this:

> He would especially be true to the fundamental principles upon which our dual system of Government rests—first, that the Federal Government, supreme and absolute in its own sphere, must carefully keep within the functions prescribed to it by the Constitution, and that the States shall, in like manner, perform all the functions reserved to them by the Constitution, and shall be thoroughly respected in all their rights, so that there shall be no conflict between the State and Federal jurisdiction; and, second, that each of the three great departments of the Government, executive, judicial, and legislative, shall exercise its functions without any intrusion, interference, or usurpation by either of the others. These cardinal principles so essential to the preservation of our boasted rights to life, liberty, and property will surely be faithfully cherished by Mr. Taft as President.

Mr. CHOATE is not content with this general statement. He gives it emphasis by defining a specific point:

> That he will be in favor of the exercise by the Federal Government to its full extent of the power to regulate commerce between States and with foreign nations is evidenced by his whole record, but that he will seek to exercise no power that is beyond the limits of the Federal Constitution is equally certain.

Mr. CHOATE mentions another matter which he thinks "of infinite importance." It is that Mr. TAFT'S "thorough appreciation of the dignity and importance of the high office" of Justice of the Supreme Court will be sure to cause him to fill any vacancies that may occur with men fitted "to maintain the high character of that great tribunal which is still the sheet anchor of our ship of State."

These, as we have said, are very good reasons for Mr. CHOATE'S support of Mr. TAFT. They are obviously sincerely stated and very earnestly entertained. It is not the fault of Mr. CHOATE or of Mr. TAFT if the statement of these reasons inevitably suggests a certain comparison, verging on contrast, with the most marked characteristics of the present incumbent of the Presidential office.

THE ANTI-BRYAN STRENGTH.

It is already evident that Mr. BRYAN will not be the preferred candidate of two-thirds of the Denver Convention. It is doubtful, even, if a majority of the delegates will favor his nomination. New Jersey and Connecticut together will send to the Convention 38 uninstructed delegates, and here "uninstructed" means "anti-BRYAN." Ex-Senator JAMES SMITH effectively attended to this detail of the Trenton Convention's business. With the full courage of his determination to rule out Bryanism he successfully opposed the sending as delegate at large of ROBERT DAVIS, the Hudson County leader. Mr. DAVIS goes as a district delegate, to be sure, but the unit rule commits the delegation to opposition to BRYAN. In the Connecticut Convention the resolution indorsing BRYAN and expressing confidence in him as a leader was rejected by the Platform Committee.

Only a little more than one-third of the delegates thus far chosen have been instructed for BRYAN. Where the Democrats of a State really believe in the Nebraskan and want him nominated, their Convention has imposed Bryan instructions, as in Nebraska and the Dakotas. In some other States, as in Illinois, where instructions were given, the delegations are understood to be quite open to conviction, and willing to seize an early opportunity to throw their strength to some other candidate. From many States where Conventions are yet to be held, uninstructed delegations will be sent.

This means that the Denver Convention will meet as a deliberative body; that the delegates will not be bound to put forward a candidate certain of defeat, but will be free to take counsel one with another to the end that wise action may be taken and an acceptable nomination be made.

THE RESIGNATION OF BERMEL.

President BERMEL of Queens Borough has resigned while two charges, preferred against him by the State Prosecutor and by a citizen of Queens County, were being entertained by Gov. HUGHES.

The charge brought by Mr. WILLIAM S. BENNETT included in its specifications perjury, the use of money to block the procedure of the Grand Jury and to cover up illegal acts, collusion with contractors, incompetency, and waste. NATHAN VIDAVER, the representative of Attorney General JACKSON in the Kissena Park investigation, and now under indictment for attempted extortion in the bank receivership cases, asked the Grand Jury to dismiss its accusation of crime against BERMEL before its presentment was sent to the Governor.

AHEARN'S removal has been ordered by the Governor, BERMEL has taken himself off, and HAFFEN of the Bronx is in trouble. Owing to influences outside the machine, such as that of the Bureau of Municipal Research, the way of the machine-made Borough President is hard. BERMEL'S successor will be named to-day by the Aldermen of Queens County, who are said to be controlled by Senator CASSIDY. He will enter office with the knowledge that his continuance therein will depend upon good behavior.

STEEL TRUST AND COUNTRY.

Even the big fellow Steel Corporation loses bulk when contrasted with the country at large, and there are plenty of proofs that they misread this barometer of trade who discern only bad weather ahead because of this record of bad weather behind. In other words, the report, as it stands, is true only regarding the trust, and not true regarding general trade. The trust's earnings, over sinking fund appropriation and ordinary depreciation, for the year's first quarter were $16,166,260, a decrease of $17,801,711. But railway earnings and bank clearings point to no such decline. The country's business has not been halved, like the Steel Trust's, and the trust's business cannot remain halved unless the country is to be afflicted by something nobody foresees. The explanation of this anomaly seems to be that we are not passing through an ordinary economic crisis, but are suffering from a shock to confidence rather than from a deficiency of assets. As soon as confidence revives consumers of the trust's products will indulge their appetites for what they would be glad to take now had they not been frightened out of it by legislative attacks which have not affected the more thriving general trade of the Nation. Congress will soon adjourn, and Legislatures do not sit in Summer.

Moreover, it is misleading to contrast the trust's business with a maximum record surpassing even extravagant expectations. The trust's loss of business seems so large because its trade has been so great. A fairer comparison is with the previous minimum. This record of a disastrous quarter just passed shows earnings of $5,000,000 above 1904, and a surplus above dividends instead of a deficiency of $1,857,120. The surplus is now $122,000,000, say nearly double the surplus of 1904, and the plant has a demonstrated capacity for earnings at the rate of $45,500,000 per quarter, as compared with a maximum up to 1904 of $37,600,000. In other words, the concern which now faces reaction is very different from the comparatively immature and weak corporation which confronted a similar situation in 1904. The very next quarter showed an increase then of six million dollars, and the lapse of four years has not produced conditions as bad as then. It should not be forgotten that the steel trade is as quick in improving as in declining. There is significance in the fact that the trust's shares made a high record for the year on the very date of this supposedly discouraging report. There is eminent authority for the statement that if the crops are good there will be a deficiency of freight cars next Fall. If that reasonable anticipation is realized there is no way of keeping the trust's unfilled orders at the level where they are now through buyers' hopes that delay may mean cheaper prices.

MR. VREELAND IS LEARNING.

The Vreeland emergency bill, as the Aldrich bill is now called to help its passage, varies from day to day, but each change brings it nearer to the principle of the Fowler bill. Thus, according to our Washington dispatch yesterday, Mr. VREELAND has at last adopted the Fowler plan of a large currency commission, and has also provided redemption machinery to meet the very obvious necessity demonstrated by the clogging of the present redemption machinery under half the work necessary if the Vreeland-Aldrich bill should become law. Mr. VREELAND might well have approached more nearly the Fowler model, still a 5 per cent. gold reserve fund is acceptable as an installment on account, if more cannot be had, as even Mr. VREELAND seems to suspect may be necessary by a provision for a reserve in lawful money.

Mr. VREELAND proposes a Commission of eighteen, about half the size of Mr. FOWLER'S. The six members representing the Senate and House respectively would also represent the influences against which Mr. FOWLER has struggled, while the six to be appointed by the President would not go very far in representing the country at large. It is interesting to note that at the present time Germany is appointing a similar Commission to inquire into the causes of the high rates of discount in the money market, and the method resembles Mr. FOWLER'S. That is to say, the Chancellor has invited nominations from each of the federated States representing industry, commerce, and agriculture as well as banking. Commercial congresses, manufacturers' associations, industrial organizations, and similar bodies are to be represented. Germany wants something corresponding to the needs and ideas of those using the currency, rather than the schemes of leaders concerned chiefly with getting something through Congress which will serve campaign purposes.

THE FREE CHURCH IN THE FREE STATE.

Americans who are not Roman Catholics, as well as the vast multitude who are, must regard with pride and confidence the assembly of "Princes of the Church," to use the phrase of Archbishop BLENK of New Orleans, on the interesting occasion of the centenary of this diocese, if for no other reason, because of the utterances of the highest dignitaries upon matters of equal importance to all.

Take the graphic statement by Archbishop BLENK himself: "No Prince of the Church could go to a crowned head of Europe and get the reception that I got from the President of the Republic." Obviously this can be true only in the sense that no crowned head of Europe would stand in precisely the same absolutely independent relation to a Prince of the Church, or to the organization of which the Princes are part, or to the Church administered by that organization. Not that the independence in the least implies indifference. On the contrary, the interest might be the keenest. The President might have the deepest sympathy with the tenets or the spiritual aims of the Church and the utmost respect for the persons of its leaders. But their spheres are clearly defined and in no danger of confusion, much less of conflict.

This phase of the situation was alluded to with deep feeling by Cardinal LOGUE. "The future of the Church," he exclaimed, "is in America. We shall always have the centre of its government in Rome, but the future of it is here." And he proceeded to give what was in effect an explanation:

> Some people might think that the form of the Church's government being monarchic would cause it to depend on monarchic forms of government. It delights me to see that in this Republic the Church flourishes. It delights me to find that Catholics are true to their Government here and are loyal to the Republic. It is a thing delightful to me to contemplate that the Church can so adapt itself. It can meet any Government, it seems to me, so long as that Government is based on justice and honesty.

The time was, perhaps, when neither the Church nor the Republic held fully toward each other the magnanimous spirit here expressed. It has passed, and, we doubt not, passed forever. One can hardly imagine now anything but justice and honesty on the one part or adaptation in good faith on the other.

For more than half a century the life of the Rev. Dr. MORGAN DIX was closely interwoven with the history of Trinity Parish. During that time he held the reverent affection of his parishioners and the respect and esteem of his fellow-citizens. In his death this community feels the loss of a theologian and pulpit orator of great learning, devotion, and ability.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Journalism Will Not Be Revolutionized.

There is more of scientific than of journalistic interest in the announcement from London that HANS KNUDSEN, a Danish electrician, promises soon to demonstrate the possibility of operating by means of waves transmitted without wires an ordinary linotype machine at a distance as great as that between the British capital and Paris.

The claim is not intrinsically unbelievable, since the fact that Hertzian waves can be transformed into a form of energy available for doing work of this kind is already familiar, and Mr. TESLA has often asserted the practicability of thus transmitting power in any amount to any distance. But even if Mr. KNUDSEN does succeed in enabling a man in Paris to set, that is, make, in London type properly arranged for the subsequent manipulation of the stereotypers and pressmen, there will be many reasons why the time required for getting news into print will not be as much shortened as he expects.

Practically all newspaper "copy" has to be "edited" to some extent, and most of it to a large extent, before it can be used, and this work can best be done when the writer's thoughts have progressed only one step along the long journey toward readiness for the reader's eye. Matter in type can, indeed, be corrected and revised to some extent, but it is difficult and expensive work that usually has to be done at an hour when time is most precious and real editing can hardly be attempted then except for very serious reasons.

Newspapers, as eminent electricians and a good many other people do not seem to realize, are made by men who sit at desks and work into proper shape the raw material supplied to them by reporters scattered all over the world—material supplied, nowadays, in quantities invariably much larger than can possibly be used. If the folks who expect gratitude for sending in matter "good enough to fill up with" only knew the amount of really good news nightly thrown away in every newspaper office for lack of space for it, they would—well, they would understand how empty are the expressions of gratitude which some of them occasionally get.

However, if Mr. KNUDSEN makes his invention work a use will surely be found for it, if not in the newspaper field, then somewhere else. The phonograph, which has proved a failure for most of the purposes its inventor had in mind when he produced it, yet found its place, and the same is true of many another discovery that disappointed original expectations. Neither knowledge nor ability is ever wasted long.

Liberty Needs Restraint.

Now that a child has been beaten to death in the course of the maniacal "services" held by a little group of fanatics down in Allentown, Penn., it will be realized there that "freedom of worship" and "liberty of conscience" are phrases that need limitation, even in a country like this one, where the ideas they express are at the very basis of our social organization and valued accordingly.

The Allentown lunatics called themselves—or more likely were called by their sane neighbors—"devil chasers," because at their meetings they devoted themselves to vehement warfare with the evil one and expended enormous energy in driving him out of persons and places supposed by them to have been chosen for his temporary lodgment. Because they called this their religion, nobody interfered with their operations, and the inventor of the cult was allowed to infect one ignorant or weak-minded person after another with his delusions until he had gathered around him a considerable band of devoted followers. Their docility and reverence, naturally encouraged the man's extravagances until what had at first been a distorted piety became a fierce and reckless mania and the vigor of the "devil chasing" steadily grew.

The last scene in the story was an orgy of destruction, first of the prophet's house and furniture, and then of the wretched child who had been dragged by her parents to the "service." Somehow, probably by showing fear or horror of what she saw, the child drew upon herself the suspicion of harboring the devil, and in the effort to dislodge him she was clubbed or trampled to death.

This, of course, will be the end of the Allentown "devil chasers," but they are not the only people who in the name of a religion generally recognized to be close akin to madness are daily imperiling their own lives and those of all about them. For one victim of "devil chasing," the delusion that there is no reality in disease, even the most infectious, has had nobody knows how many hundreds, adults as well as children. But the Eddyites, though firm believers in "malicious animal magnetism," another name for witchcraft and voodooism, do not beat children to death, or even those whom they suspect of putting spells upon them, so they are not subjected to restraint. Yet two of them, teachers in a suburban school near New York, recently continued at work among their pupils while suffering from scarlet fever. The Allentown episode was not much worse than that.

THE NEGRO QUESTION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want to tell you how much I enjoyed reading your editorial, "As An Admonition," in this day's issue. Every word used is timely and wise, but I believe you might have gone a little further and advocated a still greater separation of the races than exists at present. We should have separate schools for the children of both races. E. G. L.

The Black and White Dinner.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a Southern woman and a consistent and active friend of the negro race, permit me to thank you for the very able editorial in this morning's TIMES on the dinner of "The Cosmopolitan Club." Such a bold and wholesome expression of opinion cannot fail to do good. Laying aside prejudice, the well-known mental and physical degeneracy of the mulatto stands as the proof that intermarriage of the whites and blacks is unnatural and wrong.

New York, April 29, 1908. MARYLAND.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a colored woman I want to voice my protest against the cosmopolitan dinner and the speeches made there. I cannot conceive in what way the race has been benefited by extremists and faddists. I consider an insult has been offered to every thinking woman of my race who has the good and betterment of her people at heart. Heretofore we have not asked for social recognition. I maintain that every true negro wishes not to have a bleached race, but to have a race of black men and women, who will vindicate their manhood and womanhood and work out their own salvation.

HATTIE L. FERRELL.

EDITOR HARDEN VINDICATED.

Prince Eulenburg's Valet Makes Confession in Court.

When Maximilian Harden, editor of Die Zukunft, was on Jan. 3 sentenced by a Berlin court to four months' imprisonment for libeling the friends of the German Kaiser, the German press generally agreed with the opinion of the Judges that Harden's allegations were utterly unfounded. Some papers, however, stated that Harden had failed to follow up his charges and had taken the sentence without appeal because he had accepted $250,000 from the friends of Prince Eulenburg.

Herr Harden brought suit for libel against one of the papers making this statement, the Neue Freie Volkszeitung of Munich. The case came up on Jan. 21, and resulted not only in a victory for Herr Harden against the Munich paper, but a vindication of his whole procedure against Prince Eulenburg, who, since the editor's condemnation, had been considered fully rehabilitated. The truth, which, has been so carefully concealed for many months, was drawn from the mouth of the Prince's valet by skillful cross-examination.

When the valet, Ernst, took the witness stand he repeated the statement that he had made at the former trial, exonerating the Prince. Then the President of the court took him in hand, saying:

"I wish to point out the improbability of your story. The Prince engages you, who are a fisherman, as a valet, takes you with him on his travels, has you up to Liebenberg, in Uckermark, and gives you 12,000 marks on a mortgage. There must be something behind all that. Come, tell us the truth, and lighten your conscience. Remember the heavy punishments which will fall upon you both in this world and in the next if you break the oath you have sworn."

The witness replied in a hesitating voice, and the President, seeing that he was weakening, again declared solemnly: "Come, let us have the truth. You know that you are keeping something back."

Thereupon Ernst little by little confessed that the suspicion of the President was correct, and he proceeded in a low and quivering voice to present evidence tending to show that the worst charges made by the editor of Die Zukunft against the Prince were true in fact and substance.

PORTRAIT OF ROOSEVELT.

Mr. Hale's Achievement Represents "the Top Notch of Journalism."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I offer a fellow craftsman's enthusiastic compliments to the author of the article on the President in Sunday's TIMES? That is the top notch of journalism; it indicates what might be done and ought to be done in America oftener than it is. I think Mr. Hale's achievement in giving an air of veritability, his faithfulness in recording impressions, without smudging any of the decencies or violating any privacy, are masterly and new.

In a republic like this (or a democracy for those who prefer the term) it is surely of prime importance that journalism should maintain its standards of unflinching honesty. Let its opinions be as biased as they may, its reports of facts must be true, or it is terribly recreant to its great opportunities. What we need is to have true impressions of our public men, so that the people can form their own judgment. Mr. Hale has done such a service splendidly for Mr. Roosevelt, and his work makes one wish that there might be more such scrupulous and fair portraiture.

BLISS CARMAN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You certainly did a service to every-day thought, and, therefore, to history, in publishing last Sunday Mr. Hale's observations of President Roosevelt in action at the White House. The continuous picture of that exciting individual is most interesting. What a revelation! The most ordinary citizen could not come to shake his hand without receiving chunks of guide-book information and copy-book platitudes served with all sorts of jerky emphasis—to cover their rawness, as it were. It recalls nothing so vividly as Sancho Panza's immortal excuse for gab: "Fool as I am, I know something of everything."

Learned English from The Times.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On Sunday I met a German who speaks good English, having resided in New York City during the last five years. He told me that for the first month of his sojourn here he could read only the evening newspapers with great headlines, but he then began buying THE TIMES, of which he could understand very few words.

Little by little, however, his vocabulary increased, and he now enthusiastically states that his present pure English was learned entirely, and only, from THE TIMES, and that it is the greatest newspaper on earth!

I know the above will interest you.

The Times's Sunday Editions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I add my iota of praise for your Sunday editions? I send them every week to my brother, a newspaper man in Liverpool. He writes: "Thank you so much for your papers—THE NEW YORK TIMES'S Sunday edition, The Pictorial Supplement is a feast for the eyes, and I hold it up with pride before my friends as a beautiful sample of up-to-date journalism. Keep on sending them." W. H. B.

The Silent Voter's Cogitations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As your columns are always open to that which is "fit to print," I trust I may say a word on behalf of the most potent factor in politics, the silent voter. We are "up against" hard times, with all that goes with that unwelcome phrase.

Prosperity should be here now, and would be if our business conditions were dealt with on common sense and equitable methods. Instead, however, we get no settlement, either good or bad. So-called reform that cripples industry without greater benefit than the present damage only disgusts the rank and file. I believe that before November radicalism will have run its course, like any other disease, and common sense will again prevail. That will insure the average man a few years of peace and quiet to earn his living. The parties can't fool all of the people all the time.

A SILENT VOTER.

Thinking Women.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Even if there were only one creative woman, it would be sufficient evidence that there is a strong tendency in woman to think. I believe if men had to rear children, to cook, and to attend to monotonous household duties, there would be very little room for creative work in their life.

Personally I cannot see any difference between a male brain and a female brain. I know of some men who do not possess one grain of gray matter, and when a woman shows the same deficiency the man sneers at her and calls her only a woman. It is really the men who ought to help the women develop their creative abilities. Why should a woman have to slave in a kitchen, when she has abilities for greater things in life?

Recipe for Society's 1100.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The ideal manner in which to form society is as follows: Take (1) yourself; (2) select your friends, rich, idle, and brainless; (3) have an iron-bound agreement that no one may be spoken to who has not these same qualifications; (4) gradually increase the number of associate members until, all in all, there are 1,100. Then stop. Do not become acquainted with another soul. If an artist, however great, approaches you—snub him! If a woman, with little money, however beautiful and refined she may be, is introduced—freeze her! If any one with a smattering of ideas crosses your path—ignore him! Let none invade the sacred sphere. HARUSPEX.

GALLERY NOTES.

A preliminary ramble through the rooms of the Fine Arts Building, 215 West Fifty-seventh Street, in which the American Water Color Society is now holding its forty-first exhibition, reveals no striking departures from the methods of recent years, but one gains a more than usually emphasized impression of the great variety of methods in the field.

Body color, pure wash, charcoal washed over with color, pastel, varnish, water-color prints, everything apparently that is not oil, has come under the classification of water color. The result may give pain to a few passionate followers of the old school who found their only satisfaction in the sober restraint of Girtin's and Cozen's tradition, but it is undeniable that a great many interesting and beautiful pictures are painted in the later tradition or in a mixture of several traditions that would never have been had the water colorists clung to a single formula. And, after all, the picture is the thing.

Cullen Yates has a couple of landscapes in the Vanderbilt Gallery that defy analysis so far as technique goes, having apparently gained their effect through the use of a variety of mediums, but whether he has used all or one of those possible to him he has produced works of a high degree of charm, the tender value of his trees against the sky having a particular truth and beauty.

In the same gallery Gifford Beal shows a crowd of people at a circus, those grouped in the middle distance a blur of brilliant colors, with blots of thick pigment here and there on their joyous raiment. The people in shadow are more clearly defined, and there is a peddler of children's balloons whose bright wares, together with one or more open parasols, give vivid notes of color.

The whole is very impressionistic and rich and bright without the crudity that probably would have resulted had the same effect been attempted with transparent color.

Mr. Prendergast is another impressionistic whose strong tones broken into colored fragments fuse again at the proper distance into an effect of great luminosity. Structure seems, however, to be pretty well disregarded in the present example of his work, no especial beauty of style attaching to his composition—some children playing with toy ships in water, the lapping movement of which is admirably rendered.

Childe Hassam shows several landscapes which are both luminous and composed with a sense of orderly arrangement. His knowledge of form and feeling for line will not down under any technique he may choose to employ. Colin Campbell Cooper in No. 496 uses body color with restraint and a fine effect, the green water, purple hills and opaline sky composing a quiet but rich harmony. In No. 374 he has a group of people in a street square watching the launching of a balloon. The houses and the air craft are depicted with a rather precise touch, but there is nice atmosphere and color in the picture.

In No. 600 he is freer in style, the church and houses of the quaint town and the little booths and tents in the market place keeping a delicate balance between a too careless fluency and a dry literalness.

Charles Mente also has a little town with its church and clustered houses, but the architecture is of the slightest, many of the buildings being indicated merely by a sharp outline. The branches of the trees are crisp against the sky and the large stars are thickly strewn among the light clouds.

E. Lambert Cooper also shows a composition of old houses and a market place. Alexander Robinson has an Eastern scene with ships and piles of golden fruit, somewhat reminiscent of Brangwyn in its complicated pattern and strong colors. Charles Warren Eaton has two or three pictures, the most characteristic of which is No. 547, some dark trees against a yellow sky. His snow scene, No. 505, with its murky clouds and in contrast with a bit of flaming open sky is a more effective color drama.

William Ritschel's splendid horses straining up from the water's edge with their load is one of his Katwijk subjects. E. Irving Couse repeats his favorite themes—sheep and Indians, getting very successfully the color of the brown skins of the latter in sunlight.

These are only a part of the pictures that claimed attention on a first visit to the exhibition. The rest, comprising chiefly the figure subjects and the etchings and illustrations, will be noticed later.

ALFRED MOSELY RETURNS.

Fifty Canadian Teachers Will Take Trip—Our Teachers Hold Back.

Alfred Mosely, C. M. G., of London, reached New York yesterday after having spent a week in Canada arranging for the trip of the Canadian teachers to Europe next Fall. He says that he met with much encouragement in the Dominion, and that fifty of its teachers will take the trip to the mother country. Mr. Mosely sails for England next Wednesday well satisfied with the results of his visit, one of which is that the New York Board of Education increased the number of teachers permitted to go from here from twenty to fifty.

Many expected that when this increase was announced there would be a considerable jump in the number of applications, but such has not been the case. From upward of 15,000 teachers and Principals who are eligible hardly more than 100 have applied. The provision for second-class travel seems to be the main cause of dissatisfaction.

JUDISTHRA AND HIS DOG.

FROM THE MAHABHARATA.

The end drew nigh. Forspent with battle's rage,
His wife and brothers gone, he scarce knew how,
Judisthra took his final pilgrimage,
One faithful dog his sole retainer now;
When, rainbow-hued with gems, before them rolled
The car of Indra, whence the god, confessed,
In music spoke: "Thou, Rajah, mighty-souled, Ascend with me to Soorg where dwell the blest."
"Great Lord, we come," Judisthra said, and turned To call the dog; but Indra's word forbade:
"Nay, Rajah. Place in Soorg may not be earned
By such as this; but loftier spirits, clad
In nobler forms like thine, alone may know
The star-bright road." Judisthra spoke again:
"This dog hath served me well through weal and woe
For many years; and now, though sons of men
Desert his lord, he goes where e'er I tread,
Demanding naught and giving all he may
In selfless love. And shall it then be said
That I, Judisthra, framed of nobler clay,
Could show a meaner faith than this, my friend—
Yea, friend, though dog? Nay, Lord, that must not be.
My road his road, with him I wait the end;
Then go thy way, nor trouble him and me."
Great Indra smiled in grander, kindlier wise,
And bade them both ascend. The chariot flew
With dog and god and man beyond the skies
To that unclouded realm where all are true.

ARTHUR GUITERMAN.

COUNTRY NEEDS REST, SAYS B. F. YOAKUM

No More Regulative Laws Needed Till Railroads Have Chance for Adjustment.

WANTS A LIBERAL POLICY

Says Merchants and Manufacturers Should Demand Cessation of Attacks on Business Interests.

ST. LOUIS, April 29.—At the dinner of the St. Louis Traffic Club held to-night the principal address was made by B. F. Yoakum, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Rock Island-Frisco Railway system. He spoke in part as follows:

"I wish to say that the railroads are not opposed to, but are in favor of, the improvement of our waterways to aid and economize in the movement of its traffic.

"The consensus of opinion is that the business difficulties we are now facing have been precipitated largely by too hasty enactment of laws, resulting in the discontinuance of railroad construction, the suspension of industrial activity, factory development, and a curtailment of markets for the farm products. But we have reached a point where we should cease looking for the cause and give attention to a remedy, and this remedy must come through the co-operation and action of the thoughtful citizens of the country, supported by the indorsement and encouragement of the press.

Administration Policies Sound.

"After careful consideration, every fair-minded man must admit that the underlying principles of the policies laid down by the present Administration have been healthy and sound; but the methods adopted in their application have been hurtful, causing shrinkage of values and contributing to the falling off of business; and while the treatment was heroic we should not overlook the fact that probably milder methods would not have accomplished what was necessary for the healthy reform of some of our business conditions.

"Under this leadership and policy, which was inaugurated to correct rather than to disturb business, the politicians of different sections of the country took advantage of the situation, and aided by disclosures of excesses in corporate management carried the agitation under the cloak of reform to a point where the American people were arrayed against the institutions of the country, and which led to the enactment of unnecessary and radical laws.

"President Roosevelt should not be held responsible for these objectionable laws, although they may have partly resulted from his efforts to correct abuses, and which have been eliminated from our business methods.

Country Needs Rest.

"The country should now rest from further regulative or restrictive laws until the railroads can adjust themselves to a compliance with those which have been enacted. This can be done through co-operation of the railroads with the Inter-State Commerce Commission, and effectually establishing working arrangements with the Government so as to give the laws a fair, practical test in order to demonstrate their efficiency.

"What the people and the railroads now need is a definite and fixed governmental policy that can be relied upon, which will facilitate the procurement of money by the railroads with which they may reinstate their improvement work, as well as finish the new lines under construction, which have been temporarily abandoned.

"This year the gross earnings of the railroads of the country are showing approximately 15 per cent. decrease as compared with last year. If this continues the balance of the year the decrease will be approximately $400,000,000. Therefore, if the war is kept up on the railroads at coming sessions of our lawmakers, they may force reduction of wages and thereby further cripple every business of the country.

"Of the 15 per cent. decrease in earnings, I find that 8 per cent. is due to legislative acts or orders of railroad commissions reducing freight and passenger and express rates. As a basis for this statement, I am taking the actual experience in the States served by the lines with which I am connected. If applied to all the railroads in the country on the same basis the loss in revenue from legislative acts alone would amount to $200,000,000 for one year. This, taken in connection with the $75,000,000 advance in wages to employes last year speaks for itself.

"To prevent the inevitable there must not be further encroachments upon railroad revenues, but, on the other hand, an assurance should be given of an intention to discontinue the fight of destruction. This would help more than anything else to restore confidence and increase the volume of business, both of which will warrant the indefinite continuance of the present wage scale.

Want Broad-Gauge President.

"At this time above all others we must look for a successor to President Roosevelt who shall be a big, broad-gauge man. The commercial, industrial, agricultural, and laboring interests, through their representative organizations, should dictate in a broad, comprehensive manner the business planks of the platforms of both parties, fairly protecting both the public and railroads. These interests should ask the prospective candidates to indorse or reject the planks so framed in order that the country will know how they stand.

"At this time, when the rulers of all strong civilized nations and their advisers are clamoring for industrial and commercial supremacy, all with a jealous eye on the United States, which has up to this time taken the lead, the American people cannot afford to become the laggards and silently submit to a narrow policy framed to suit the selfish motives of politicians, and which can only stifle and retard our Nation's continued growth. On the other hand, they should pledge their representatives to a liberal policy which will enable our country to expand and develop her resources, and not only keep pace with, but excel, all competitors for the world's commercial leadership.

"As a step toward the quick and permanent restoration of prosperous conditions in the country, the merchants and manufacturers should unite and demand of both the great political parties that they must cease further to menace the country's business interests.

"Let the central commercial cities of America demand that every man who will have anything to do with the selection of the candidates may have due warning of his fate should he continue to further place barriers in the way of honest commerce."

The Indian limestone slabs with which the pavement is constructed at Columbia University have been discovered to contain fossils. Members of the department of paleontology made the discovery, but as yet no attempt has been made to dig out the fossils.

Prof. Grabau, head of the department, said yesterday that from what he had observed there were enough specimens of value to make it worth while for the university to preserve them even if it had to replace the present pavement with new stone.

One of the best specimens is in front of the Low Library and represents the remains of a large-sized cephalod, a species now extinct, but related to the nautilus.

MILLER PLAYERS MAY TRY ELECTRA

MISS MATTHISON WANTS IT

Though no announcement has yet been made, it is highly probable that one of the features of the next season of the Henry Miller Associate Players in New York will be a production of "Electra." It is thought advisable to include some classic work in the répertoire in addition to the two assured offerings of C. Rann Kennedy's dramas, "The Servant in the House" and "The Winter Feast."

In spite of the recent failure of Mrs. Patrick Campbell in "Electra," from the point of view of popularity, the Miller management believe that the drama has qualities which will appeal to New York audiences, at least for occasional performances. The English version, however, will not be the same as that used by Mrs. Campbell. George Murray's English version of the Electra of Euripides will be employed instead.

Miss Matthison, who really heads the Miller company, played this Electra two years ago at the Court Theatre, London, and she has been anxious to do the part in this country. Only yesterday there arrived from England an actress unknown here, Edyth Olive, who played Clytemnestra when Miss Matthison appeared as Electra. Miss Olive has come to this country to succeed Margaret Anglin in "The Great Divide" with Henry Miller. Mr. Miller has never seen her, but engaged her on the recommendation of Mr. Kennedy.

At Packer Institute yesterday afternoon Miss Edith Wynne Matthison gave a reading of the "Electra" of Euripides, using Mr. Gilbert Murray's beautifully mellifluent translation.

Much difficulty obtains in an effort of this kind which is not to be overcome lightly, or ever, it must be admitted, with entire satisfaction to those who look for a dramatic rendering. The conditions are not such as are required to heighten the effect. Indeed, it is generally a mistake for the reader to attempt anything like histrionics under the circumstances.

Miss Matthison, fortunately for the success of her effort, had the good taste and judgment to do nothing of the sort. Most of the speeches, the choruses, and the descriptive passages were merely read in a fluent, agreeable manner, with enough emphasis and change of voice to relieve the long reading of monotony, but with little effort at direct impersonation. It would be obviously impossible for any woman to create the illusion needed for interpreting the masculine characters, but Orestes, Pylades, Aegisthus, and the Peasand Husband of Electra were sufficiently differentiated to be recognized even without explanatory underlining. So, too, the brief appearance of Clymtemnestra was the cue for the right note of temperamental uneasiness, while the appealing tenderness and passionate earnestness of Electra herself were beautifully suggested. Miss Matthison played this rôle at the Court, in London, and one can imagine the performance to have been highly impressive.

But even the human Euripides is a bit removed from Brooklyn on a warm Spring day in 1908, which speaks well for the fact that the reading drew a large attendance. Applause was frequent and sustained; moreover, it was deserved, for Miss Matthison's task was difficult.

FINDING PLAYS FOLK LIKE.

Manager Blaney to Test the Popular Taste by a New Method.

Charles E. Blaney, the melodrama manager, announced yesterday that he will devote the last week in May at his Lincoln Square Theatre to a series of widely diversified offerings, aiming to decide what class of productions is most desired by the patrons of theatres where the best seats are sold for not more than $1.

In making his announcement Mr. Blaney states frankly that the advent of moving picture exhibitions and cheap vaudeville together with adverse financial conditions, have worked havoc with the popular-priced theatres all over the country.

The six plays which will be produced are "As You Like It," "The Girl and the Detective," "The Dancer and the King," "Cinderella," "Faust," and one of the old Hoyt farces. All the dramatic critics in New York and Brooklyn will be invited to pass on the merits of these plays, with the interests of the popular-priced public in mind.

CARUSO ON A NIGHT TOUR.

Visits the Mills of the Pittsburg District in an Auto.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 29.—Enrico Caruso, the tenor, spent the whole of last night making an automobile tour of the mills of the Pittsburg district. He returned to his hotel only in time for breakfast. He snatched a few hours' sleep, and this afternoon sang in "Il Trovatore," closing his American opera tour.

A few hours later he was on his way to open a private concert tour through eight cities of the United States and Canada.

Object to Theatrical Train Charges.

The National Association of Theatrical Producing Managers, with central offices in the Times Building, has filed with the Inter-State Commerce Commission at Washington two complaints against railroads. One complaint involves the charges of the Mobile, Jackson & Kansas City Railroad for both passenger coaches and baggage cars, in addition to its regular fare, in the transportation of theatrical companies. The second complaint involves a switching charge of the Colorado Midland.

"Bert" Williams Buys a City Home.

"Bert" Williams of the theatrical team of Williams & Walker is reported to have bought the dwelling 146 West Ninety-ninth Street. The house, which will be occupied by Mr. Williams, is on the south side of Ninety-ninth Street, between Columbus and Amsterdam Avenues, and stands on a lot 15.4 by 80.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Edgar Selwyn, now appearing in "Strongheart," will close his season on May 9. Next year he will appear under the management of Henry B. Harris in his own dramatization of Sir Gilbert Parker's "Pierre and His People." The dramatic version is named "Pierre of the Plains."

Joseph E. Howard, who is now starring in "The Flower of the Ranch" at the Majestic Theatre, has almost completed the score of another musical comedy, in which Mabel Barrison will star next season.

The two hundredth performance of "The Witching Hour" was celebrated last night at the Hackett Theatre, with 200 members of the Kentucky Society present.

George M. Cohan's next production will be at the new Gaiety Theatre, now nearing completion, at Broadway and Forty-sixth Street. Theatre and production will begin their careers simultaneously about the middle of August.

The Wednesday matinee next week at Weber's Music Hall will be replaced by a professional matinee of "The Burlesque of the Merry Widow" on Tuesday.

The New York run of "The Thief" at the Lyceum will close a week from Saturday. After a brief vacation the stars of the company will go West for a run in California, opening in June.

Rigo, the violinist, has been engaged for a Summer season at Heumann's Harlem Casino.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Estabrook, whose marriage was recently announced, sailed yesterday on the Majestic for a long stay abroad.

BROOKLYN'S PROSPERITY.

The New York Times next Sunday, May 3d, will present an interesting sketch of Brooklyn's progress. Special attention will be given to its wonderful increase in population, political importance, and commercial development. On May 1st the Subway extension from the Borough Hall to the Long Island Railroad will be opened to the public, thus commencing a new era in Brooklyn's prosperous conditions. The past, present, and prospect of Brooklyn graphically told. Sunday's New York Times is always sold out. Order copies in advance.—Adv.

A NEW OPERA COMPANY.

S. Kronberg Organizes One to Open at the Lyric Theatre in May.

With the Helen Noldi Company playing at the West End Theatre and the Italian Grand Opera Company opening Monday night at the American Theatre, S. Kronberg announced last night that he has formed another opera company to compete with these. It is to be known as the Knickerbocker Grand Opera Company, and will open its season with a week in Boston at the Majestic Theatre. It will be brought to the Lyric Theatre in New York the latter part of May.

Mr. Kronberg has engaged Adelina Padovani, a coloratura soprano, from South America, and Laura Rethy, a dramatic soprano, who is said to have been singing at the Royal Opera in Budapest.

AWAIT NEW OPERA DIRECTOR.

Mr. Gatti-Casazza Due to Arrive Tomorrow on the Lusitania.

Guilio Gatti-Casazza, the new Director of the Metropolitan Opera House, is to arrive to-morrow on the Lusitania, it was announced last night at the Opera House. It had been expected that he would arrive on April 25, and Mr. Conried waited until after that date in order to meet him. Now, however, the new Director will not meet the old one, as Mr. Conried sailed on Tuesday.

Mr. Gatti-Casazza will have an opportunity, however, of talking over the operatic situation with Mr. Dippel, his co-Director. As most of the plans for next season are already decided upon his coming at this time will be mostly in the nature of a pleasure trip.

English Musical Expert on Tour.

Prof. C. Lee Williams, examiner of the joint boards of the Royal College of Music and the Royal Academy of Music of London, England, arrived here yesterday on the Royal Mail steam packet Atrato from Southampton, via the West Indies, on his way to Canada. The professor said that he had been sent to the McGill University of Montreal in connection with the chair of music recently founded there by Lord Strathcona, and was going to make a tour through Canada examining pupils in music for the McGill University. Prof. Williams leaves for Montreal to-night, where he expects to meet Sir Frederick Bridge, the organist of Westminster Abbey.

May Sing Rubinstein's "Demon."

Rubinstein's "Demon," which has probably never received an adequate production in New York, may be one of the features of the répertoire of the Italian Opera Company at the American Theatre. Luigi Samoilov knows one of the principal rôles, and it is said that other members of the company are prepared to sing the opera. Verdi's "Otello" has been definitely promised for the second or third week of the company's season.

Recreation Centres' Annual Musicale.

The second annual musicale of the Evening Recreation Centres, held last night in the De Witt Clinton High School, was largely attended. The programme consisted altogether of classical music. President Winthrop and Supt. Maxwell expressed their gratification at the improvement of the orchestra and chorus, and at the excellent manner in which the programme was executed.

Squadron A to Try Horseback Football

After having seen the horse-football game as it is played by the cowboys and the Indians in the Wild West Show at the Madison Square Garden, Major Ollie Bridgeman and several members of Squadron A have determined to try the game in the regiment, following the rules laid down by Johnny Baker for the Wild West contestants. Already orders have been given for two of the immense balls. In the Buffalo Bill game there are five men and one goal tender on each side, but the members of the regiment will play with larger teams.

New Play for W. A. Brady.

William A. Brady signed a contract yesterday with Jules Goodman for a new play to be done by Louis Mann. By the terms of the contract Mr. Mann must make his first appearance in the piece not later than Oct. 1. Mr. Goodman, who is comparatively a newcomer as a dramatist, has sold also two other plays for Autumn productions, entitled "The Test" and "The Hock Shop." The play for Mr. Mann has not yet been named.

Settlement Worker on a Crusade.

James H. Hamilton, head worker of the University Settlement, at 184 Eldridge Street, was accused in the Night Court last night of having stood in front of a saloon and hotel at First Street and the Bowery and cautioned prospective patrons against entering. The charge was made by James Brown, proprietor of the place, whom Mr. Hamilton had had arrested for having used improper language to him. Magistrate Moss paroled Brown for a hearing to-day.

PADEREWSKI SPURNS A LAUREL WREATH

WHISPERING ANNOYED HIM

He Stopped Playing Several Times and Glared at the Offenders—Insisted Upon Darkened Room.

Ignace Paderewski, the pianist, disdained an elaborate laurel wreath yesterday afternoon in the ballroom of the Plaza, where he was giving a recital for the benefit of the Music School Settlement. The little student of the school, Samuel Pouskin, who had been deputized to make the presentation speech, was compelled to leave the laurel wreath on the stage and retire.

Paderewski having given his services for the afternoon, the women's committee arranged the laurel wreath as an appropriate gift. They were Mrs. Charles H. Ditson, Mrs. Richard Watson Gilder, Mrs. Howard Mansfield, Mrs. George M. Tuttle, Mrs. Howard Van Sinderen, Miss Draper, Miss Laura Post, and Miss Christine Baker. The ballroom was well filled, and every one was aware that a gift of some sort was to be made.

Paderewski had also heard of this intention, and played for two hours without an intermission. At the end of the recital, while making his bows, the boy, bearing the wreath, walked proudly down the aisle. Paderewski glanced at him as he began speaking in a timid voice; then, ignoring the boy completely, he walked off the stage. The boy left the wreath on the floor and disappeared. Afterward the pianist's representative said:

"Mr. Paderewski never accepts flowers on the stage. There might be wires in these offerings, which would prick his fingers. He is not willing to take the chances, and, besides, such tributes are unnecessary. Any one should know he does not care about such things."

Apparently Paderewski had a norie too pleasant afternoon. He stopped playing frequently and looked at the audience to bring them to silence. During the Beethoven sonata there was much noise. Many persons came late, and others chattered. At the slightest murmur the pianist would stop short and turn on his bench to rebuke the whisperers with his cold, reproachful stare.

During the Schubert serenade some of the women in the rear of the ballroom pulled aside the curtains to get a whiff of the air, and this glare seemed to disconcert the artist. He stopped. Toward the end of the concert the audience showed more consideration for him.

When Paderewski arrived at the hotel he asked to be shown to the ballroom. It was brilliantly lighted. He gave orders to have the curtains drawn tightly and all the electric lights were extinguished except those of one chandelier. Then all the glass entrance doors were shut.

Besides the Beethoven and Schubert numbers, the artist played the andante movement from his own sonata, and four Chopin pieces. For an encore he played "Nachstucke," by Robert Schumann.

In the audience were Mrs. E. H. Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lydig, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schelling, Mrs. Samuel Untermyer, Mrs. Paul D. Cravath, Mrs. Paul Morton, Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton, Mrs. Ernesto G. Fabbri, Mrs. Frederick Lewisohn, Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, and Miss Dorothy Whitney.

W. L. Ormsby, Jr.

W. L. Ormsby, Jr., died at his home in Harlem on Wednesday, April 29, aged 73 years. He was born in New York City the son of the well-known engineer, W. L. Ormsby, Sr. For many years he was employed as a reporter on The Times, The Sun, Herald, and World, and for fourteen years held a responsible position with the Continental Banknote Company. He was appointed official stenographer in the City Magistrates' Court in 1885, which position he held at his death. He was for many years the de facto President of the New York Liberal Club when Horace Greeley was nominally its presiding officer. His widow, two sons, and a daughter survive him. The funeral will be held at the residence of his son, 31 Sidney Place, Brooklyn, on Friday, at 2 P. M.

The Yankees were brought up with a sharp turn yesterday by Boston, and not only lost the third game of the series, but were deposed from the lead in the American League championship race. After two unsuccessful efforts the visitors found their batting eyes and walloped the New York pitchers, Lake and Doyle, for ten solid smashes, which were instrumental in aiding the visitors to pile up five runs. It was an off day for the locals, both in fielding and batting. Cy Young had the Yankee batters at his mercy, and only one man made the circuit of the bases. At no time was he in danger, while his support was almost flawless.

The fielding exhibition put up by the locals was very ragged. Four errors of commission were charged against them, but there were many errors of omission. Elberfeld was the offender in chief. He made two glaring errors and came very near making two more. Conroy and Doyle kept him company, while the other members of the team played a lifeless game.

Lake pitched the first five innings for the Yankees, when, with the score 2 to 1 in favor of Boston, Stahl was sent in to bat for him. The experiment was successful from a batting standpoint, as Stahl's sacrifice gave New York its only tally. Doyle finished the game, and allowed but four hits. The visitors made three triples out of their ten hits, a brace of which figured in the run getting.

Boston secured the first run in the initial inning on a sacrifice by Thoney and a triple by McConnell. Unglaub's three-base hit and a poor return throw by Niles gave Boston another tally in the fifth. Singles by McHale, Unglaub, and Thoney, a wild throw by Doyle, a fumble by Conroy, and a base on balls were responsible for Boston's three runs in the seventh. New York's solitary run came from consecutive singles by Conroy and Kleinow and Stahl's sacrifice, on which Conroy scored. The score:

Women Fence for Honors.

Before a fashionable throng of members and guests of the Fencers' Club of New York in the Windsor Arcade, Fifth Avenue and Forty-seventh Street, Miss Adelaide Baylis won the women's championship of the club yesterday. The competition was with foils, and the only competitors were the three young women who composed the New York team in its recent intercity match with the Philadelphia women, which the latter won by 6 bouts to 3. Besides Miss Baylis the other aspirants for fencing honors were Miss Margaret Stimson and Miss Mildred Dick. Miss Baylis, who proved herself the star member of the local team in its recent encounter with the Quaker City women, won both of her bouts rather easily. Miss Dick giving her the hardest fight. Miss Dick triumphed over Miss Stimson in an exciting bout, but in the attack Miss Dick was superior.

Yale's Football Schedule.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 29.—Capt. "Bobby" Burch to-night announced the Yale football schedule for 1909. It will consist of only nine games, having been cut down one contest, thus placing Yale really in advance of Harvard in reducing her intercollegiate contests. Villanova was dropped because of rough play last Fall, and no other eleven was admitted in that team's place. The schedule:

Sept. 30, Wesleyan at Yale Field; Oct. 3, Syracuse at Yale Field; Oct. 10, Holy Cross at Yale Field; Oct. 17, West Point at West Point; Oct. 24, Washington and Jefferson College at Yale Field; Oct. 31, Massachusetts Agricultural College at Yale Field; Nov. 7, Brown at Yale Field; Nov. 14, Princeton at Princeton; Nov. 21, Harvard at Yale Field.

BOSTON, Mass., April 29.—Boston won an uphill game from New York in eleven innings to-day. Ferguson's wildness gave the visitors a commanding lead in the first three innings, but Boston tied the score in the fifth by hitting Mathewson freely after Wiltse had been forced to retire. New York scored in the tenth on an error followed by a hit. Kelley's home run hit over the fence tied the score again in Boston's half, and the home team won out in the eleventh inning, when Tenney dropped Bresnahan's perfect throw of Bates's bunt, allowing Young to score. Tennis Play Down to Semi-Finals.

Women lawn tennis players displayed their skill in lively matches in the singles yesterday, with the result that Mrs. William H. Pouch, Miss Tweed, and Mrs. Barger-Wallach won their brackets in the semi-final round on the court of the St. Nicholas Rink. Miss Tweed hit the ball with telling force, and the certainty of her returns soon wore down her opponent, Mrs. Hamilton L. Fearey of the Richmond County Country Club. This match continued through three sets, and the final score was 6—3, 3—6, and 7—5.

It was the steadiness of her game by which Mrs. Pouch was successful in winning her match against Mrs. A. H. McCarthy. Mrs. McCarthy attained her usual form in the second set. But this was after Mrs. Pouch had obtained a lead, and the latter finally scored 6—2 and 7—5. Mrs. Barger-Wallach defeated Mrs. Franklin Bishop also in straight sets, 6—3, 6—4.

Wilding Coming to Play Tennis.

LONDON, April 29.—A. F. Wilding of New Zealand, who with N. E. Brooks of Australia won the Davis Cup at Wimbledon last year, has decided to go to America to compete in the lawn tennis championship contests. If Mr. Brooks can do so he probably will accompany Mr. Wilding.

M'CARTER VICTOR IN $10,000 RACE

Newcastle Stable's Colt Takes Excelsior After a Struggle at the End.

JACK ATKIN BEATEN A NECK

The best and cleanest race in the history of the $10,000 Excelsior Handicap was run at the Jamaica race course yesterday and won by the four-year-old colt McCarter in a whipping neck-and-neck finish with Jack Atkin, winner of the Carter and Queens County Handicaps, at Aqueduct. Only these two actually figured in the contest from the turn into the stretch to the winning post, the pace carried by Jack Atkin and followed by McCarter taking the contenders far away from the others of the field in the first six furlongs of the mile and a sixteenth race, but the struggle at the end between the two best-backed horses of the seven that ran provided a race that was full of sensation and in doubt until the last stride had been taken.

The race marked the opening of the Metropolitan Jockey Club's Spring meeting, and was the chief event of a programme that drew a record-breaking attendance for the Jamaica course. The weather, bright and Summer like, with only a light warm breeze blowing through the stands, contributed much to the success of the Jamaica opening, and rounded out a real racing holiday for the crowd, estimated at 20,000.

Twelve horses were named on the card for the Excelsior, but it was known in advance that at least three of these would not start. When the scratching had been done and the entries were announced, five of the twelve, Spooner, Red River, Berkeley, Restigouche, and Light Wool, had been withdrawn, though the race actually suffered no marked loss by the scratching, as the best of the horses were left in. From the first betting to the start of the race, the fourth on the card, Jack Atkin, carrying the Schreiber colors and ridden by Musgrave, the jockey who rode him in his victories at the Aqueduct track, was the public favorite, the highest price laid against him being 2 to 1, while he went to the post at 7 to 5. The Newcastle Stable's McCarter, the same age as Jack Atkin, ridden by Notter, and in receipt of six pounds from Jack Atkin, the top weight, was as consistently the second choice, and started at 16 to 5, with H. P. Whitney's Brookdale Nymph, the B. & O. Stable's Chapultepec, and R. F. Carman's Rifleman the next choices. The outsiders were Old Honesty and Zienap.

Of the field McCarter was the only horse that had not started this Spring, and in consequence the curiosity of the betting racegoers was great concerning him. McCarter had the full confidence of his stable, and looked fit enough to justify the faith that the stable following felt.

When the barrier was raised, the horses all broke to a good start, with the exception of Chapultepec, which lunged and kept McDaniel so busy trying to straighten him out that he was all but left, Zienap, Rifleman, and Jack Atkin showing in front in that order as they left the post, while the closing in of the others threw McCarter in behind the crowd, with Chapultepec just settling down in last place on the outside. Jack Atkin broke away in his own sprinting style, and in the run to the first turn took his top weight to the front, and went on at a fast pace, while Chapultepec, rushing into the crowd on the turn, for a few strides threatened to cut down the horses in front of him, McCarter appearing to be in the greatest danger. Going around the turn, Rifleman and Old Honesty were second and third to Jack Atkin, with McCarter then fourth, but as they went into the back stretch, McCarter moved forward and took second place, two lengths behind Jack Atkin, with Rifleman then third, Brookdale Nymph there having dropped back to last place and out of the race.

Down the back stretch McCarter closed steadily on the leader, and on the far turn lapped him, and, running then on the outside, made an effort for the lead. Jack Atkin moved away, and McCarter going with him, the two drew further and further from the horses behind them and came to the bend into the stretch lapped, with Jack Atkin leading by half a length.

On the straight Notter was forced to urge McCarter, Jack Atkin at that point seeming to be going the easier of the two, and just before they reached the 16 last furlong pole Notter was at work with his whip. McCarter responded gallantly to the punishment and closing still, drew up to Jack Atkin's throat latch abreast the sixteenth pole, Musgrave there beginning to ride and urge his horse forward. In the next few strides Jack Atkin, too, was under the whip, and though he ran straight and gamely, his effort as pacemaker and the weight told, and his stride was shortening when McCarter with a final effort and still under the whip, showed his nose in front. Even then the issue was in doubt until the horses were actually on the post, McCarter then drawing out a trifle further, and, hard ridden to the last jump, winning by a short neck, with Jack Atkin second, four lengths in front of Rifleman, which hung on in third place and finished two lengths before Old Honesty, the fourth horse. The fractional time of the race was 0:12, 0:24 1-5, 0:36, 0:48, 1:00 3-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:39 4-5, and for the full mile and a sixteenth 1:46.

In the remaining races of the day the best backed horses were singularly prominent, all the races going to horses that were among the first three choices, three events to favorites, two to second choices, and one to a third choice. The chief incident of the minor races was in the third event, a handicap at five and a half furlongs, in which Star Gowan carried Paul J. Rainey's colors into first place for the first time this season, and then was disqualified for a foul, the race being awarded to R. F. Carmen's Fleming. Notter, who rode Star Gowan, was fined $200 for foul riding.

Returns for Aqueduct Track's Meeting.

The returns for the Queens County Jockey Club's Spring meeting at the Aqueduct track, as announced by officials of the club, show that in the twelve days of racing at Aqueduct a total of 125,000 patrons entered the gates of the race course inclosure, making an average of more than 10,000 a day. In connection with other details of the meeting it was stated that jewelry worth more than $2,000 lost by careless persons had been returned to the proper owners through the Bureau of Inquiry.

City and Suburban for Dean Swift.

EPSOM, April 29.—The City and Suburban Handicap, 2,000 sovereigns, for three-year-olds and upward, was won to-day by J. B. Joel's Dean Swift. A. Stedall's Simonson was second and Baron M. de Rothschild's Snow Leopard was third. Sixteen horses ran. The betting on Dean Swift was 18 to 2 against, on Simonson 100 to 6 against, and on Snow Leopard 100 to 8 against.

Road Drivers' Parade and Horse Show.

Members of the Road Drivers' Association of New York have reason to feel enthused over the prospects of the annual parade and horse show on the Speedway next Saturday, after listening to the encouraging reports of the association at the Hotel Cadillac last night. It is estimated that there will be 200 turnouts in the parade, which will be started at 2 o'clock from 145th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue. After going the full length of the Speedway the parade will return to the grand stand and then disband. The horse show will be held on the lawn north of the grand stand, and this, it is expected, will eclipse in size and brilliancy any similar event ever held in New York.

Holmes Star of Company B Games.

W. B. Holmes was the star of the closed games of Company B of the Thirteenth Regiment at the armory in Brooklyn last night. Holmes, in addition, to capturing the 300-yard handicap race from the limit handicap mark, also finished in the lead in the half-mile run, which was the last event of the programme. No times were taken in any of the running events. In the half-mile run H. B. Dewar, who competed from scratch, stopped while in third place on the last turn entering the stretch, and no third man finished. Dewar ran a good race in the 300-yard run from scratch, catching all but Holmes seventy-five yards from home, and cantering in in second place. The summaries:

70-Yard Dash, Handicap, Trials.—First Heat—Won by F. C. Young, (6 yards;) Walter Heuthwohl, (6 yards,) second. Second Heat—Won by C. J. Heldt, (6 yards;) John H. Cogan, (6 yards,) second.
Final Heat—Won by Young; Herdt, second; Heuthwoid, third; Cogan, fourth.
300-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by W. B Holmes, (30 yards;) H. Dewar, (scratch,) second; Claude J. Steains, (30 yards,) third; G. B. McGrath, (18 yards,) fourth.
Putting 12-Pound Shot, Scratch.—Won by C. J. Herdt, distance 35 feet; John H. Cogan, distance 33 feet 8 inches, second; F. C. Young, distance 33 feet 1 inch, third.
880-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by W. B. Holmes, (90 yards;) John H. Cogan, (75 yards,) second.

Seventh's Troopers Give Final Salute.

The Riding Club of the Seventh Regiment, the only mounted infantry in New York's National Guard, gave its final entertainment of the season at the Metropolitan Riding Club, in West Fifty-sixth Street, last night. About thirty troopers furnished the sport, Capt. L. W. Stoteabury being in command, with Lieut. Hill as assistant. The programme was made up of rough riding and interesting cavalry evolutions, and three of the members, Reynolds, Weller, and Catlin, were dressed in the garb of Indians. They were chased all around the ring by the other troopers amid the plaudits of the spectators. The closing exercise consisted in the men lining up in front of the boxes, after which Private Busse presented a bunch of American Beauty roses to Mrs. Stotesbury, the affair winding up with a right-hand salute by the entire troop.

Interclass Games at Sachs School.

The young athletes of Sachs School gave an excellent account of themselves in the annual interclass games at Pastime Oval, Ninetieth Street and Avenue A, yesterday afternoon, the representatives of 1909 carrying off the honors with 50 points, their nearest rivals being 1908, with 32 points. Trainer Walter Grady had the boys in good condition, and the results were very satisfactory.

Public Links for Newark.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., April 29.—After several years of uncertainty it has been decided that this city will have public golf links. The course will be established at Weequahic Park, in the southern part of the city, and will be an eighteen-hole affair. It is impossible to get it in shape for this season, but it will be in readiness a year hence.

At night—

JUDGE MOORE WINS THREE BLUE RIBBONS

SADDLE EVENT FOR SURPRISE

Judge William H. Moore was the chief blue ribbon winner last night at the horse show of the Riding and Driving Club of Brooklyn. He won three blues, getting first in all of the harness classes, including the four-in-hand exhibit. In this he practically had a walk-over, for George Watson's team was the only one to oppose him. His victory gave Judge Moore permanent possession of the cup, as he won it in 1906, but J. C. Harriman was the victor last year.

Saddle classes predominated in the second night's judging, six of the nine events being for saddle horses, three of which were limited to members of the Riding and Driving Club. The ladies' jumping class over bars three and a half feet high was the picturesque event of the evening. There were only three contesants for the cup offered by William N. Dykman, and the trophy was won by Jackson A. Dykman's Amherst II., well ridden by Miss Marie Zimmerman. Mrs. J. E. Davis, riding her bay mare Irish Maid, was second.

Judge Moore began his blue ribbon winning by capturing the first award in the harness class for the best three horses shown by one entrant. Judge Moore drove the brown mare Menella, while Pride o' Prides and King of Kings completed his string. Miss Emily Bedford drove her chestnut mare Hildred, which scored such a signal triumph over Judge Moore's Pride o' Prides on the first evening. E. T. Bedford and a groom drove the other two Bedford horses. Judge Moore's three were in the pink of condition, and their clean-cut appearance aroused hearty applause. The judges had little difficulty in placing the blue. Miss Bedford's exhibit got second, and Herbert Lee Pratt's three beat Miss Mabel B. Hooley's team for the third ribbon.

Judge Moore's second victory came in the class for harness pairs, Pride o' Prides and King of Kings defeating Miss Mabel B. Hooley's pair for the coveted ribbon. Only four teams were entered, Herbert L. Pratt getting third. In the four-in-hand class he won his third blue of the evening, which gave him first in every event in which he competed.

The judges took plenty of time to pick out the prize-winning material in the saddle class ridden by women. It was one of the most interesting classes of the evening, for nine horses were in the ring, and their fair riders made an attractive picture as they circled the ring at a mild gallop. All of the exhibitors wore the conventional black riding habit, except a dainty miss riding astride the bay mare Glasco Bell. Mrs. John Gerken won her first triumph of the evening in this class with Surprise. Miss Hinsman, riding A. Morrison's Vesta Tilley, was second, while Miss Emily H. Bedford, on John Randolph, was placed third.

In the first saddle class of the evening seen, well-groomed horses entered the ring, three ridden by women—Miss Bedford, Mrs. John Gerken, and Miss Mabel B. Hooley. All had excellent mounts, but the blue ribbon tussle lay between Miss Bedford's John Randolph and Rufus L. Patterson's chestnut Durham. The latter was well exhibited by Emile Antony and got the award, John Randolph coming second, while Mrs. Gerken's Mayo was third, and Miss Bedford captured fourth place with the bay mare Miss Ann.

The summaries:

Saddle Horses, 14.1 to 15 hands.—Won by Elmcroft Farm's ch. g. Reliance; Mrs. John Gerken's bay g. Redwood, second; Otto H. Kahn's br. m. Poppy St. John, third; Mrs. J. E. Davis's ch. g. Jacobite, fourth.

Harness Horses, for best three not under 14.2 hands.—Won by William H. Moore's br. g. King of Kings, br. g. Pride o' Prides, and br. m. Menella; Miss Emily H. Bedford's ch. m. Hildred, blk. g. Donner, and blk. m. Blitzen, second; Dosoris Park Stable's three, third; Miss Mabel B. Hooley's ch. m. Quaker Maid, ch. m. Dorothea, and ch. g. Czar, fourth.

Harness Horses, pairs, 15 and not exceeding 15.2 hands.—Won by William H. Moore's br. g. Pride o' Prides and br. g. King of Kings; Miss Mabel B. Hooley's ch. m. Quaker Maid and ch. m. Dorothea, second; Dosoris Park Staple's bay m. Lady Eocene and bay m. Lady Barbara, third; Dr. Charles Atkinson's br. m. Jewel and r. g. Prince, fourth.

Saddle Horses, 15.2 hands and over, ladies to ride.—Won by Mrs. John Gerken's b. g. Surprise, ridden by owner; A. Morrison's b. m. Vesta Tilley, ridden by Miss Hinsman, second; Miss Emily H. Bedford's ch. g. John Randolph, ridden by owner, third; Harry T. Peters's blk. g. King of Spades, ridden by Mrs. Peters.

Four-in-Hands, park teams.—Won by William W. H. Thompson, fourth.

H. Moore's four, (Debater, Minerva, and two unnamed); George Watson's team, second, (Fashion, Major, Masher, and Ascot.)

Ladies' Jumping Class, (club class,) best performance over six jumps, 3½ feet.—Won by Jackson A. Dykman's b. g. Amherst II., ridden by Miss Marie Zimmerman; Mrs. J. E. Davis's b. m. Irish Maid, second, ridden by owner; Miss Tillie M. Whiting's br. m. Orphan, third, ridden by owner.

STRANG GOES TO BUFFALO.

Lewis Strang, winner of the Briarcliff race, and his mechanician left New York last night for Buffalo, where they will inspect the Thomas car building there for the Grand Prix. They will remain at Buffalo until next week, returning in the latter part of the week. Their departure for Europe has been delayed until May 20—the car going over on the same steamer with them.

Strang and Marquise cleaned up a neat sum by their victory in the Briarcliff race. They won four prizes offered by various accessory supply houses aside from what bonus they received from the Isotta Company and from Mr. Tyson. The Michelin tire prize was $500, the Hartford-Truffault shock absorber prize $200, the Hess-Bright ballbearing prize $100, the Eiseman magneto prize $100, while C. M. Hamilton gave them $500 and J. H. Tyson $1,000.

Aside from the satisfaction of the various automobile manufacturers with the exceptional results attained in the Briarcliff race—the committee has a number of tangles to straighten out owing to the stopping of the race in the first round—the Simplex people certainly had cause for complaint, and the Stearns and Isotta cars deserved more than they got. Without attempting to decide the question whether or not Seymour in the Simplex could have beaten out Lytle in the Apperson, every one expresses regret that the issue was not decided.

Besides that, Seymour's Simplex, Leland's Stearns, and Poole's Isotta all had the chance to beat out Sartori's Bianchi; if any one of them made the last round under a minute they would have finished ahead. Then they would have fought out a pretty contest between themselves. The committee might help matters some by an official announcement of the result that would dispose of the disputes some way.

Savannah and the Vanderbilt Cup still continue to flirt daily. The Georgians are sincerely in earnest in their effort to land the big race, and Connecticut and Long Island will have to go some to beat them out of it. However, there seems little chance of their getting any definite assurance from the Cup Commission at this time.

Swarthmore and Navy Winners.

SWARTHMORE, Penn., April 29.—Swarthmore College to-day defeated Lehigh University at lacrosse by a score of 9 goals to 4.

ANNAPOLIS, April 29.—The lacrosse team of the Naval Academy ended its season to-day by defeating Baltimore City College 4 to 2.

MORE GOLD ENGAGEMENTS

Paris Has Taken $11,500,000 So Far—
Banks Returning Treasury Deposits—Exchange Down.

As in the case of the McIntyre failure last week, the suspension yesterday of a Stock Exchange house was in part responsible for a sharp upturn in prices on the stock market. Use had apparently been made of the firm's resources to speculate for the fall of stocks in a large way, and the buying back of these shares on the floor of the Stock Exchange, following the announcement of the failure, contributed, of course, to the advance. A great deal of the buying of United States Steel common and of Reading could be traced to this situation, and these two stocks, with Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, and St. Paul, were again the features of the forenoon rise. The balance of the market followed in the footsteps of these features even more haltingly than on Tuesday, and evidence accumulated that a wide distributing movement was under way. The pressure became so great after the noon hour as to weigh down the entire market, and at the close of business prices as a rule had undergone substantial losses when compared with the quotations of Tuesday night. Other factors entering more or less into the day's market included the Steel Corporation's earnings, which were not available before the end of the day on Tuesday, but which affected sentiment adversely yesterday, owing to the scanty orders on the books of the corporation and the trivial surplus above the common stock dividend; further engagements of gold, amounting in all to $2,500,000, making up a total of $11,500,000 forwarded to Paris in the course of the present export movement; the heavy payments made pursuant to the recall of United States deposits, and the first "crop rumors" of the season, these setting forth at some length the arrival of the perennial cold wave. Among the railroad earnings statements submitted—and all such reports are followed with unusual care by the financial community just now—were those of the Rock Island and 'Frisco systems for the month of March, the first-named road showing a loss of $291,000 and the second of $109,000 in net earnings for that period. The Canadian Pacific's return for the same month set forth a loss of $944,000, showing apparently that the contraction in business has crossed the Canadian line.

Following the day's engagement of gold for Paris, foreign exchange rates dropped sharply, demand sterling closing at 4.87. The presence of an unusual amount of exchange in the market was reported, but it is, of course, too early to assume an end to the gold movement. One of the largest of the city's banks paid in some $3,000,000 to the Sub-Treasury on account of the withdrawals of United States deposits, but the first installment is not due until May 9. The total withdrawals from the local banks will leave them with not more than $10,000,000 of Government deposits on hand to be turned in upon any subsequent demand. Government expenditures are running so far above receipts that the money recalled will rapidly find its way back into banking channels unless the situation changes radically.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 29.—There was more activity noted in the copper shares to-day than has been seen for some time past. North Butte was again the feature, selling up to 59¾, and Butte Coalition continued its advance to 23¼, both of these figures being new high records for the present year. Copper Range also came in for a good share of attention, selling as high as 68⅜. The balance of the list was from a fraction to over a point higher all around. The market closed firm at the recession.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Irregularity of the Market.

What was most impressive about the market yesterday to the ordinary trader was its persistent irregularity and the apparent inability of those bullishly inclined to steady prices or of those bearishly inclined to make an effective demonstration which would give evidence of a positive turn in the market. As usual, interest centred in a few stocks, and these few were spectacular enough to warrant all the attention given to them. The sharp upward rush in Reading was attributed by brokers and traders to the exigent covering of a short account which might or might not have some relation to the suspension announced earlier in the day. Union Pacific reacted sharply in the afternoon, but at one time it was within a small fraction of the high price of the present movement. Amalgamated Copper showed an underlying strength which irritated those who have been talking bearishly on the stock. Such incidents in the day's market showed the general character of the trading, and the point was well made that for the moment the impressiveness of the advance had been eliminated and the effectiveness of the sustained upward movement modified. Sentiment at the close was simply mixed. Variable views were expressed by both brokers and traders.

Possible Origin of the Advance.

Under present conditions it is impossible to estimate the effect of any failure. Gossip is not to be accepted at its face value, but some items in the day's budget of actual and imaginative happenings are interesting. Apropos of the present advance in the market, a story was told yesterday which may be one created to fit the known conditions, after the fact, or may not. It is said that one big house carried a substantial balance in a certain quarter where it was worth while to make an impressive showing. There was no indication of heavy trading on the long side, and dealings on the short side, so far as could be learned, were not important. Suddenly, however, the balance was reduced almost 90 per cent., and this excited curiosity, with the result that the deduction was made that the house was short of stocks. A movement was started for a turn in the market which was successful so far as profits were concerned, but precipitated more trouble than those who initiated the advance could have figured on.

Reaching Stop-Loss Orders.

Without doubt, profit-taking has figured largely in the market in the last two days. Those who did not have any doubts about the permanence of the advance became a little anxious on the first day's recession and fortified themselves to some extent by placing stop-loss orders. Many of these were placed closer to the market than usual, primarily because it was not expected that the recession would be continued, or that they would be reached. The reactions in some of the stocks yesterday were sufficient, however, to reach many of these stop-loss orders with resulting sales. Traders who watch the market are puzzled as to the exact extent of the short interest. Some brokers contend that practically the greater part of the extensive short account has been covered, and even the artificial short account created by the abrupt calling of stocks has been reduced considerably. It has been shown, however, in the last two weeks that it is very easy to minimize the short account or to exaggerate its possibilities. One thing noticeable yesterday was a recurrence in the discussions of the market to fundamental factors, and the steel business, general business, the crops, and railroad earnings found greater prominence than for some little time.

Steel Statement Discounted.

For the most part, the trading fraternity accepted the analysis of the figures of the United States Steel Corporation furnished by the news agencies at their face value, and did not take the trouble to go into details themselves. The figures had been too well discounted to have any effect. There were few in the district who did not believe a week or ten days ago, or, in fact, three weeks ago, that the earnings would be somewhere in the neighborhood of $18,000,000, and the unfilled orders on hand somewhere about 4,000,000 tons. Consequently there was at least nothing surprising in the official statement, but surprise was expressed that no apparent effect could be noticed in Steel common. Brokers said that many of their clients were willing to take a bearish position on the rest of the list, but while not friendly to the Steel stocks on the showing made in the report, they were unwilling to sell them short, probably because of the recent demonstration of strength.

Fate of a Good Resolution.

In the silent panic of March, 1907, one big trader who had accounts in four offices lost heavily; in fact, his losses were considerably in excess of $1,000,000. He made a firm resolution at that time that he would not trade again in the market, but would give all his attention to the business interests with which he was identified. He went so far as to impress the permanence of this resolution on some of his employes. So far as they knew, he has kept it faithfully, but it developed a week or so ago that temptation in some form had assailed him, and he had begun to trade again. There were two rather funny developments in connection with the discovery. One was the elaborate precautions he had taken to prevent his subordinates from discovering his lapse, and the other that ill-luck still followed him, for his principal operation recently was on the short side of a stock which has had a big advance.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—Trading lagged, except in the arbitrage stocks, which continued to be the active leaders, contributing considerably more than one-half of the day's sales, with Reading the prominent leader. Total sales, 40,757.

Colgate & Co. Incorporated.

Colgate & Co. of Jersey City, one of the oldest firms in the soap trade, was organized as a corporation yesterday under the laws of New Jersey. The capital is $1,000,000, according to the papers of incorporation filed at Trenton. The incorporators are Richard M. Colgate, Russell Colgate, and Gilbert Colgate.

FEWER DIRECTORS IN U. S. MORTGAGE TRUST

CUMMING OUT OF SYNDICATE

Option on Sale of Mutual Life's Stock Holdings in Trust Company to Syndicate Held Up.

A reduction in the Board of Directors of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company from thirty members to twenty-one has been decided upon by the interests in control of that company, including the Mutual Life. The adjourned annual meeting of the stockholders is to be held to-day, and the board will be organized along the new lines.

In explanation of this change it was stated yesterday that the board has been an unusually large one, and has included many inactive members. Recent events in the banking world have made it seem more desirable to have as Directors of financial institutions only those who can give a fair amount of attention to the affairs of the institution. Moreover, owing to the greater obligations imposed upon Directors by recent banking reforms, there is less disposition than formerly on the part of prominent men to identify themselves with institutions in which they are not actively interested.

This reduction in the number of the Directors has no reference, it was learned, to the status of the agreement entered into last year between the Mutual Life and a syndicate headed by George M. Cumming, who recently resigned as President of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, for the sale of the 5,000 shares of the company held by the Mutual Life. Mr. Cumming no longer has any interest in this syndicate.

The terms of this agreement provided that about $500,000 of the purchase price was to be paid in cash, and that the balance was to be met in installments, the first of which was to have been paid next September. It is understood, however, in banking circles that a change has taken place in the plans of this syndicate, and the chances are that the sale will not now be completed. The understanding at the time was that the purchase of the Mutual Life's holdings by this syndicate was to be a step in a plan for merging the Windsor Trust Company and the Empire Trust Company with the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, but, while the plan has not been formally abandoned, it is not expected to be put through, at least upon the terms originally proposed.

The Mutual Life's position in reference to its holdings of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company's stock will be in no wise impaired, it is said, should the arrangement with this syndicate, as is now expected, be canceled by mutual consent, barring the loss in book value due to the decline which has taken place in this, as in the stocks of many other institutions.

The name of John W. Platten, Vice President of the company, was mentioned yesterday as the probable successor of President Cumming.

Lanston Monotype Report.

The report of the Lanston Monotype Machine Company for the year ended Feb. 29 shows gross sales of $1,024,594 and net profits of $258,475, a decrease from the previous year of $256,260. The report states than on March 1 the orders aggregated $131,270, against $11,375 on the same date in 1907. The balance sheet shows a profit and loss surplus on March 2, 1908, of $1,000,165, compared with $916,160 on the same date in the year previous.

THE FOREIGN MARKET.

Firmness in London and Paris, but in Berlin Prices Fall Off.

LONDON, April 29.—Money was in better supply on the market to-day and discounts were a shade easier.

On the Stock Exchange the conclusion of the settlement did not bring an increase of business, but the markets to-day wore a firmer appearance. Home rails and Grand Trunks showed the most recovery. Consols were stationary, while Foreigners were steadily supported from Paris.

American securities were the centre of interest. They ruled buoyant during the forenoon at from ½ to 1 point over parity, especially the Pacific stocks, which evidently were favored in preparation for the new Union Pacific issue. Canadian Pacific sagged on a poor March revenue statement. New York sent higher values in the afternoon and supported Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and Louisville & Nashville. A slight reaction from the best occurred later, and the market finished steady.

Money, 2@2½ per cent.

PARIS, April 29.—Trading on the Bourse to-day was steady and prices improved. The private rate of discount was 2 11-16, a decline of ⅛.

BERLIN, April 29.—Prices on the Boerse to-day opened strong upon advices from New York, but became weaker later, owing to the pessimistic view of the business situation published in the West German newspapers. American securities were quoted higher.

$2,500,000 More Gold Exported.

Three more gold engagements yesterday amounting to $2,500,000 brought the total outflow of gold on this movement up to $13,000,000. The shipments arranged yesterday were $1,000,000 by the National City Bank, $1,000,000 by Lazard Frères, and $500,000 by the National Bank of Commerce. These further exports were reflected in the exchange market by a decline of about 15 points, to $4.87, for demand sterling.

CURB MARKET.

The Curb Market continues strong and is steadily becoming more active. The recession in prices is over and the upward movement is being resumed. The market is technically in a good position, money is easy and plentiful, and business continues to show improvement. Under these conditions established curb stocks of merit should be bought, as they give every promise of a substantial price enhancement.

SCHWAB'S GOLD MINE STOCK COLLAPSES

LITTLE GOLD ON PROPERTY

Experts Had a Hard Time Finding It and So Reported—Public Bought the Stock Heavily in the Boom.

The stock of the Montgomery-Shoshone Consolidated Mining Company, a Nevada gold-mining property, in which Charles M. Schwab is a large stockholder, collapsed in the Curb market yesterday from $3 to $1.62½ on news that an unfavorable report from the mines had been submitted to the Executive Committee yesterday morning.

Doubt of the real value of the property, which was boomed to $14 a share at the time Mr. Schwab announced his purchase of stock in the Montgomery-Shoshone Mine and adjoining properties in 1906, has been gaining ground for some months, and at the annual meeting this Spring it was decided to appoint a committee of experts to make an examination. It was the report of these mining experts which the Executive Committee received yesterday. Accompanying the expert opinion were several maps showing the exact condition of the development at the mines, and it was decided to print these maps, together with the report, for circulation among the stockholders. Because two weeks or more will be needed for the preparation of the report in complete form, the Secretary of the company was authorized by the committee yesterday to give out the following summary of conditions:

The report is much less favorable than was hoped. It shows that, while there are large ore reserves, the developments of the last six months have been disappointing, and that much of the ore is below commercial grade. The future value of the mine will largely depend upon the developments in the sulphide zone, to which the company is now sinking a shaft as rapidly as possible.

Mr. Schwab, when seen yesterday, said that he had nothing to say as to the report of the committee.

The Montgomery-Shoshone Consolidated Mining Company is a merger of the Montgomery-Shoshone Mining Company, the Shoshone Polaris Mining Company, and the Crystal Bullfrog Mining Company, all located at Bullfrog, Nev. The combined properties cover nearly 100 acres, with a wide ledge of ore traceable on the surface almost the entire length of the three claims. The large ore body indicated on the surface as much as the prominence of the men interested in the formation of the consolidated company made the stock popular among small investors before the collapse of the mining boom on the Curb market in 1906. The entry of Charles M. Schwab and Donald B. Gillies of the Amalgamated Copper Company into the property was widely advertised, and did much to aid in the distribution of the stock. The consolidated compay was capitalized at $2,500,000, with the shares having a par value of $5 each, and most of the stock in the hands of the public was distributed well above par.

Donald B. Gilles is President of the company, and yesterday's official announcement of the failure of the property to come up to expectations recalled the fact that another Gillies property, the Barnes-King Development Company, collapsed in a similar way about a year ago. The Barnes-King stock had been widely tipped as a good purchase on the Curb early in 1907, and sold as high as $7.50 a share. After running along in the market for several months around this price an announcement came from President Gillies in Butte that an examination by engineers had revealed the fact that the property was practically worthless. The stock dropped at once to 50 cents per share, and is now selling at around that price.

RAILROAD SAVES A TREE.

Lackawanna Wrecking Crew Moves an Oak Rather Than Cut It Down.

Workmen employed by the Lackawanna Railroad Company and the Crocker-Wheeler Electric Company of East Orange, N. J., have spent much time and trouble the last few days moving a magnificent oak tree to a new resting spot opposite the Crocker-Wheeler works. The building of a new railroad station and enlargements in the works of the Crocker-Wheeler concern made it necessary to either cut down the tree or transplant it. Dr. Schuyler S. Wheeler, President of the company, made a deal with the railroad people which resulted in the dispatching of one of the Lackawanna's big wrecking cranes to the spot.

The earth around the roots of the tree was removed and then, by moving the crane back and forth and up and down the track, the tree was gradually loosened. Then a chain was fastened around the trunk and the tree gently hauled up by the roots and conveyed along a special track to the hole that had been dug to receive it.

A pollock weighing 25½ pounds and a codfish weighing twenty pounds were the chief features of the sport on the Angler yesterday. Capt. Foster took his patrons to the "Farms," off Long Branch, fifteen miles off shore, east by south, and in fifteen fathoms of water. No better conditions for fishing could have been desired, but as Purser Fred Foster said, "It was good for the fish, but not for the fishermen." Flood tide is usually the best time for fishing in the open sea, but the Angler's sojourn at the banks yesterday was principally on the ebb tide. To-day Capt. Foster proposes to go to the seventeen-fathom banks, where fish are said to be plentiful. Blackfish of good size are now running at the banks as well as ling, hake, and codfish. Lobsters are also in abundance, as was shown by an eleven-pounder caught with a hook and line yesterday by John Halstead.

At Canarsie yesterday Bill Popke and Henry Haslett caught twenty flounders and three fluke between them.

The Kohinoor is the name of a new organization just formed on the east side. The officers are: President, Harry Olive; Vice President, William Devine; Secretary, Charles Johnson; Treasurer, Daniel Tompkins; Captain, Robert Pendegrast, and Lieutenant, Herbert Wenz.

The White Owls of Bath Beach are putting in an active season. On Sunday the club members, fifteen strong, will sail around Gravesend Bay, and thus be in a position to make many catches.

Two codfish weighing ten pounds each were caught off the Captain's Pier in Bath Beach yesterday.

MORSE LOSES IN FIGHT.

Judge Hough Rules Against His Contentions in Indictment Case.

Charles W. Morse lost an important point in his fight against the criminal proceedings instituted by the United States authorities in connection with his management of the National Bank of North America yesterday, when Judge Hough in the United States Circuit Court overruled the demurrers Mr. Morse and Alfred H. Curtis, former Vice President of the National Bank of North America, have interposed to the indictments found against them.

The indictment charges a conspiracy to violate the National Banking law by the making of false entries in the books of the bank and the misapplication of its funds. Then it sets up in detail the acts constituting the conspiracy as offenses against the laws.

Mr. Morse, through his counsel, demurred to the indictments on the ground that the acts charged do not constitute a crime. Judge Hough overrules him in all respects, and says of the demurrer to the allegations of conspiracy that indictments of this kind are too firmly established to be overthrown in trial courts. He continues:

"To cause or conceal a rotten spot in the National banking system is an assault on the Government quite as direct and obvious as is foisting into public employment a probably incompetent letter-carrier.

"The question whether there could be a conspiracy to defraud merely by deceiving a Government officer, when neither the Government nor the officer was deprived of the money or its worth thereby, has been presented to the Supreme Court so fully and forcibly that the refusal of the writ in the Brior case is certainly an authority demonstrating the willingness of the higher tribunal to let the law alone."

In connection with the demurrer against the counts charging specific violation of the law, Judge Hough decides that the question of the commission of the crime in the state of facts alleged depends entirely upon the conclusion as to criminal intent to be drawn from the surrounding circumstances, and this he declares is a conclusion which must be determined upon the facts as they appear to the Grand Jury or the trial jury.

This finding of Judge Hough has an interesting bearing upon the Perkins campaign contribution case, which District Attorney Jerome brought before Judge O'Sullivan of General Sessions for a determination of the question of criminal intent upon facts set up in a hypothetical question in advance of a presentation of the matter to the Grand Jury.

Judge O'Sullivan instructed the Grand Jury in effect to go back and determine for themselves whether the facts showed criminal intent. Subsequently Mr. Perkins was arrested on a warrant and was discharged through habeas corpus proceedings, the Appellate Division deciding that criminal intent was not shown.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Higher on Improved Demand—Closes Steady 13 to 19 Points Up.

Cotton was decidedly steadier yesterday, with prices at one time showing an advance of 22@25 points. The forecast for frost in the Western belt aided the advance as well as the improved character of the demand, smaller offerings for Southern account, and strength in the Liverpool market. The close was off from the best under realizing, but steady at a net advance of 13@19 points. Sales were estimated at 275,000 bales.

	High.	Low.	Close.	Tues. Close.

The local market for spot cotton was quiet and steady, with prices 10 points higher, at 10.10c for middling upland and 10.35c for middling Gulf. Sales, 3,100 bales.

Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: Savannah easy, unchanged at 9⅝c; sales, 25 bales. Norfolk steady, unchanged at 10c; sales, 71 bales. Augusta steady, ⅛c higher, at 9⅝c; sales, 647 bales. Galveston steady, unchanged at 9⅝c; sales, 812 bales. New Orleans steady, unchanged at 9 13-16c; sales, 1,600 bales. Houston steady, ⅛c higher, at 9⅝c; sales, 717 bales. Memphis steady, ⅛c higher, at 9⅝c; sales, 300 bales.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The New York Produce Exchange Bank has arranged to open a branch at Fourteenth Street and Second Avenue.

J. P. Hornaday & Co., bankers, of 27 William Street have moved their offices to the Cortlandt Building, Hudson Terminal, 32 Cortlandt Street.

A. O. Brown & Co. will open a new branch office to-morrow at the Waldorf-Astoria in the quarters formerly occupied by Raymond, Pynchon & Co. as a branch office.

The Stock Exchange house of Waterman, Anthony & Co. will be dissolved to-day upon the retirement of Mr. Anthony. A new firm under the name of Waterman & Co. will be formed, with offices at 37 Exchange Place.

SAYS GRAND JUROR HAD ICE STOCK

OPPOSES MOVE BY COMPANY

Trust's Attorney Wants to Inspect Minutes of Jury Which Failed to Indict It.

In view of the fact that the incoming Grand Jury is expected to investigate the affairs of the American Ice Company, an application was made yesterday to Supreme Court Justice Davis by Joseph S. Auerbach, the company's counsel, for an order to inspect the minutes of the January Special Grand Jury, which investigated the Ice Company's affairs, but which failed to find indictments. Decision was reserved.

Mr. Auerbach said that the company were determined to oppose another investigation of its affairs by a Grand Jury.

James W. Osborne, who acted for the Attorney General in presenting the evidence to the January Grand Jury, in opposing the application, declared that to let the defendant see the minutes would be to defeat justice.

"Many of the members of that Grand Jury were so interested that I felt obliged to ask that the matter be taken out of their hands," he said. "One gentleman had a five-year contract to deliver the optput of his ice houses to the defendant. Another was a holder of stock in the holding company of the defendant. Another member was so close to a stockholder in the defendant company that he told me he could do nothing against the company. When I got into that Grand Jury room I had no chance at all."

Mr. Osborne said that the investigation held in 1906 at the instance of the Board of Aldermen did not deal with the charges now submitted.

SCHOOLSHIP OFF ON VOYAGE.

With the harbor craft shrieking "Bon voyage" and several hundred mothers, sisters, aunts, and cousins waving farewell, the new New York schoolship, formerly the United States gunboat Newport, left yesterday morning for a four months' cruise in American and European waters.

On board were ninety-eight youthful tars. An even 100 were booked to leave, but two were sick, and altogether the saddest boys in New York. They expect, however, to join the Newport at Glen Cove, where she went yesterday to remain until late in May, when she will sail for New London, Conn. On June 2 she will leave that port for Plymouth, England.

On board the Newport were also a number of the members of the Board of Education and invited guests, among whom were ex-Commissioner Adams, Supt. Maxwell, Dr. Leipziger, Prof. Harold Jacobi, Secretary Palmer, Capt. E. H. Cole, President of the Nautical School Alumni, a graduate of the cruise of 1878, and Charles Williamson, a graduate of the first cruise of the old St. Mary's, in 1875-6.

The Commissioners and guests left the schoolship at Glen Cove, returning in a harbor tug. The Newport expects to reach Gibraltar on July 7, and Madeira on July 28, leaving there for New York on Aug. 11.

CITY WON'T FERRY PUPILS.

School Children Must Pay Fares to Get to the Recreation Piers.

The Commissioner of Docks and Ferries has reached a decision affecting thousands of parents and children in the Boroughs of Brooklyn, Richmond, and Queens. All must pay the ferry tolls in order to reach the recreation centres in Manhattan throughout the coming Summer.

The Board of Education recently applied to the Board of Estimate for permission to have the children transported to and from Manhattan on the city ferries free of charge, and the matter was referred to the Department of Docks and Ferries. Yesterday the reply came that the department had decided to refuse the request, sticking to the previous ruling that no one be permitted to use the ferries free of charge except city employes, when it was actually necessary for them to do so in the discharge of their duties.

The effect of this decision, as foreseen by the Board of Education, is to practically close the gates of the recreation centres on the poorer school children of three boroughs—on the very class, in fact, it is said, who need and use the recreation centres the most extensively.

ROOSEVELT MORTGAGE SUIT.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 29.—In the Nassau County Clerk's office to-day a notice of pending action to foreclose on a mortgage of $20,000, with interest, was filed by Robert B. Roosevelt, Jr., as guardian of the estate of Olga Roosevelt, an infant.

The mortgage covers property on the Shore Road at Oyster Bay, containing about twenty-five acres. It was dated Nov. 23, 1905, and was executed by Elbert Wakeman and Clara, his wife. As joint defendants with the Wakemans is the Agency Realty and Mortgage Company.

The plaintiff alleges that no interest has been paid on the mortgage since May 27, 1907.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee showed a slight reactionary tendency yesterday. The close was steady, net unchanged to 5 points lower. Sales were reported of 48,500 bags.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 5 points in response to a partial decline of ¼ franc at Havre and ¼ pfennig at Hamburg. During the early session all the sales reported were at the closing bids of Tuesday. Of the Brazilian markets Rio came 100 reis higher, and Santos 150 reis higher, and receipts at leading points continued light, with the two ports getting 19,000 bags, against 53,000 last year and 21,000 two years ago. Jundiahy receipts were 6,000 bags, against 29,000 last year, and 9,000 two years ago. Hamburg closed at a net decline of ¼ pfennig.

Spot coffee was steady; 6 to 6 1-6c for Rio No. 7.

URGES WESTINGHOUSE PLAN.

George Westinghouse Asks Stockholders to Bear Their Share.

Stockholders of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company were in receipt of a circular yesterday from President George Westinghouse, urging them to participate in the readjustment plan formulated by the Merchandise Creditors' Committee early this month. Mr. Westinghouse calls attention to the better position of the company at this time.

The plan of the Readjustment Committee provides for the taking of $10,000,000 of new assenting stock, of which $4,000,000 is to be accepted by creditors in payment of their claims, and $6,000,000 by stockholders. Creditors representing $3,250,000, Mr. Westinghouse says, have already signed or agreed to sign this agreement, but the balance of $6,000,000 must be provided by stockholders. He urges stockholders to bear their share of the readjustment, and says:

If a sale of the property results from the inaction of the stockholders, no money invested in the purchase of a future interest as a result of a drastic reorganization can be anything like as safe and profitable an investment as the subscription to shares now asked for with a consequent uninterrupted operation of the company.

In conclusion he says: "If you do not subscribe you in effect vote for a sale of the property by the creditors, and thus the elimination of all stock interests."

$25,000,000 NOTES ALL TAKEN.

The subscriptions to the Interborough Rapid Transit $25,000,000 note issue were closed by J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday shortly after the list was opened. The issue had been oversubscribed the previous day, but in accordance with the terms of the formal offer further subscriptions were received at the opening of business yesterday. The issue was so heavily oversubscribed that only about 50 per cent. of their subscriptions will probably be alloted to the larger subscribers. Of the maturing note issue, amounting to $15,000,000, $13,000,000, it was learned, were turned in in exchange for the new notes, leaving only $2,000,000 of the old note issue to be paid in cash.

The large amount of the old notes offered for exchange was said to be due to the fact that the old noteholders are to receive the preference in the allotments of the new notes. These allotments will be made to-day.

Cammann, Voorhees & Floyd have sold to a client of Horace S. Ely & Co. the building 223 and 225 East Thirty-first Street, on lot 33 by 98.9.

Richard Collins has sold for Varick Dey Martin the two three-story brownstone dwellings 147 and 149 East Sixty-second Street, each 15 by 92, to a client for investment. Both houses are under lease for a term of years.

New Riverside Apartment House.

Plans were filed yesterday for the Peter Stuyvesant apartment house, a thirteen-story structure, to be built on the plot, 100 by 108, at the southeast corner of Riverside Drive and Ninety-eighth Street, by the Century Holding Company, (Lee & Fleischman.) William L. Rouse is the architect. The estimated cost is $500,000. The façades will be of limestone, brick and polychrome terra cotta. The architectural treatment will be carried out around rear yards and courts. Lee & Fleischman recently acquired the adjoining plot of twelve lots on Ninety-eighth and Ninety-ninth Streets and Riverside Drive, where they will erect in the near future another building of the same general character as the Peter Stuyvesant.

Apartment Hotel Leased.

S. Osgood Pell & Co., in conjunction with the Tonnele-Martin Realty Company, have leased the Holland apartment Hotel at 66 and 68 West Forty-sixth Street for a term of years at an aggregate rental of about $100,000. The tenant will be Mrs. Howard White, who was formerly the lessee of six houses between Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Streets, on Madison Avenue, but who has been compelled to move as a result of the business changes now taking place on Madison Avenue.

S. Osgood Pell & Co. have also leased to a client for a term of years 166 East Seventy-fourth Street for the Renaissance Realty Company.

Renwick C. Hurry & Co. report the following leases: For W. W. Astor to M. B. Cohen, the buildings 20 and 22 East Thirty-fourth Street, for a term of years; also the store 982 Third Avenue, for the Douglas Shoe Company to B. H. Kaufman; also the store 31 East Twenty-first Street, for the Morse-Broughton Company to Barnum & Bailey; also the store 11 East Thirtieth Street, to Jacob C. Rogers, and the store 451 Lexington Avenue, to F. Croon.

Buyer for 12th Street Tenements.

Huberth & Gabel have sold for Domenico Bonomolo to Philip Schlachetzky the seven-story four-family tenements, with stores, at 332 to 338 East Twelfth Street. The purchaser recently bought the adjoining property 340 East Twelfth Street through the same brokers.

S. Janowitz has sold for C. Trick to H. Aretz the five-story double flat 1,834 Second Avenue.

L. G. Froman, formerly of Comellas & Froman, is now a member of the firm of Froman & Taubert, with offices at 1,225 Lexington Avenue.

125th Street Stores Well Rented.

D. H. Scully has rented, for a term of years, the southwest corner of Madison Avenue and 125th Street, formerly occupied by Caswell, Massey & Co., to the Paris Model store. He has also leased 28 East 125th Street for Charles Hoffman to Steindler & Korth. There are now no store vacancies on the south side of 125th Street between Fourth and Eighth Avenues.

Benjamin Nieberg has moved his offices to the State Bank Building, Fifth Avenue and 114th Street.

Leases in Downtown Buildings.

Moore & Wyckoff report the following leases of business property: The entire six-story building, on plot 50 by 100, at 129 and 131 Greene Street, to John Zimmerman & Co.; also, the building at the southeast corner of Greenwich and West Eleventh Street, to Charles Frank; also, three lofts in the building 42 Franklin Street, to the Floridine Manufacturing Company; also, two lofts at 93 Crosby Street, two lofts in 488 Broome Street, and the store in 101 Beekman Street.

To Build on Prospect Avenue.

The Hensol-Powell Realty Company has sold to a builder four lots on the east side of Prospect Avenue, north of 187th Street. The purchaser will immediately improve the property with five two-family houses.

Williamson & Bryan have sold for Mrs. Ellen L. Keegan the two-family house 764 East 163d Street.

J. J. Haggerty has sold for S. Cohen the three-family brick house 1,152 Longfellow Avenue, on lot 20 by 90, to H. Langer.

Simon & Atlas have sold for A. Zuckermann 984 Jackson Avenue, a five-story flat, on lot 27 by 75.

A Period of Sober Reflection

The investor who has decided to buy Guaranteed Mortgages wants the best guarantee. The Lawyers Mortgage Company claims its guarantee is the best for the following reasons:

It is the only Mortgage Company that limits the amount of mortgages guaranteed in proportion to its Capital and Surplus. In other words, it will not spread its guarantee so thinly over large amounts of mortgages as to weaken its effectiveness.

JOKES, OLD AND NEW, UNDER ANALYSIS

American Humor and That in Other Lands Compared—How an Englishman Took a Choate Compliment.

About $1,000 was cleared for the New York Cooking School as the proceeds from Miss Agnes Repplier's reading of an unpublished essay on "The Mission of Humor" at the Colony Club yesterday afternoon. She was introduced by John La Farge as one better known than himself, consequently giving him trepidation as well as joy in his task.

Miss Repplier declared herself overcome by this prologue. Proceeding to the essay on "The Mission of Humor," she said that we as Americans claimed this as a splendid National characteristic, and when we wished to disparage any author, as we frequently did, or friend or even nation we merely denied to author, friend, or nation this precious possession.

Even people of authority exaggerated the literary value of our American humor, said Miss Repplier. Brander Matthews had declared that the New York newspapers had a quality like that of Voltaire. Charles Dudley Warner had affirmed that Irving's "Knickerbocker History" was the greatest book of its kind since "Gulliver's Travels." Yet our sense of the ridiculous ought to prevent the juxtaposition of the names of Swift and Irving.

Despite this overvaluation, Miss Repplier continued, we did possess an abiding sense of humor. Our one lack was to fail to provide for those without it. France under Louis XIV. might be a despotism tempered by epigrams, but this was certainly a free Republic fettered by jokes. As a Nation we were humorous and not witty, and our sense of humor was the guardian of our minor morals, individually and collectively. Still perhaps we laughed too easily and jested where we should reform. We were light minded rather than light hearted, or, as an Englishman had told her, we treated serious things with levity. He could see no humor in the questionable dealing of politicians, but, said he "if you Americans think it amusing to be imposed upon you will never be at a loss for a joke."

Although New York journalists savored of the "corroding and disintegrating character of Voltaire's wit," Miss Repplier said, the characteristic American joke was good-humored, decent, but scandalously irreverent. It was "funny without being coarse," as Mrs. Gilbert said of Beerbohm Tree's "Hamlet."

Miss Repplier said she had been informed that there were eleven original jokes. She expressed surprise to learn that there were so many—the mother-in-law gibes and the talkative barber having been pronounced antiquated by Plutarch. Christianity, she said, was responsible for the cannibal-missionary brand of joke, of which the basic humor lay in the pressing by each of unwelcome attention upon the other. She noted that no joke was ever deserted in its old age, but was clung to with ever loyal and affectionate tenacity.

Then Miss Repplier said there was the East and West joke. The best of these city jests was Oliver Herford's: "In the midst of life we are in Brooklyn." The hatchet of Feb. 22 she cited as possibly the great American joke, but she said that the only funny thing she had ever seen about it was a window full of miniature hatchets labeled, "Washington's Birthday Novelties."

She gave samples of the jokes dependent on exaggerated statements and exaggerated phrasing, crediting this to a lady in Philadelphia: "Of course, there could be no marriages in heaven, for although there would be women there and a few men, still there would be no man that any woman would ever think of marrying." Miss Repplier added that after such a remark from a Philadelphia woman she felt that any classification of jokes by nationalities was impossible.

She said she believed that the best joke she ever heard was the remark of an usher at a New Haven lecture. The speaker was a particularly inarticulate Englishman, and when some late arrivals appeared the usher said:

"Please, Sir, take your seat as quietly as possible. The audience is asleep."

At the close of the reading Joseph H. Choate announced that it was his "pleasant duty to say the last word on Miss Repplier." He disagreed with her on two points. After hearing her paper he was sure that there were at least twenty-two original jokes instead of eleven. He also disagreed with her estimate of the English sense of humor. The English at least, he found, would take his serious remarks seriously. When asked once, Mr. Choate remarked, who he would wish to be if not himself, he had responded, "Mrs. Choate's second husband." Now in America, he said, that was regarded as a joke, but an English lady inquired, so that she might have material for judgment, "but who is Mrs. Choate's second husband?"

TOWNS TACKLES DOCTORS.

Brooklyn Lawyer Says They've a Secret Society That's Out of Date.

Mirabeau L. Towns of Brooklyn treated medical organizations with scant respect at a meeting of the Woman's Republican Association to discuss vivisection, pro and con, yesterday afternoon in the Chapel of the Church of the Ascension, 12 West Eleventh Street. He was the speaker on the side of vivisection regulation, with Mrs. Diana Belais, President of the Anti-Vivisection Society. Dr. Victor C. Pedersen and Dr. Frederick Lee, Professor of Physiology of Columbia, spoke for vivisection unrestricted. Mr. Towns called the doctors "members of a secret society and privileged priesthood."

"But with the development of science," he said, "the mind advances. There is a call to lay aside the mysteries even as the priest has laid aside his jargon of Latin—to lay aside the mantle of a coterie, a cabal that allows no one admission, and says that such a thing is so because we have said it. We want to help, not to hinder, you, not to have you work under a cloak, but in public, and not for puerile curiosity or base motives. Science destroys as well as saves life.

"The doctors we take into our homes to save life, they are closer to us than any one but the minister. But why should we not say, 'How and why?' and 'To what purpose?'

"The dogs may not bark, but we may lift up our voices. But we speak not only for the dogs, but for the men. I would lose a toe, an arm, a leg rather than have a mind blurred or conscience stilled. If I lost one eye I would exist with the other, or if I lost both I could get some humane person to lead me through the world rather than lose my heart, which would be more than all the world could give."

He paid his respects to Dr. Koch, and said: "After Dr. Koch had finished experimenting with tuberculosis we began to experiment over here. We have now inoculated all the cows so that they have had to be killed off. Many people die of heart disease in diphtheria who have taken the serum. People bitten by dogs recover, while some taking the Pasteur cure die."

The two doctors gave a practical defense of vivisection, and did not hesitate to say that anti-vivisection pamphlets were misleading.

CLAIM OCEAN GROVE, N. J.

Heirs of "John the Nailer" Say Title to Camp Meeting Ground Is Theirs.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., April 29.—Heirs of John Philip White, called "John the Nailer," from the fact that he was a blacksmith, who lived at Shark River, where he died in the late forties, are preparing to bring suit to recover about 105 acres of land, now claimed and controlled by the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association and comprising the greater part of the camp meeting city, title to which, White's heirs claim, never left his name.

The claim is based upon original surveys made in 1792, record of which has been found at Perth Amboy, and under which survey John P. White took up the land.

SALOON KEEPERS WIN IN SPITE OF BREWERS

SCARED BY PROHIBITION

Real Cause of Brewers' Move Against Low Drinking Resorts—Saloon Keeper Goes to Court for Excise Permit.

Notwithstanding the withdrawal of the support of the Association of Brewers of New York City from the saloons that the brewers considered undesirable, it was asserted by Deputy Commissioner of Excise Moses M. McKee last night that there will probably be as many saloons in Manhattan and the Bronx in the fiscal year beginning to-morrow as there were in the year which closes to-day.

For some time local brewers, feeling that they might be called on to make a prohibition fight in this State, have taken it upon themselves to wipe out, as far as possible, saloons of a questionable character by refusing to lend them financial aid, as had been customary for years. In this way it was believed that the saloon keepers would be unable to put up the money necessary for the license. But in this, according to information obtained last night, they have not been successful and the necessary money has been secured from other sources.

Inquiry of Deputy Commissioner McKee last night developed the fact that, while the applications had not come in as completely as at this time last year, the indications are that before nightfall the number of applications will be just as great as heretofore.

The reason given for the delay was the desire of the applicants to await the signature of Gov. Hughes to the amendments to the Raines liquor law, the most important of which was the provision that owners of premises shall be held equally responsible with the proprietors of the saloons for any violations of the excise law.

These amendments were not signed until Tuesday, and in consequence since that time the Excise Commissioner's office has been flooded with applications which must be got into shape before to-morrow, that the licenses may be issued in time.

Deputy Commissioner McKee said last night that up to midnight the number of applications was about 300 short of the number at that time last year, but he gave as a reason for this that last year the applications came in scattering throughout the entire month of April, and that they had plenty of time to act on them. This year the office has been almost swamped at the last moment, and Mr. McKee and his assistants were busy at the office in the Metropolitan Life building all night getting the papers into shape so that the licenses can be issued. He said that there had been only three rejections of applications under the new law, and that so far as the amendments are concerned there are only thirty-eight that could be affected.

"It is understood that the local brewers have withdrawn their support from about 300 saloons. Has that affected their applications?"

"Not that I have noticed. Of course, I do not know what the brewers have done, I have not even heard a rumor about it."

It was reported in a number of quarters last night that 900 applications for licenses had been rejected up to midnight, but Mr. McKee absolutely denied this.

When the attention of Adolph Hupfel, Jr., an officer of the Brewers' Association, was called to the report of the wholesale rejections, he said he hardly thought it could be true.

"The Association of Brewers has withdrawn its support from about 300 saloons it considered undesirable, and I have it on good authority that their licenses will not be renewed," said Mr. Hupfel.

As a result of the rejection of an application for renewal of license and for the purpose of testing the constitutionality of the recent amendment to the liquor law, which provides that where a license has been revoked for any violation of the law no new certificate shall be issued until the expiration of one year, a suit was begun yesterday in the Supreme Court by Angus McIntosh, proprietor of a saloon and restaurant at 144 East Fourteenth Street.

McIntosh in his petition says that his present certificate expires on April 30, and that when he applied to Deputy McKee for a new certificate he was refused, although he had complied with all the requirements of the law.

GIRL'S STORY OF A PLOT.

A pretty girl dressed in expensive clothing, who said she was Mildred Martin, living with a Mrs. Williamson of 57 West Sixty-fifth Street, told Magistrate Moss in the Night Court last night a rambling story of a plot against her which led the Magistrate to commit her to Bellevue for observation. The girl was accompanied by her landlady, who corroborated some parts of the girl's story.

Miss Martin said that she came from Harrisburg, Penn., three years ago, and had worked as a manicure at 170 Broadway. She said she fell in love with a broker, who promised to marry her, but failed to keep his word, and she asserted that she had created a "fearful scene" in his office on Tuesday.

Mrs. Williamson said she knew the broker, but neither she nor the girl divulged his name. Miss Martin said she had come here with the intention of blackmailing people. This surprising statement, coupled with the rest of the girl's narrative, caused the Magistrate to sign commitment papers.

HIGH DUTY ON CRADLES.

By a ruling of the Board of United States General Appraisers, announced yesterday, the fathers of several lucky Chicago youngsters will have to pay high duty on some remarkable cradles which were imported to their order by a New York and Chicago firm. It was contended by the importers that the cradles should be appraised as "manufactures of wood," with duty at 35 per cent. ad valorem.

The Appraisers have decided, however, that the silken canopies, Afghan pillows, and mattresses of the cradles bring them under the silk schedule of the tariff with a rate of 60 per cent. The cradles are valued at $400 each.

One, which is said to be intended for the infant heir of one of Chicago's wealthiest men, is made of rosewood, in which are carved figures of cherubs and fairies, and is magnificently adorned with silk canopy, mattress, and pillows. It is worth $1,000.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Huyler candy store formerly at 21 West Forty-second Street is now at No. 61, just east of Sixth Avenue.

The French Line steamer St. Laurent, arriving here yesterday from Havre, brought 184 seamen for the French cruiser d'Estrees, now anchored in the North River.

In consequence of the indisposition of Bishop Potter the confirmation he was to have held in Holy Communion Church next Sunday will be held by Bishop Courtney at 4 P. M.

No open-air mass meetings have been arranged for May Day, to-morrow, in this city by the labor unions, but most of the east side unions decided yesterday to make the day a holiday and will celebrate it by indoor meetings and entertainments.

Samuel A. Abraham, a process server in the tenement house department, pleaded guilty yesterday in General Sessions and was sent to the penitentiary for attempting to extort $75 from Catherine Wirth of 2,402 Creston Avenue, the Bronx, in return for a promise that she would not be exposed in a violation of the building law.
